TALKED TO HIM

Ester Thomas of Villanova, Pa., is excited in her telephone conversation with President Jimmy Carter Saturday. She got through in her second attempt.

Americans talk with Carter on telephone

'Hello, this is the President'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter fielded telephoned questions — and some gripes — on his own radio talk show Saturday, and said his long-distance conversations with 42 callers helped him "understand directly from the American people what they are concerned about."

The things they were concerned about ranged from Cuba to Idi Amin to taxes to an Indian land claim to a forbidden cancer treatment to a government job.

Carter responded to them all, and when he didn't have an answer, he promised to provide it later.

The two-hour CBS radio program produced no major disclosures, but Carter was out to make contact, not news. He gave it all a first-name, personal touch, saying thank you to Pete and goodbye to Mike. His callers' names appeared on a television screen in the Oval Office, where Carter and Walter Cronkite of CBS sat in orange armchairs, speaking into twin sets of goose-necked microphones.

Cronkite served as moderator and followup questioner.

Carter, wearing a blue suit, sipped tea between answers — and told one caller about it, saying the only way to cut U.S. coffee prices is to reduce consumption.

While there were no major disclosures in what Carter had to say, there were refinements, and presidential statements on matters that previously had been addressed by lesser officials. Among them:

—Carter said he intends to move soon to seek the restoration of U.S. relations with Cuba. But Carter said there will have to be major changes in Cuban attitudes, and an end to interventon in Africa and interference in Latin America, before full diplomatic relations will be resumed.

"I do intend to see discussions initiated with Cuba quite early," he said.

—The President said U.S. negotiators will seek a treaty that would yield control of the Panama Canal to the Panamanian government about the year 2000, while guaranteeing U.S. and world shipping access to the waterway. "As far as sovereignty is concerned, I don't have any hangup about that," he said.

—Carter said the five-member U.S. mission he is sending to North Vietnam will get there on March 16.

—He said he will come up with his tax reform program by Sept. 30, and that he will appear before a joint session of Congress on April 20 to unveil his energy policies. Carter said the energy plan will not include anything like a 25-cent boost in gasoline taxes. He dismissed news reports that such a raise was under consideration.

—The President said he has no plans to revive the military draft. He also said he would like to explore a new system of military enlistment, "to combine it with a much more comprehensive public service opportunity." He indicated that would link military recruiting with recruitment for such programs as the Peace Corps and Vista, but he did not explain further.

Carter said he might give a repeat performance some time.

"I liked it," he said after the final call. "The questions that come in from people all over the country are the kind which you would never get in a press conference, that the

Reach trapped miner

Death toll in quake at 3,000

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Rescue workers dug through the ruins of collapsed apartment buildings Saturday looking for trapped survivors and victims of one of the strongest earthquakes ever recorded in Europe. Western diplomats estimated 2,000 to 3,000 people died in Bucharest alone.

President Nicolae Ceausescu, who broke off a trip in Africa, inspected the ruins, the Romanian news agency Agerpres said.

Ceausescu said a new computer center that collapsed and 16 wrecked apartment buildings were poorly built and "asked that an investigation be made (and) for the guilty to be most severely held responsible," Agerpres reported.

Outside the most heavily stricken areas in Bucharest, where clusters of people watched rescue operations, most residents appeared to be going about life as usual, although there were unconfirmed reports of panic buying and hoarding.

Radio Bucharest said there was no cause for concern because cities unaffected by the quake were shipping bread, meat, mineral water and medicine to stricken cities.

The quake struck about 9:30 p.m. local time and registered 7.2 on the Richter scale. It jarred Romania and drove residents from buildings as far away as Moscow 920 miles to the northeast and Rome 700 miles to the southwest.

Diplomatic sources in Bucharest said U.S. medical students helping in hospitals estimated the death toll in the Romanian capital alone would go beyond 2,000 and perhaps exceed 3,000. They based their estimates on the number of casualties they saw coming in and on conversations with doctors, the sources said.

Rescuers cut hole too small; causes delay in taking him to surface

TOWER CITY, Pa. (AP) — Rescuers reached stranded miner Ronald Adley Saturday night but were delayed in bringing him to the surface because the hole they cut into his underground chamber was too small.

Rescuers cut through a 50-foot seam of coal to reach the chamber where Adley has been trapped for more than four days, only to find out that the opening they had made was too small for his 5-foot-7 frame.

"They thought the hole was large enough but it wasn't, so they are enlarging it now," said Steve Shrawder, assistant to the president of the Kocher Coal Co.

Adley tried to get through the opening but couldn't because of its size and the angle at which it had been cut, Shrawder said. He added that he did not know how long it would take to enlarge the escape passage.

"It seems like forever," said Adley's sister-in law, Kate Adley.

"This is a terrible thing. Why don't they tell us what is going on?" she added, referring to earlier reports that Adley was to be brought from the mine deep inside the 400-foot mountain long before midnight.

Shrawder said Adley remained "in good spirits and is anxious to get out."

The 37-year-old miner was the only known survivor of the 10 men who were trapped in the mine last Tuesday when a wall of water poured into an underground tunnel.

There was no immediate word on Adley's condition Saturday night, but he had been reported in good spirits throughout the ordeal.

An ambulance waited at the mine entrance to take Adley to a hospital for observation.

"They found my daddy. He's alive," said Adley's 11-year-old daughter, Justina, when she heard on television that rescuers had reached her father.

"It's a miracle, a miracle from God above," Kate Adley said as tears streamed down her face. "And I pray the rest of the men down there will be following right behind him."

There was still no word Saturday night on the seven miners still missing in the mine. The bodies of two men were brought out Tuesday and Wednesday.

Even after the rescuers reached the air-filled pocket where Adley had spent more than 100 hours, he had a long way to go to freedom.

First, there was the 50-foot long escape hatch his rescuers had spent 3½ days chiseling out of hard anthracite coal and quartz. Then, about 1,000 feet to the underground rail line. Finally, a one-mile ride on one of the flat rail cars which carry miners down into the earth to work.

While Adley waited for rescuers to

2 women die in hit, run; jail 2 brothers

Two El Monte brothers were booked on manslaughter and hit and run charges Saturday after two Duarte women were struck and killed by a car as they crossed Old Valley Boulevard in La Puente.

Sheriff's deputies identified the dead women as Zoila Barraza, 48, and Anna Coontz, 35.

Mario Molina, 21, and his brother, Lewis, 19, were arrested by deputies after their car traveling at speeds estimated between 80 and 100 miles an hour, struck the women on Old Valley east of Common Avenue at 1:50 a.m.

Officers said the car left the accident scene, but the pair were later captured following a foot chase.

How those who talked to Carter felt . . .

By The Associated Press

Surprise. Excitement. Amazement.

Those were the reactions of some of the 42 Americans who spoke to President Carter during his two-hour CBS radio broadcast Saturday afternoon.

The first caller to get through was a man with a question about Uganda, the last was an 11-year-old girl who wanted to thank Carter for his invitation to the inaugural — an invitation she couldn't accept.

A note of tragedy intruded in the otherwise successful experiment, however. The Rev. James Baker, a Ridgeland, S.C., minister with a history of heart trouble, died of a heart attack shortly after talking to Carter and asking what the President would do to protect consumers. A White House spokesman said Carter sent a message of condolence to the man's family.

Most of the callers said they telephoned because they were concerned about problems — large and small. They were generally pleased with the answers and thrilled at the chance to talk to the President. They said the program brought government closer to the people.

For some, the call was a carefully planned event; for others, it was a spur-of-the-moment idea. A Texas man, Charles Stone, of Dallas, said he called because cloudy weather prevented him from a planned trip to the lake "and there was nothing else to do."

The callers came from all parts of the country — including Hawaii. They ranged from preteens to senior citizens. Most made several tries before reaching the White House at the special number set up for the "Ask the President" show.

Several people, including Pete Belloni, said the conversation was "a once-in-a-lifetime experience." Others like Mike Fendrick were surprised they beat the odds and actually got through. Still others, like Rita Karatjas, were stunned by the experience.

The questions ranged from foreign policy to the Carter family living expenses. They included complaints and compliments.

Belloni, 42, was the second person to reach Carter during the two-hour broadcast. He asked about a report that the President had proposed a 25-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax. Carter said the report was not true.

Belloni, a printer who works at the United Airlines training center in Denver, said he dialed the special toll-free number five times before getting through. He taped the call.

"It was really exciting," Belloni said shortly after hanging up the phone, adding that he was pleased with Carter's response. "I think it is really great. I thought it was quite an honor."

Mike Fendrick of Brooklyn, N.Y., a 24-year-old clothing store employe, said he hadn't expected to get through "because I figured just the people in New York calling would tie the lines up." He made three tries over a period of about a minute and a half. "It almost caught me by surprise when I did get through."

He said that calling Carter "was something I'd wanted to do. I would feel bad if I didn't try so I tried."

Esther Thomas of Villanova, Pa., called "because I'm a concerned American." She asked Carter "how we could expect tax reform when all the legislators are rich people."

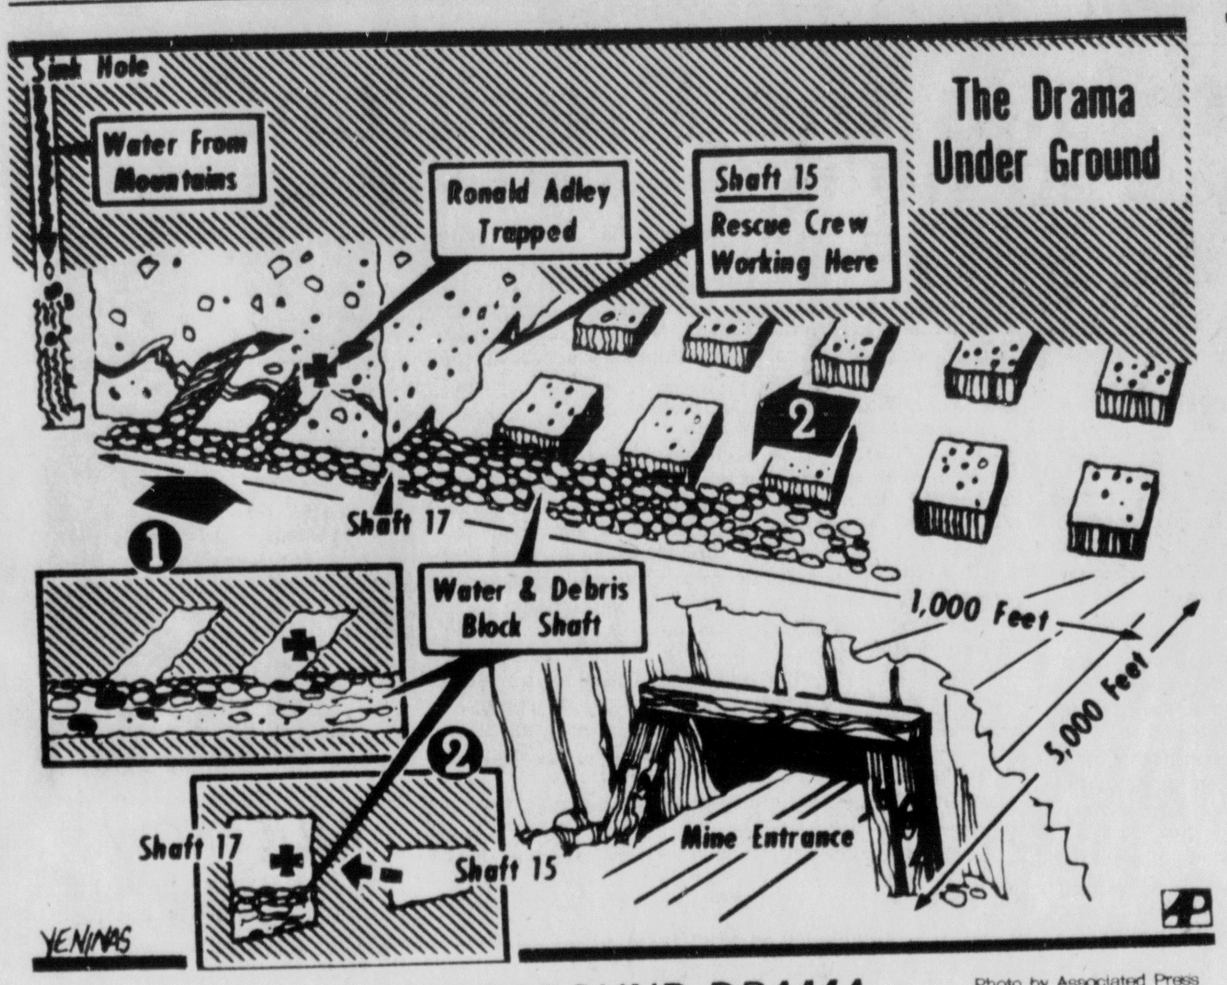

Mrs. Thomas, 58, said the call "was kind of a realization of a dream 'cause we're middle class people with no political clout ... I think it (the broadcast) makes the American people feel that they're closer to the President. This man's like us ... I'm just so down deep glad that we have a president that people can talk to."

UNDERGROUND DRAMA

Diagram shows cross section of the Tower City mine in Pennsylvania and pinpoints approximate locations of trapped miner Ronald Adley in shaft 17 which is blocked by water and debris. reach him, he napped, sipped juice and chewed a plug of tobacco.

"You go ahead and dig," he told his rescuers through a narrow communications tube a few hours before they reached him. "I'm going to lay down and sleep. I hope when I wake up you're going to take me out."

It was 8:45 p.m. Saturday when John Hope of the state Department of Environmental Resources announced: "They're through."

A ripple of excitement rolled through the crowed gathered at the mine entrance.

Adley had been entombed for 32 hours before anyone knew he was alive. As searchers drilled through the hard anthracite coal Wednesday, they heard a tapping noise. They drilled a narrow hole through the coal, inserted a communications tube, and Adley told them he was alive and well.

The hole was widened enough to ship Adley food, drink, chewing tobacco, warm socks and blankets. He catnapped to the rat-a-tat-tat of jackhammers, confident of his rescue.

His spirits were high, said John Shutack, regional director of the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration.

Adley was one of scores of miners who was working when a wall of water burst into a tunnel. Most of the men fled ahead of the surging flood, but 10 men were trapped.

Two bodies have been found. The fate of the seven other men is still unknown, but the search for them continues.

Adley was alone in the airfilled pocket. The other seven men were believed to have been working about 250 feet away.

Each day, rescuers predicted they would soon reach Adley, but the hard coal and quartz slowed them down.

Quartz is the hardest of all common minerals. Only rare minerals like topaz and diamonds are harder. The quartz turned the drills' carbide tips to stubs. Each time they touched the shiny mineral, the drills bounced off the black wall.

On Wednesday, the rescuers sometimes moved ahead at a speed of two feet an hour, By Saturday, the hand-held jackhammers and hand picks — used to chip out coal between the drill holes — chewed into the wall at about six inches an hour.

At one point, one of Adley's two children, 8-year-old Ronald Jr., offered this bit of advice: "I don't know why Dad just can't use a karate chop and knock that coal out of there."

While she waited for the rescuers to reach her husband, Anna Mae Adley said: "All I want to do is hold Ronald in my arms again."

Meanwhile, atop Keppler's Mountain, another work gang used a six-inch bit to drill a 435-foot vertical hole to the general area where the seven missing men were believed trapped.

When the hole is completed, television cameras and sensitive sound detection equipment will be lowered to look and listen for signs of life.

"If we miss, we drill another hole," one MESA official said.

Brazil hikes price of coffee 33 per cent

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The Brazilian Coffee Institute has announced that the minimum coffee export price has been raised from $2.10 to $2.80 per pound, a 33 per cent hike.

The new prices were not expected to be felt immediately in U.S. supermarkets, many of which are selling coffee at below wholesale prices to attract customers. But it was not known what impact the increase would have in the long run on the U.S. import market, where the price of regular ground coffee ranges between $2.80 and $3.20 a pound.

The new price in Brazil, the world's largest coffee producer, takes effect on Monday and will hold through June 30.

Figures set by the Coffee Institute are the minimum at which Brazilian exporters are permitted to sell coffee abroad and do not necessarily reflect the actual prices paid on the open market.

The institute raised the tax exporters must pay the government from $107 to $120 per 132-pound sack. This means the government will receive 91 cents for each pound of coffee exported.

The institute also increased the minimum export price on soluble coffees from $5 to $7 on the spray type and from $7 to $8 per pound on freeze-dried. The government's tax on soluble coffee was increased from $2.20 to $3.20 per pound.

Woman hurt in Pomona auto crash

A 21-year-old Baltimore, Md., woman was in serious condition Saturday after the car in which she was riding collided with another auto at White and Berkeley avenues in Pomona.

Police said April Stender suffered severe internal injuries when the driver of her car, David Armstrong, 19, also of Baltimore, collided with an auto driven by Daniel Yoder, 23, of Azusa, late Friday night.

Miss Stender was admitted to the intensive care unit at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Armstrong was treated for a back injury and released from the hospital. Yoder suffered an eye laceration and was treated at County-USC Medical Center and released.

Amnesia victim is reunited with wife

BOSTON (AP) — Cyril Stanley Baker, an amnesia victim in Boston City Hospital, was reunited with his wife Saturday after hospital workers were able to piece together his identity.

When Baker stepped off a bus at Park Square in Boston last Wednesday, he realized he had lost his memory. His last recollection was of his native London in 1941. When he couldn't recognize the destinations of any of the buses, he knew he was lost and approached a police officer.

When he was admitted to Boston City Hospital, he had no wallet or identification. He could remember only his name, something about Fitchburg and Worcester and one incident with two Quakers on a bus. He had the stub of a bus ticket purchased in San Diego in his pocket.

Baker's daughter Yvonne said that someone from the hospital called the family in Worcester Saturday. Baker's wife, Christine, drove to the hospital and identified him.

Baker, however, could not recognize his wife. His daughter said he knows he has a home and he wants to go home.

Baker, 55, owns the Consumer Denture Service in Fitchburg. He lives in Worcester with his wife, his daughter Yvonne and another daughter.

His family said the last they saw of him was when he left for work the morning of Wednesday, Feb. 23.

Dr. Mark Knepper, under whose care Baker was placed at the hospital, said Baker was apparently in good health when he was admitted. He had no signs of falling or being beaten which might have caused the amnesia. Knepper said he did not know the actual cause of the amnesia.

Works out on trampoline, dies

A 36-year old Glendora man collapsed and died following a workout on a trampoline at the Pomona Valley Miniature Golf and Recreation Center, 1500 W. Seventh St., Upland Saturday about 1 p.m.

Upland Police said James Oma, 459 Valencia St., Glendora was pronounced dead on arrival at San Antonio Community Hospital.

Motorist needs surgery after two-car crash

An Ontario man was in serious but stable condition Saturday evening at Montclair Doctors Hospital after Montclair firefighters needed an hour and 40 minutes to pry him loose from the wreckage of his car following a 1 a.m. collision at the intersection of San Bernardino and Vernon Avenues.

Montclair Police said Senum Chong, 529 W. D St., Ontario collided with a car driven by Stephen N. McIntyre, 1556 N. Oaks St., Ontario. Chong was rushed to surgery at the hospital. McIntyre was treated and released.

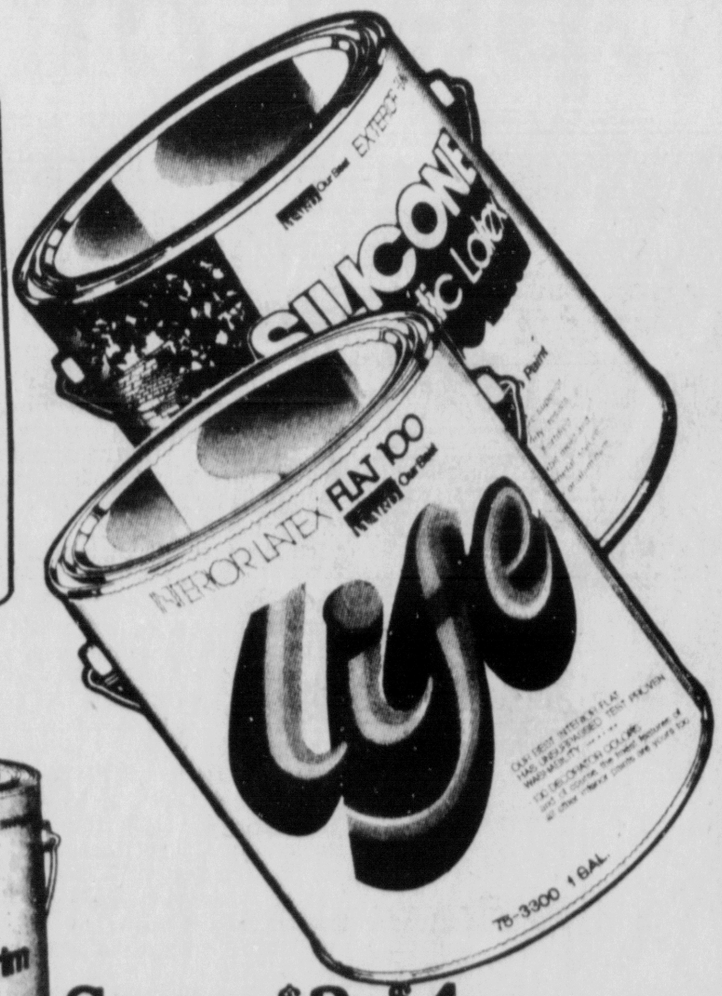

Police said Chong was driving north on Vernon and starting to make a left turn on to San Bernardino when he collided with McIntyre's car which was east bound on San Bernardino. McIntyre's car struck Chong's vehicle boradside, police said.

Carter talks to Americans . . .

news people would never raise, like the Ottawa Indian question."

That came from Mrs. John Ritchey of Georgetown, Ky., who wanted to know the status of claims for compensation for land taken from the Indian tribe. Carter didn't know, but said he would find out, and did, before the show was over. He said the bill has been passed.

"I think it is very good for me to understand directly from the American people what they are concerned about, in questions that have never been asked or been reported in the news media," he said. "So my inclination would be to do this again in the future."

He said he'd wait to see how Americans react to the first broadcast, "to see whether I've done a good job to make it worth their while."

There were some sharp questions and there were some complaints, particularly about Carter's pardon of Vietnam-era draft evaders.

But there were no abusive questions or comments, and the CBS censor didn't have to use the cutoff button that would have silenced any obscene or offensive caller.

Carter said he learned a lot and enjoyed the broadcast.

Otto Flaig of Milwaukee apparently didn't enjoy it. Save for the 900 area code, he has the same telephone number as the one set up for calls to the White House, 242-1611. "Since six o'clock this morning, he has been getting calls from people who want to talk to me," Carter said.

The President asked people to be careful in dialing, to spare Flaig any more wrong numbers.

There were questions about Carter's family, one critical, others cordial.

Nick Kniska of Lanham, Md., wanted to know why Carter's son, Chip, and his family are living at the White House instead of earning their own way. Carter said the family pays all its own living expenses. "I want you and the American people to know that we're not mooching off the American taxpayer," he said.

Ronald Fouse of Centerville, Ga., exchanged pleasantries with Carter for a moment, then told him:

"Now that you've pardoned the draft evaders and you propose to pardon the junkies and deserters, do you propose to do anything for ... the veterans like myself?"

Carter responded: "I don't intend to pardon any more people from the Vietnam era." He said there will be no blanket pardon for deserters, but case-by-case handling, on an expedited basis.

Carter said his administration is offering help for veterans in training and job opportunities, and by maintaining the GI Bill of Rights without cuts proposed by the Ford administration.

Carter said later that a poll shows the public evenly divided on his pardon of draft evaders, 45 per cent approving, 45 per cent opposing, 10 per cent offering no opinion.

Most of what Carter had to say was by way of explanation of his programs and policies, and when Mike McGrath of Warsaw, Ind., called, "is that there tax rebate supposed to be for $50 or what?" he asked. Carter explained that the rebate will be more than $50 for low income Americans, and that his economic program also includes a permanent tax cut. "It's a pretty good deal for you, I think," he said.

Gerald Anderson of Denver wanted to know why congressmen are getting a $12,900 raise and taxpayers a $50 rebate. He asked how the raise fits Carter's effort to balance the budget.

"That's a hard question," Carter said.

"That's why I thought I'd throw it at you," said Anderson.

Carter said the congressional pay raise was justified. He also said the salary system should be changed, so that when there is to be another raise, it will not take effect until after the following election. That way, he said, the voters could judge the question.

Carter left himself and his staff some checking and contact work for next week. He suggested that he would be making some personal calls to people left with questions outstanding.

The program, "Ask President Carter," was broadcast by more than 285 radio stations across the nation, and beamed abroad by the Voice of America. It was unprecedented for a President, although Carter did dozens of local call-in shows during his two-year campaign.

The show cost CBS about $50,000.

A preliminary estimate derived from an early, limited sample of telephone offices in the continental United States indicated that approximately 9 million to 9.5 million attempts were made to reach the President, according to American Telephone and Telegraph Co. It pointed out that did not mean that many people tried to call Carter because some callers tried more than once.

But that's no guarantee

San Dimas to hold line on tax rate

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

San Dimas, in the midst of an unprecedented housing boom, does not expect to raise the tax rate next year, Mayor Marvin Ersher reported recently. But for the average homeowner it does not guarantee that property taxes will not go up.

City officials have issued more than 500 building permits since last July and expect to issue at least 350 more before the end of the current fiscal year. Over $21 million in increased assessments will soon be added to the tax rolls.

That, plus greatly increased assessment values on older homes in the area, is expected to be an added boon to the city's financial picture for the upcoming fiscal year.

According to Mayor Ersher, San Dimas has received considerably more money in building, engineering and planning fees than had been expected. He explained that the fees were a one time revenue and warned, "We must expend these fees with caution and not inflate our budget with recurring expenses."

Ersher said the long term economic benefits to the San Dimas government will begin to appear in 1978 when most of the homes currently under construction will be fully occupied. The increased population is expected to bring considerable amounts of new tax money to the city.

In addition, he explained, "We have experienced an increase in our property development tax funds, which are earmarked for park acquisition and improvements."

Ersher said the funds will be used to make substantial improvements in the city's parks. As an example he cited the recent award of contracts for the building of six new tennis courts, two each at Marchant, Lone Hill and Ladera parks. "Cost of these courts will be approximately $135,000, which will be expended from the Federal Revenue Sharing Fund," he said.

Ersher explained the new subdivisions will also lead to major street improvements along Baseline, Walnut, Cypress, Valley Center and Allen avenues.

"These improvements occur as a result of a cooperative program whereby the developer installs the curb, gutter, sidewalk and 20 feet of pavement, and the city extends the project to at least the center line of the street," he said.

He said the city will invest the new tax money in interest earning accounts to bring in even more revenue to the city. He said that though the staff is only in the beginning stage of budgeting for next year, that no increase in the city-use tax rate is projected.

The general fund tax rate for San Dimas presently stands at 90 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. Persons who have experienced reassessments during the past year may find their tax bills going up considerably even if the city rate remains the same.

The San Dimas general tax accounts for about 6.5 per cent of the resident's total property tax.

Voters to decide fate of Chino bond issue

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Voters in the Chino school district will decide the fate Tuesday of a $23.9 million bond issue and state loan request that officials say is critical to meet the needs of a burgeoning student enrollment.

The issue — which is included on the school board election ballot — needs a two-thirds majority approval to be successful.

Just 16 months ago, local voters approved an $8.5 million bond issue — but Supt. Royce Lapp has said that bond money was inadequate to meet future needs. The district's population estimates have been proven wrong several times.

The district recently was awarded a $5 million federal grant to build two elementary schools, but that still would not solve all future growth problems, especially at the high school level, officials indicate.

Approval is being asked Tuesday of construction bonds totaling $9.1 million and a state loan of $14.8 million.

If successful, the bond and loan money would provide for a continuation of the district's building program through 1983.

Additions to Don Lugo and Chino high schools are high on the priority list, and would be made possible if the issue is approved by voters. Also, the building of a new Buena Vista Continuation High School would be possible.

Classrooms would be added to various elementary schools such as Glenmeade, Marshall, Newman, Walnut and El Rancho. Half of a junior high school would be needed by 1980, and additional elementary sites may be purchased.

Officials predict the present district enrollment will double by 1983. Now at 12,000, one spokesman indicated next year's enrollment should be about 14,570.

"We really need this bond issue," said the spokesman.

If the measure passes, district residents would handle the taxes necessary to pay off the bonds and state loan.

Officials predict no increase in the present $1.05 per $100 of assessed valuation residents pay under the building bond redemption tax. Residents would continue to pay for a longer period of time on the new bonds.

Chino bank gets turn pocket

Chino Valley Bank has apparently won the battle over left turn pockets on Central Avenue in Chino.

City councilmen this week changed their minds again and decided to create a left turn pocket within the median divider at Park Street to accommodate the bank's proposed new building.

The action means the divider would be modified to close off left turns into Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan, which is across the street from Chino Valley Bank.

The present median opening accommodates both banks at their current locations, but CVB is moving its facility slightly to the north.

Councilmen had voted in November to close the opening altogether in the interests of fair treatment for both banks. They later reversed that position and kept the median open; and last month were unable to get enough votes to do anything except leave the median as it was.

Councilwoman Eileen Carter changed her previous vote against creating the new left turn pocket, and it passed on a 3-1 vote with one abstention. Mayor Bob McLeod and Councilman Pete Garcia voted for the new pocket, Angel Martinez opposed it and Leonard Frketich abstained.

Mrs. Carter commended the city staff for a complete report on traffic problems related to the proposal.

Pomona council to ponder annex petition

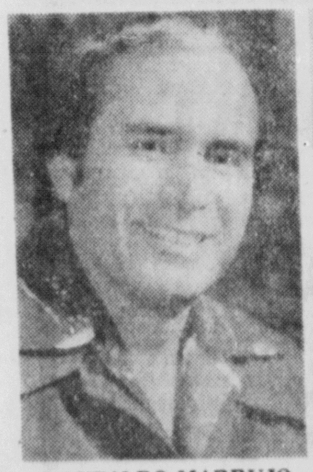

A petition from residents of the Piedmont Mesa area north of Pomona, asking that the city release them from its "sphere of influence" so that they may seek annexation to Claremont, will be reviewed Monday night when the Pomona City Council meets in a study session.

Because the meeting is designated as a study session, no action on the petition is expected to be taken.

The petition is from residents on the southerly portion of Williams Avenue north of Foothill Boulevard. The area is currently unincorporated, but the residents there wish to join the other Piedmont Mesa residents in annexation proceedings with the city of Claremont.

Claremont officials requested that the Williams Avenue residents seek release from the Pomona sphere of influence — a designation given unincorporated areas adjacent to municipalities so that land usage, zoning and similar matters remain compatible — before joining in the annexation effort.

The other matter scheduled for the study session is a report on the adjudication of the Chino Basin water rights.

For 3 board seats

Nine candidates vie in Ontario

Nine candidates, including three incumbents, have filed for election to the Ontario-Montclair School District board of trustees in Tuesday's balloting.

The incumbents are Rose Kelber, Cliff Donaldson and Reta Spencer. The challengers are Mark R. Noel Jr., Dakota D. Baker, Kathleen Brugger, William E. Hennie, Oswaldo Marrujo and Pamela D. Gransbury.

Mrs. Kelber, a La Verne College graduate, is the wife of Dr. William J. Kelber, local veterinarian. They have five grown children. Mrs. Kelber has been involved in PTA's for 25 years, serving in all offices of the PTA's of Vina Danks Junior High School, Chaffey High School and the Ontario-Montclair Council.

"There must be a continued restructuring within the school curriculum to meet the needs of the basic elements of education that are necessary for our children to become responsible citizens within the community," Mrs. Kelber says. "The foundation of our educational system must continue to be based on increasing reading skills. In order to accomplish this, there must be intelligent application by the legislature of the Serrano-Priest decision.

Mrs. Spencer, the mother of three, has lived in Ontario for 20 years and has been active in various PTA groups and the Chaffey High School Advisory Council.

"One of the most important educational issues facing the district is community involvement," Mrs. Spencer says. "By involving business men and women in planning and evaluating the career education program and helping to identify the essential communication skills that should be emphasized in English, mathematics, science and social studies, we can prepare the student more completely for the world outside of the schools."

Donaldson, the third incumbent, is the father of five. He is chief security officer at Chaffey College and owner of Donaldson Janitorial Services. He has been active in PTA's and various youth and community organizations. He has served as chairman of the board of trustees of the Ontario Friendship Baptist Church and a member of the American Red Cross advisory committee.

"I believe the most important thing is to maintain uninterrupted quality education," Donaldson says. "I am greatly concerned whenever it is interrupted. I am aware of the burden of taxes and will continue to try for economical and effective education in the school district."

Candidate Marrujo, father of two, is a senior psychiatric technician at Pacific State Hospital where he has worked for 17 years. Marrujo has been involved with numerous community organizations and is currently chairman of the Ontario planning commission.

ROSE KELBER

DAKOTA BAKER

"I am running for school board because there is a need for representation from the lay community," Marrujo says. "As a school board member I would like to implement an educational philosophy to provide a climate where the community as a whole is able to participate more actively and knowledgeably. The educational process should involve all segments of the community, which means we should set up a community network where parents, community, teachers and students could participate."

Baker, a veteran of seven years in the Navy, is now attending Chaffey College. He has three children and is a member of the Naval Reserve.

"The basic fundamentals of education are being neglected," he says, "and much-needed monies are being diverted which causes some educational programs to shut down."

If elected, Baker said, he would investigate the textbook shortage which "shortchanges" the children, examine the merging of the Ontario-Montclair School District and the Chaffey High School District for the benefit of the people, and seek deeper and more honest communication between the administration and the teachers.

Mrs. Brugger, a Cal Poly graduate, says "My main purpose in running is to bring a fresh perspective to the board. If elected I will work toward placing the needs of children first — allocating more money for each child's books book fund, reinstating budget cuts for nurses and nurses' aides, and making board members more accessible to the public."

The other three candidates for school board had not responded to the Progress-Bulletin questionaire by press time.

In Remembrance Of "Jerry"

When I must leave you for a little while, Please do not grieve and shed wild tears And hug your sorrow to you through the years, But start out bravely with a gallant smile; And for my sake and in my name Live on and do all things the same, Feed not your loneliness on empty days, But fill each waking hour in useful ways, Reach out your hand in comfort and in cheer And I in turn will comfort you and hold you near; And never, never be afraid to die, For I am waiting for you in the sky!

CLAY BRYANT
FOR MAYOR

as MAYOR OF POMONA — this is CLAY BRYANT'S PLAN:

POMONA has PROBLEMS — CLAY BRYANT HAS A PLAN!

The Problems:

The City of Pomona has suffered from neglect and has been allowed to deteriorate to a point of public embarrassment. Let's look at our City:

1. Most Pomona residents work outside of Pomona and must commute to work. If the wife must work, a sitter must be hired to care for small children. LITTLE OPPORTUNITY FOR EMPLOYMENT EXISTS IN POMONA.

2. THE YOUTH OF OUR COMMUNITY HAVE NO HOPE OF CAREER OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYMENT. On-the-job training programs are either few or non-existent. Youth potential for constructive contribution is channeled toward other outlets, usually with unhealthy and sad results.

3. Residents are afraid to leave their homes for fear of burglaries and muggings. OUR NEIGHBORHOODS ARE NOT SAFE EITHER DAY OR NIGHT.

4. OUR POLICE FORCE HAS BEEN NEGLECTED to the point that it is undermanned and the morale is low. Police response to calls is so delayed criminals have left by the time police arrive in response to a citizens' call for service.

5. EMPLOYEE MORALE HAS BEEN AFFECTED TO THE POINT THAT CITY SERVICE SUFFERS. Threats and use of fear tactics by management have caused the departure of irreplaceable public employes. Employees have been forced into bargaining units because of management inflexibility.

6. CITY/SCHOOL RELATIONSHIPS ARE NON-PRODUCTIVE. The public desire for quality education and smaller class size is not receiving the deserved attention.

7. A COLD SHOULDER GREETS ANY OPPORTUNITY FOR NEW COMMERCE OR INDUSTRY. No inducement is offered to locate new industry and jobs in Pomona. Commerce by-passes Pomona and Revenues flow to smaller, but more cooperative neighboring cities.

THESE THINGS ARE HAPPENING BECAUSE OF NEGLECT AND LACK OF LEADERSHIP!

EMPLOYMENT AND CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Direct effort will be made by Clay Bryant to attract new industry and commerce to Pomona, including career and training opportunities for our youth. Accomodations and inducements will be extended to job providers to make Pomona a profitable location in which to conduct a business.

NEIGHBORHOOD SECURITY

Pomona citizens will be provided a police reserve made up of eligible Pomona residents. A trained police reserve of citizens residing in the neighborhoods, and sworn to keep the peace, would dispel many neighborhood fears and deter crime. As vacancies occur in the Pomona Police Department, the qualified trained Reserve Officer would have the first opportunity for full time employment. (Clay Bryant recommended this to our present Police Chief.)

POMONA POLICE RESPONSE TIME

The Pomona Police Department will be returned to effective strength. Station duty by police officers will be minimized to allow full field strength for more immediate response to citizen's calls for service.

EMPLOYEE MORALE AND SERVICE

City employees will be free to work in a climate of service efficiency. Improved working conditions, salaries and supervision will enhance employees dedication to the public need. Each resident deserves the courtesy and service which dedicated and respected public employees provide.

CITY/COURTS RELATIONSHIPS

City interaction with the courts and the District Attorney's office regarding dispositioning of offenders will be part of Clay Bryant's activity. Clay Bryant will solicit public attitudes and convey this information to the responsible entities.

CITY/SCHOOL RELATIONSHIPS

A joint City/School effort will be formulated in an attempt to assure citizen satisfaction with the education process. Clay Bryant will assume a supportive role in the system to achieve greater student accomplishment through quality education and restricted class size. Clay Bryant believes that teachers should be free to function to their highest level of performance.

SENIOR CITIZENS CONCERN

Clay Bryant will endeavor to establish a program of morning calls by the Fire Department, to participating Senior Citizens, to verify the health and well-being from day to day of Senior Citizens, concerned about their security.

These things will ONLY happen when YOU elect CLAY BRYANT — Mayor of Pomona!

12 vie in Chaffey school election

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Overcrowded schools, increased graduation requirements, more traditional classes and the question of whether teachers should have the right to strike appear to be the main issues in the March 8 school board election race in the Chaffey Joint Union High School District.

Twelve candidates, including two incumbents, are vying for three positions on the board. John Schnepp, a school board member since 1972, is not seeking re-election.

Those seeking election are Robert C. Beam, a teacher; Frank Andrew Brown, a college student; Ralph F. Langley, a self-employed businessman; Excell N. Hunter, a municipal administrator; Clifford M. Sumrall, a college professor; Maxine M. Curtis, a homemaker.

More candidates are Martha T. Chapman, an incumbent and homemaker; Charles J. Uhalley, an attorney; G. A. Chalfant, incumbent school board president and local business executive; William C. Draper, former Chaffey board member now retired; Paul J. Gomez, a municipal administrator; and Patrick A. McHugh, an electronics firm manager.

Beam, 27, 7340 Via Serena, Cucamonga, has resided in the Chaffey district most of his life. He and his wife, Alice, have two children.

Beam advocates more traditional classes. "English, history, mathematics and science are so basic to all learning that any talk of not teaching them must be considered idiotic, not liberal." He believes teachers should be allowed to strike, that discipline at the schools needs improvement, and that the "scramble system" should be abolished.

Brown, 18, 611 W. F St., Ontario, is a student at Cal Poly majoring in education.

Brown believes overcrowded schools are a real problem and that "year-round school may be an answer." He says, "Teachers have as much right to strike as do students to walk out of class." And he feels truancies are costing the district thousands of dollars every year. "Tighten truancy penalties," he says.

Langley, 50, 389 Fremont St., Upland, has resided in the area for five years. He and his wife, Maria, have two grown daughters.

Langley is in favor of a return to the basics, but believes some students might be better served by vocational courses. "Graduation requirements must be increased," he says. He believes school strikes can be avoided by teachers and administrators sitting down and discussing matters of concern "in a rational manner."

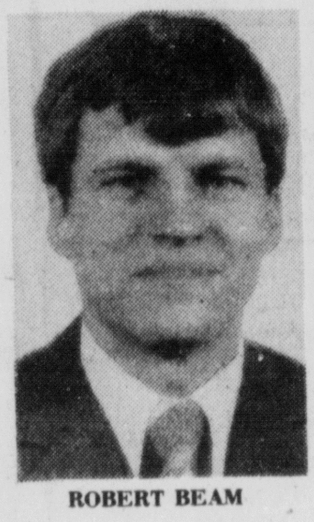

Hunter, 35, 442 N. Second Ave., Upland, and his wife, Dina, have two daughters. Hunter is working on his master's degree in public administration.

He believes in increasing graduation requirements to 220 units and reducing the number of electives allowed. "I believe teachers should be allowed to strike." But in the case of "unwarranted strikes," he would see that teachers were disciplined. He also views overcrowding at Alta Loma High School as a serious problem.

Sumrall, 44, 6582 Pear Ave., Etiwanda, teaches speech at Chaffey College. He and his wife, Laura, have four children. The family has resided in the area three years.

Sumrall believes electives have their value but a ratio must be balanced. He says teachers should have the right to strike, believes in "in service" training for school teachers, and says overcrowding of students is a major problem. He suggests year-round school as a possible solution to overcrowding.

Maxine Curtis, 39, 1672 Redding Way, Upland, has resided in the area 10 years. She and her husband, Donald, have three children.

"Classes stressing basic skills must always be available and required," says Mrs. Curtis. She believes discipline is a serious problem, that teachers should not be allowed to strike, and that phonetics, spelling, grammar and vocabulary building must be emphasized. "We have every right to expect far better performance in the schools," she says.

Martha T. Chapman, 59, 210 W. Sixth St., , Ontario, has resided in the area most of her life. She and her husband, Elwood, have two grown sons.

Mrs. Chapman believes in the teaching of "basics," but says there should be a variety of learning environments available to students. She feels students have the right to graduate with "marketable skills," that teachers should not be allowed to strike "under any circumstances," and that practical experiences should be emphasized.

Uhalley, 32, 9426, Apricot St., Alta Loma, and his wife, Connie, have resided in the area for six years. They have one child.

Uhalley is in favor of "a more structured program with greater emphasis on academic subject matter." He believes teachers do have the right to strike, but that it "should be the last measure ever taken to solve a labor dispute." Uhalley also believes in increased graduation requirements and a return to a six-period day.

Chalfant, 58, 1544 Bonita Court, Ontario, has resided in the area for 20 years. He has one grown daughter.

Chalfant views overcrowding in the schools as one of the most pressing problems facing the district. "We must resolve this issue within the next year," he states. Chalfant favors increased graduation requirements, achievement levels for students before they can graduate, and a solid foundation in basic subjects. "I do not believe the right to strike should be extended to teacher organization," he says.

Gomez, 33, 156 N. Tulare Way, Upland, and his wife, Ortencia, have resided in

Upland four years. They have one daughter.

"Approximately 52 per cent of the semester hours required to graduate are so-called electives," says Gomez. "Greater emphasis should be placed on academic subjects." He believes teachers do not have the right to strike, explains declining reading scores among students as due to schools becoming more "media oriented," and advocates more student and parent participation in in curriculum planning.

Draper, 64, 118 E. I St., Ontario, is an ex-Chaffey school board member. He and his wife, Joyce, have resided in the area for 18 years. They have two grown children.

Draper believes, "Students should not be passed from grade to grade just for good attendance." He also says teachers should not be allowed to strike under any circumstances, that educational standards should be raised and that the district needs to emphasise reading, writing and arithmetic.

McHugh, 24, 636 Montezuma St., Ontario, has lived in the area for six months. He and his wife, Barbara, have a one-year-old daughter.

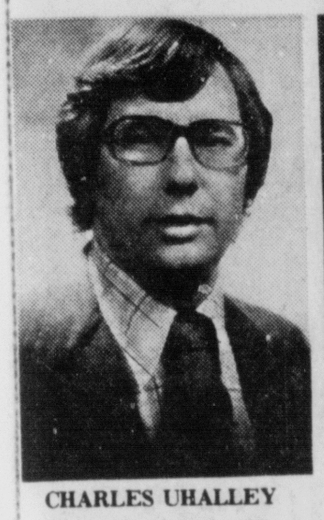

McHugh believes students need " a heavier classload in the areas of civic awareness and social consciousness." He says basics are necessary for some students, but that electives are important. He also supports continued vocational education programs and wants to reach "the marginally successful students."

Absentee ballots due

Voters casting absentee ballots on Tuesday must have them in the hands of voting officials by the time the polls close at 8 p.m. if they are to be counted.

The absentee ballots may be mailed to offices of county registrars or personally delivered to any polling place.

Valid reasons for voting by absent ballot include absence from a neighborhood precinct on election day, inability to go to a polling place because of disability or religious belief, or residence 10 or more miles from a given polling place.

March 1 was the deadline for receiving absentee ballots, which much be requested in person from the registrar or voters.

Absentee ballots are counted right along with regular ballots.

Enrollment decline concern in Chaffey

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The decline in enrollment in the face of increased population within the district is a prime concern of the candidates for two seats on the Chaffey College board of trustees in the Tuesday election.

There are nine candidates for the seats, including the two incumbents. Four of the candidates are residents of the Corona-Norco area which was annexed to the district in a special election last year.

The incumbents are Mrs. Georgia W. Mellon, of Upland, a member of the board for 17 years, and Dr. Merle K. Cox, Upland dentist, who has served 12 years.

Candidates from the Norco and Corona area are Charles E. Rector and Dale D. Borgen of Corona and Sharon Jeffers and William A. Russell Jr. of Norco.

Other candidates are Kenneth C. Ketner, Ontario businessman, William H. Thompson of Fontana and John L. Botkin of Cucamonga.

Seven of the nine candidates appeared at a forum Wednesday night in the Upland High School cafeteria sponsored by the Ontario-Upland Branch of the American Association of University Women.

The audience of 25 was comprised of spouses and campaign workers.

Russell was not present at the forum but did submit a statement to the Progress Bulletin. Rector did not attend the forum or submit a statement to the newspaper.

Borgen, a business representative for the Pacific Telephone Co., is a graduate of the University of South Carolina now working on his master's degree at Pepperdine University.

"The first time I even heard about Chaffey College was when I read my tax bill," Borgen said. "The college needs to extend itself into the new areas of the district to serve the taxpayers."

Borgen said that the courses which are now being offered at a Corona center are not "meat" courses which fill the demand for quality education in basic subjects.

Borgen said board members should be limited to two terms. He also said, during a question period, that teachers might be allowed to strike.

"After all, they're human," he said.

Botkin, a real estate associate, is concerned over what he feels are inadequate provisions for the developmentally disabled and other special groups.

"There must be an increase in evening classes to better serve members of the community and the vocational guidance curriculum should be re-evaluated," Botkin said.

"The needs of the students must be listened to and evaluated," Botkin added. "We need new ideas."

Botkin feels that if the public is satisfied with trustees, there need be no limit to terms served. He said the teachers and staff appeared to be well paid. "You can't jeopardize education by strikes," he added.

Dr. Cox defended the board's program of meeting the need for more classes in the Corona and Norco areas.

"We have been faced with problems in finding adequate facilities in the area," he said. "We think this has been resolved and will meet our commitments in the community."

Dr. Cox said that the voters can replace a trustee simply by voting him out of office.

"When considering salaries for staff and faculty members, the board must also consider the overall budget and the taxpayer," Dr. Cox said. "We feel that salaries are in line. Strikes by teachers have been declared illegal and I would uphold the law."

Mrs. Jeffers has completed two degrees in law and plans to take her bar examinations this summer.

"We have many potential students in the area who need to be served," said Mrs. Jeffers. "More and better transporation to the main campus in Alta Loma is just as vital as classes offered in the local area.

"Many people in the community have told me that they feel two terms on the board is long enough," she added.

"I don't believe in striking, we must uphold the law," Mrs. Jeffers said. "Our first obligation is to the student, to his right to an education."

Ketner, an investment consultant, feels that his background in business management is not now represented on the board.

"It bothers me when I see the community expanding but the college not drawing the students in," said Ketner. "We need better community relations and to actively go after the enrollment."

Ketner could see no reason for specifically setting a limit to the number of terms a board member should serve but added "we need new ideas and commitments."

"No one is happy with less salary than requested, but trustees must follow guidelines and pay what is justified," Ketner said.

Mrs. Mellon feels the board must continue to provide top-quality, well-paid instructors in spite of a decline in enrollment and income.

Graphoanalyst

Letters 'spell' clerk's hobby

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Kitty Cicerone pegged Lee Harvey Oswald as a twisted man without ever meeting him. She helped investigate former Teamster boss Jimmy Hoffa, again sight-unseen.

Because of her success, friends don't write to her any more.

She's a postoffice clerk whose hobby of handwriting analysis drew her into several news-making investigations while she was living in Washington.

One of the investigations was of the assassination of President Kennedy. She was given a sample of handwriting to study, but she didn't know whose it was.

"He was a warped man, a mean man," she said her study revealed. Later, she learned that Oswald wrote the sample she analyzed.

She was also on a panel of experts that reviewed Hoffa's records.

Mrs. Cicerone became interested in handwriting analysis through a book she took along on a vacation trip. She later took an 18-week course in graphoanalysis — the more technical term for her hobby.

She doesn't like to see graphoanalysis lumped with palm reading or crystal-ball gazing. It's not a parlor trick or a pseudo-science, she says.

"More and more people are recognizing this as a science," Mrs. Cicerone said. "It's used in police work, to detect frauds. Employers use it to screen applicants.

"The mind tells the fingers what to do, so it's close communication.

"In Europe, it's much more popular. Why, it's almost impossible there to get a job without handwriting analysis."

She said she reads personality from the way a writer slants letters and shapes them, the weight or pressure of handwriting and special characteristics.

"If there are tremors in the writing, that immediately shoots up a red flag," she said. "You look for a person on drugs or an alcoholic. But if it's an elderly person, the tremors don't have the same significance."

Among those whose handwriting she has analyzed is Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw: "Concentration ability, excellent team worker, physical dexterity, independent, practical minded, financial interests, but needs training in this area, sense of humor, relies heavily on fact, sometimes sells himself short."

A side effect of her avocation, she said, is that her friends no longer write to her. "They used to scribble little messages on Christmas cards and things, now they don't. Or they type it."

Rape suspect nailed after chase by angry citizens

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A screaming victim who claimed she was raped and chased a knife-wielding man down a busy San Francisco street was joined by pedestrians who helped disarm and capture the alleged attacker, police said.

Police said William Snyder, 21, was booked for investigation of rape, attempted robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Officers said he allegedly posed as a smoke alarm salesman to enter the apartment of a 29-year-old woman Monday afternoon. The victim told police he raped her at knifepoint and fled with her wallet in one hand and a kitchen knife in the other.

With the screaming woman on his trail, the man ran down the crowded Union Street shopping area. There he was tackled by Alan Bridges, 34, who was stabbed in the leg in the struggle.

The man got up and continued running, with Monique Bertrand, 23, and Terry Neely, a 20-year-old former Marine sergeant, taking up the chase.

Waving the knife, the man darted in and around afternoon shoppers as he fled down the street. Police said Neely led the posse that grew to more than a dozen angry citizens during the two-block sprint.

Neely was the first to catch up with the man. Police said Neely stripped off his wide leather belt and used it to snap the knife from the man's hand, then tackled him.

ber stamp and am always open to new ideas," said Mrs. Mellon in defending her many years on the board. "This is not a paying job. Experience is a commitment of time and it takes experience to participate in the statewide educational programs."

Mrs. Mellon said that the board had hoped to enlarge to seven members, assuring better representation from the broad area in the district, but the voters rejected the enlargement at a recent election.

Thompson, a Fontana resident, said there should still be a way to assure better representation of the community in the planning at Chaffey College where he is taking classes since his retirement.

"We limit the President of the United States to two terms, so why not limit a board of trustee member to the same?"

Thompson is concerned that students' ideas are not being considered by the board.

He also feels that teachers have a right to strike if necessary but added "no one wins in a strike."

Russell, too, is concerned over the decline in enrollment and feels that the problem could be overcome with the addition of more vocational classes.

He also feels that veterans' programs should be increased by Congress.

Chaffey College needs to increase its services to the community it serves and provide additional training for the youth and unemployed, Russell added.

He is a manufacturing engineering planned and member of the Unitec Aerospace Worker Union.

In the September of our years

Fate works to rekindle a 60-year romance . . .

. . . Chino couple finds happiness, trade vows

Fate works in strange ways, but for Jose and Mary Diaz, former Chino residents, it took its sweet time. Jose, 80, and Mary, 72, had dated each other as teen-agers. Both married someone else, however, first-time around. Friday was a different story as the couple exchanged wedding vows 60 years later. Jose's 10-month-old great-granddaughter, Josepha Primavera Baca, right, found the happy festivities slightly bewildering.

Hits taxpayers

Alcohol abuse costs soaring

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Homeowners in the valley are forking up an average of $45 in property taxes this year to help pay for the care, control and rehabilitation of alcoholics in Los Angeles County.

The estimate comes from a task force report over the signature of Harry L. Hufford, the county's chief administration officer. It shows that about 455,000 residents of the county, including about 13,000 of the valley, drink to excess, and that by the end of the current fiscal year, alcohol abuse in its various forms, will cost the county more than $150 million.

The report is expected to be submitted to the county's Alcoholism Advisory Board Monday for study and recommendations. It will then go to the county Board of Supervisors.

Kathleen D'Anna, a specialist in Hufford's justice system's division who headed the task force, said the cost projections do not take into account revenue derived from the use of alcohol.

She pointed out that the state excise tax alone yields the county more than $58 million a year — a third of the cost — and that state sales taxes and federal excise tax returns, for which there are no estimates, defray expenses further.

But Mrs. D'Anna admitted that everyone who buys liquor, not just the alcoholics, has to pay those taxes.

According to the estimates on expenses, the county spends 60 cents of its $4.46 tax rate — about 12½ cents out of every dollar — trying to fight the alcoholism problem of the county which has been called an "epidemic" by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

Hahn charged that the excessive alcohol consumption is a "crisis in Los Angeles County where its misuse is increasing and is becoming a growing burden to taxpayers."

"The problem is," Hahn contended, "that most of the affected drinkers are often unable to provide for their own medical care, food and housing and must come to the government for assistance."

He called for a reduction in the number of problem drinkers and "a great awareness of the pitfalls that can result from excessive drinking, such as loss of jobs, families, friends, self-esteem and good health."

The report estimated that 6½ per cent of the county's seven million residents — about 455,000 persons — are problem drinkers.

Projecting the same percentage to the 200,000 persons who live on the Los Angeles County side of the valley would indicate there are 13,000 problem drinkers here, not including those who reside in the West End of San Bernardino County.

For the owner of a home valued at $30,000 and assessed at $7,500, the cost of dealing with the alcoholism problem is running $45 this year, and a seven per cent increase is projected for next year.

But the problem, according to the task force report, is reflected in many other ways:

—The county health department contends that up to 50 per cent of all cases of tuberculosis have some alcohol related problems.

—About 35 per cent of the criminal cases in Municipal Court and 13 per cent in Superior Court involve alcoholism.

—About 15.5 per cent of violent deaths investigated by the coroner's office are reported as having been caused at least partially by excessive drinking.

—Ninety per cent of all "high grade" traffic offenses are directly attributable to alcohol misuse.

The public defender reports that 52.5 per cent of all the cases his staff defended last year had their basis in drunkenness.

—More than 11 per cent of all welfare recipients have an alcohol problem.

—According to the report, 17.4 per cent of all those who go to jail are either drunk or drunk drivers. The sheriff says his deputies arrested 9,151 persons for drinking and 9,382 persons for alleged drunk driving during 1975.

—The task force says there was a total of 15,940 licenses issued in 1975 by the Alcoholic Beverage Control to Los Angeles County business establishments for the sale of alcoholic beverages.

—The largest amount of money spent on alcoholism last year was $47,641,000 by the public social services. Next was $43,411,000 by the county health services.

Students discount social work myths

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

March has been designated as National Social Work Month to salute the profession.

Social services majors at Cal Poly Pomona hope the month also serves to better explain their profession and put down some of the myths.

"Social work involves more than just handing out welfare checks, a popular but false notion," says senior Judy J. Flores.

"Social work not only encompasses the one-to-one contact between client and worker but also involves knowledge of policy, administration and intervention in the legislative process," adds Mrs. Flores.

Social service covers all fields from adoption to suicide prevention services. Professional workers help the aged, children, the disadvantages, handicapped, minorities, drug abusers, mentally ill, law violators and unwed mothers.

New emphasis in the field is now being placed on gerontology, school counseling, grief and bereavement counseling, Mrs. Flores says.

Cal Poly Pomona is among the colleges and universities offering accredited programs in social work which combine a general and specialized academic background with on-the-job experience.

Students are assigned to various field placements through San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties. Students function in social work roles in adoption agencies, child welfare and child protection service agencies, drug abuse, counseling centers, family service agencies and correctional facilities.

At present, Cal Poly social services majors are gaining practical job experience as interns at Casa Colina Hospital, Boys' Republic, Le Roy's Boys Home in La Verne, South Hills Neighborhood Service Center and the San Gabriel Valley Regional Center for the Developmentally Disabled.

Typical of the seniors working in the field before graduating in June is Mrs. Mary Ann Teagle, a widow who returned to college after the death of her husband.

"I'm working at least eight hours a week at the Voorman Psychiatric-Medical Clinic in Upland to gain experience I'll need," said Mrs. Teagle.

"My experience as a mother and the head of a household gives me an insight into the problems of others."

The students, on the whole, serve without pay although a few receive either a token payment or compensation for the use of their cars.

"There are many new programs and legislation that are affecting the field a great deal," says Mrs. Flores. "These include the Supplementary Security Income and new services to the aging, the potential development of a national health insurance program and the expansion of services in public education.

"Also, expanding programs in mental health and the stress on community health problems involves the social services profession," adds the student.

Mrs. Flores says that a projection of educational distribution of social workers suggests that there will be some 122,000 new openings in the next decade.

The Associated Social Services Student Organization at Cal Poly not only offers students the opportunity to socialize and to exchange ideas with faculty members, it provides information concerning what's going on off campus.

Chino police chief 'raps' gang report

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A report from the state Attorney General's investigative branch that gang violence on Chino streets is not primarily related to prison gangs or drug trafficking has brought criticism from Chino Police Chief Jerry Doyle.

"We have never contended that ex-convicts have a great influence on the Chino Sinners gang. But we know it is still there," he said.

Doyle referred to a conclusion issued by state Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger through the office of state Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-Chino. This followed an extensive investigation by the attorney general's office after two members of an anti-vandalism patrol at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church were fatally shot on May 17, 1976.

Sen. Ayala sought the investigation based on information from reliable sources that former inmates were remaining in the area, dealing in drugs and contributing to Chino's criminal problems.

In concluding the investigation Younger wrote Ayala that "The criminal gang problems in the Chino area do not stem primarily from prison related drug traffic or prison gangs.

"The primary source of this activity is the Chino Sinners gang. This is a long-established, local group comprised primarily of Chino natives. Although many older members have been in prison, it is not believed their criminal activities are either directed by or closely connected with the major prison gangs or prison drug traffic."

When asked for comment on the report, Chief Doyle said "I am sure the Attorney General did a complete and exhaustive investigation and we appreciate it. But we know the influence of the prison gangs is still there because of the many ex-cons in the Sinners gang.

'One of the leaders of the Sinners, Ernest Miguel Garcia, an ex-con, is awaiting preliminary hearing on a murder charge stemming from a killing in January in Chino," said Doyle.

"I feel there is a connection, but perhaps it is more subtle than we thought."

Vote no on Proposition A

Most north Diamond Bar householders will probably vote Tuesday in favor of transferring to the Walnut School District. We can understand their desire to have both north and south Diamond Bar children attending the same school district. It makes some sense.

But it makes no sense at all for north Diamond Bar to pull out of the Pomona Unified School District in order to accomplish unification.

There are good reasons, in our opinion, for all voters in the Pomona and Walnut school districts to vote no on the proposed transfer

For one thing, we don't believe that Walnut schools can adequately accommodate the hundreds of students who would be added to their schools by the transfer.

For another, withdrawal of Diamond Bar students from Ganesha High School in Pomona would leave that school racially imbalanced. Also, the withdrawal of some 400 students would leave Ganesha High School's enrollment so low that a comprehensive curriculum would be difficult if not impossible to maintain. In such case, a redistricting of Pomona's three public high schools would be a distinct possibility in order to balance the student bodies.

For all of these reasons, we recommend a no vote on Proposition A in Tuesday's election.

As we said earlier, we agree that unification of north and south Diamond Bar into the same school district is desirable.

Over the years the Pomona school district has made a firm commitment to the people of north Diamond Bar and consequently has constructed three elementary and one junior high school in Diamond Bar. All are excellent plants.

With preliminary and unofficial negotiations now going on between the Pomona school district and developers of Diamond Bar and Phillips ranch property it is possible that a high school plant could evolve in the next two or three years.

One that is centrally located could easily serve both north and south Diamond Bar, providing the latter community voted to join the Pomona district. It's worth pursuing since the Walnut school district has no plans in the works for a high school in the south part of Diamond Bar even though it has owned a site there for years.

School board choices Monday

Pomona is the only valley city holding its municipal election on Tuesday at the same time all communities are electing school board members.

It's the municipal primary election in Pomona for the purpose of determining whether there will be a runoff in April for mayor and second and third district councilman.

If any of the candidates receives a majority of the votes cast in his contest he will be elected in the primary. Lacking a majority, the two top contenders in each race will square off in the general election in April. At that election voters will also select a councilman for the third district to replace Charles Bader, who resigned in order to run for mayor.

Voters in the communities surrounding Pomona will also be going to the polls on Tuesday to select their local school district and community college board members.

Pomona voters will also vote for school board members and on whether north Diamond Bar will remain in the Pomona school district. Walnut voters are doing the same thing and in addition are being asked to approve an increase in the general fund tax rate.

The Progress Bulletin does not normally endorse candidates in primary elections and this year is no exception. However, this newspaper's recommendations for the various school board races will appear on the editorial page in Monday's edition.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

After we've passed through some ordeal that has ruled us for a time, we often stop and question why. Why did we have to experience this thing? Was it so necessary to our growth that we suffer indignities and frustrations that seem to cling long after we're past the tangle? Were we so dumb that we couldn't see the light? The questions go on — and self respect suffers more than a little.

There is a season to every thing. We do at the moment what we have the strength and courage and wisdom to do. There's a time to weep and a time to laugh, a time to get and a time to lose, and it takes time to get over the things we do not understand. Even those most innocent must forgive themselves that they allowed trespasses on their souls. And one day the questions vanish and there's an inner singing — like a tree full of robins to celebrate it.

League explains position

Dear Editor:

The League of Women Voters of Claremont cannot allow Roger Wells' letter of Feb. 27 to go unanswered.

Mr. Wells said that the recent bond election held by the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District (PVMWD) was defeated because of the League's opposition to it. We are flattered that Mr. Wells thinks that the League has such influence — not bad for a group of "pliant" women (his term not ours.)

May we review some matters concerning the 1975 bond issue and some of the consequences of its defeat. The League has never suggested that it was opposed to any and all water projects. It was opposed to the extravagant, property tax financed project that PVMWD proposed. Are citizens merely to accept any water project offered by PVMWD? Certainly not. As a consequence of the defeat PVMWD is now looking at alternative projects. In a recent publication they list 18 such alternatives under consideration. The defeat of the bond issue has also encouraged PVMWD to hold several public meetings to discuss these alternatives as well as other water matters. The defeat has also caused the PVMWD to discuss some strategies for the conservation of water in Pomona Valley.

Let us suppose that the bond issue had been successful and, for the sake of argument, suppose that it had been built overnight (actual scheduled completion date was 1980). Where does Mr. Wells think the water would be coming from? Remember these projects don't produce water — they simply pump and distribute it. As of March 1, Northern California water (that water to have been used in the PVMWD project!) is no longer available to this area for the duration of the drought. PVMWD would have had a several million dollar pumping station, pumping air.

The League has continued its interest in water since the defeat of the bond issue. We have met with the PVMWD several times in public meetings, have met with our representative on the water board about some of our concerns, suggested a water task force to the PVMWD and to Claremont, (a suggestion that was implemented by Claremont) have had an observer at PVMWD board meetings, continued our efforts to urge PVMWD and Southern California Water Co. to encourage their customers to conserve water, have testified at the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) hearings for Southern California Water Co. in November in support of Claremont's suggestions for peak pricing and pumping charges, and have urged the PUC to instruct Southern California Water to use more than a public relations campaign on conservation.

It is true, as Mr. Wells claims, that many League members are not experts in water engineering or hydrology. What we are experts at, however, is analyzing legislation — using a multi-disciplinary approach to problems, informing the voters, and studying the issues. Fortunately for us, this country is not run by the "experts" that Mr. Wells would like to see in charge. Projects, such as water projects, transit systems, etc., usually need a vote of the people. It is up to civic groups such as the League to bring its information to bear on pertinent issues.

Supporting and opposing issues as the League does is not engaging in partisan politics. We deal with issues not individuals. Many groups such as the Chamber of Commerce, PTA, and Claremont also take positions on issues. There were many people from all political parties that supported and opposed the 1975 water bond issue.

Opposes new canal treaty

Dear Editor:

President Carter is promoting a new Panama treaty which would give control over the Panama Canal to the Marxist, anti-American Torrijos regime. General Omar Torrijos Herrera; if you remember, is an unelected dictator who took control of Panama by force not by election by the people.

The loss of the control of the Panama Canal would be disastrous to our military security besides its importance to our foreign trade tonnage. The people of the United States bought, paid for and built it. We acquired rights of possession, use and control in perpetuity, which rights constitute ownership and sovereignty under any reasonable interpretation. The Supreme Court settled the question of the legality of United States sovereignty through its 1907 decision in Wilson v. Shaw, 204 U.S. 24 (1907).

It is up to we the people to notify President Carter, Congressmen and Senators that we must keep full ownership and control of America's Panama Canal and they must oppose any new Panama Canal treaty.

Discipline no problem

Dear Editor:

As a concerned member of the staff at Marshall Junior High School in Pomona I would like to correct the erroneous ideas which could result from the stories you have published concerning the possible stationing of a uniformed police officer on our campus.

Discipline at Marshall is excellent and the conditions which might cause this use of a police officer are external to the school and are created by outside agents.

Uncle Sam owes trillions

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam's credit around the world is as good as gold. Yet our federal uncle has run up a staggering "contingent liability" that could jeopardize government-guaranteed loans, pensions and insurance benefits.

The federal government has dangerously overextended itself by the inconceivable sum of $6.4 trillion. This outlandish figure is the sum total of all federal benefit payments, loan guarantees and insurance programs. The lion's share, a whopping $4.6 trillion, is the amount the government is obligated to pay in federal pension benefits.

It is unlikely, of course, that this enormous obligation would ever come due at once. But a national calamity could create such a demand on the government that it might not be able to meet its commitments. Just 5 per cent of the liability, if it should suddenly become due, would cost the Treasury $85 billion.

But the real danger is the constant, spectacular increase of this "contingent liability." It has soared an astounding 100.7 per cent just since 1971. And no end is in sight.

The government has also lost control of the pension deficit. In the last four years, the deficit has soared from $251 billion to the frightening $4.6 trillion. This means the government owes $4.6 trillion more in pensions than it collects in its retirement funds.

Rep. Charles Vanik, D.-Ohio, is deeply alarmed over this perilous financial situation. He told us that the "contingent liability" is not even considered part of the federal budget. So he is drafting legislation to force Congress to include this huge obligation in its budget estimates.

Somehow the public debt must be controlled; otherwise, a financial calamity is looming ahead.

GLOMAR EXPLORER: Two years ago, we broke the astonishing story that the Central Intelligence agency and the Howard Hughes organization had joined forces to hoist a sunken Soviet submarine, or at least part of it, off the bottom of the Pacific. Now we have learned from the Howard Hughes appers that the late billionaire tried to turn the taxpayers' investment into a profit for himself.

The amazing submarine feat was achieved by a giant claw which was lowered three miles to the ocean floor. With TV cameras for eyes, the great claw clamped hold of the sunken sub and lifted it slowly to the surface. According to some reports, the sub broke apart and the largest section plunged back to the bottom.

We also reported that the secret venture cost the taxpayers an enormous $400 million, more than twice the cost of the Hoover Dam. Yet the retrieved sub was 18 years old, obsolete and, therefore, nothing more than a curiosity piece. We questioned whether it was worth $400 million to fish out of the Pacific a plaything for the admirals.

The secret Hughes papers indicate this didn't trouble Hughes. He instructed his attorney, Chester Davis, to study the possibility of exploiting the deep-sea claw for commercial purposes. The attorney suggested in a March 26, 1974, memo that the Glomar Explorer, as the great claw was called, might be used for mining the ocean bottom or laying undersea oil pipelines.

Davis described the Glomar Explorer as "the most sophisticated deep-sea mining ship afloat." In a cryptic reference to the submarine recovery, he suggested that the "accomplishment of its primary mission within three or four months should prove the feasibility of recovering (manganese) nodules at those depths."

He noted: "We are way ahead of anyone else, through the Hughes Glomar Explorer, in having developed a technique for deep ocean recovery . . . There is no question but that this deep ocean mining has very attractive possibilities."

As another commercial use, Davis also suggested the possibility of "laying underwater pipelines, which may have a serious interest from the major oil companies."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Using his congressional letterhead, Rep. Manuel Lujan, R.-N.M., has mounted a fund-raising campaign for a pro-hunting group called the National Association of Property Owners.

In his vivid letter, the congressman tells how "hundreds of starving deer . . . wander into towns" from New Jersey's Great Swamp and "die of starvation, leaving the rotting bodies as health hazards."

Unfortunately, Nimrod Lujan's "hundreds" of deer appear to be a fish story. The Fund for Animals says there have been only 20 cases of deer starvation and that the herd of deer totals only 385.

As to starvation, hunters stormed into the swamp in 1974, allegedly to kill the deer so they would not starve, but autopsies showed 90 percent of the 63 deer killed were in fine health.

Lujan admitted to us that he had no figures to substantiate his letter. "I may have exaggerated a bit," he told us.

— Transportation Secretary Brock Adams will have a chance to make some reforms within that he wasn't able to make from without. As House Budget Committee chairman, Adams tore into the so-called "off-budget" agencies of the federal government.

These include the Rural Telephone Bank, the U.S. Postal Service and the U.S. Railway Association. Under law, these and several other agencies are not included in the federal budget.

In fiscal 1976, their spending totaled $21 billion and economist Matthew Kerbec estimates that from 1973 to 1977, over $90 billion was expended by the off-budgetagencies. Yet, these offices are virtually exempted from close scrutiny.

Just in jest

Well, I see that price is no object where some of our candidates for city offices are concerned. In spite of what coffee costs these days, they're holding coffee klatches in order to win friends and influence voters. If that type of prodigal spending of their own money is any indication of what could happen once they are elected and get their hands on public funds, God help the poor, long suffering taxpayers.

Ann Landers

Not telling whole story?

Dear Ann Landers: I hate to spend 13 cents to write to you, but your answer to "Over-sexed and Under-achieving" really fractured me. You're off the wall, Babe, and I'm going to straighten you out.

My sex life started at 14. Like most of my friends, I wasn't trying to be a "Super-Stud" or "Casanova," as you seem to think. We were normal young guys who had "that old feeling" and needed to do something about it. My problem wasn't finding willing partners. It was the conflict between my physical needs and my religious training.

Every three or four days I had to get myself a girl — and did, even though I had a few close calls with VD, pregnancy, and one near-miss on a statutory rape charge.

On Sunday I'd go to confession, get squared away and start again — that same night. But I remained true to my master plan which was to stay single until I reached age 40. By then once or twice a month was plenty. My wife, who was younger than I, complained about my low sex drive, but I told her, "Sorry about that. I did my playing earlier."

Now, at 65, I don't need or want ANY sex. So you're wrong, Ann. Every male has just so many hours of sex play in him and some use up their allotment early. I am, Yours Truly — Exhibit A.

Dear A.: Sorry, Buddy, the fact that you are burned out at 65 has nothing to do with your hyper-sex drive as a young swinger. You fizzled our for other reasons. Boozing and obesity are among the most common.

Dear Ann Landers: I read something yesterday that made me so furious my blood pressure must have jumped 50 points. I decided instead of just boiling I'd write to Ann Landers. You can do something. I can't.

The facts are as follows: Fathers who cheat on child support payments and force their families to go on welfare are costing American taxpayers one BILLION dollars a year. According to the Government Accounting Office, many fathers earning as much as $20,000 a year pay no child support. Fewer than 50 per cent of absentee fathers pay the full amount of court-ordered support after the first year of separation. After six years, it's less than 20 per cent.

Since you're supposed to be a solver of problems, what would you suggest be done about this shameful situation? — Top Blown In Lafayette

Dear Top: I recommend stiffer penalties for fathers who can pay child support and don't. That's step No. 1. No. 2: A more diligent search for these "missing" characters and a tenacious follow-up by legal authorities to make sure justice is done.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's Aunt Sarah is his only living relative. She comes to visit twice a year, is no trouble, and I like her a lot.

Aunt Sarah is in remarkable health for a woman 84, but she frequently falls asleep in the middle of a conversation. I'd like to know the proper way to wake her up. Or should I let her sleep? — Montreal

Dear M: Don't let her sleep. She might fall out of the chair and break a hip. Jostle her lightly and offer a cup of coffee.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality"? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers's new booklet, "High School Sex and How To Deal With It — A Guide For Teens And Their Parents." Send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Armour lost many millions

Due to business reverses at the end of World War I, meatpacker J. Ogden Armour in 1919 lost about $1 million a day for 130 consecutive days. This comes to mind because a client says he watched an Arabian oil man lose $1 million a day for 11 consecutive days at the gaming tables recently. He wants to know if that's a record. Can't say, the big gamblers are pretty secretive. But Armour's losses look like a business record, don't they?

LANGUAGES

Q. "How many different languages do people speak worldwide?"

A. About 2,000. In digging out the answer to your query, incidentally, I learn there are no primitive languages. That is, nobody anywhere gets by with grunts, grins and "Me Tarzan, you Jane" dialogue. Each of the known languages is complicated and sophisticated.

FAKE

Venetians hundreds of years ago poured molten glass into molds to make fake gemstones. As that glass cooled sufficiently to be shaped by hand, it developed the consistency of spaghetti. The Italian word for spaghetti, sure enough is pasta, and that's what those Venetians called their phony gems. Our Language man says it's where our jewelers today got their word for false stones: paste.

Saving up for dog's funeral

DEAR DR. MILLER: I don't agree with what my sister's doing. I'd like to see if you do. She's saving up a little money from her pension checks every month, putting it aside for her dog's funeral. She plans a big, expensive funeral for Peppy, including a fancy casket and plot which costs a small fortune. She thinks it's terribly important that Peppy be laid aside in style. Peppy isn't dead yet. In fact, he doesn't look like he has any intention of dying soon. I think he'd do even better if she'd feed him better. She buys the cheapest dog food she can find so she'll have money left over to save for his funeral. To me her priorities are all turned around. What do you think? — T.K.

DEAR T.K.: Agreed. She should put HER money where HIS mouth is. Certainly Peppy's personal priorities would place being fed ahead of being buried. Peppy's plan, if he had his druthers, would undoubtedly be to put all available resources into a longer, happier life, and making do with whatever's available when it's over. Preparing for a pet's death is a task neglected by many. I personally consider this no great omission. Certainly if it comes to a choice, how much better to take care of and revere the living than the dead. Ideally, one would do both. If it comes to a choice, though, you can bet Peppy would prefer a good meal and a pat on the head to a padded casket.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our new canary looks good except he has strange-looking feet and legs. They're all cracked and rough-looking. Is that the way they're supposed to look or is there something wrong with him? — P.O.

DEAR P.O.: Your canary's feet should look smooth, wrinkle and crack-free. Healthy feet for canaries are a must, and yours doesn't have them. The described condition could be a result of parasite (mite) infestation. There are other possibilities, but mites would be the most likely cause of the damage. If the condition hasn't gone too far, a complete cure may still be affected. A local bird-oriented veterinarian could determine this. Give him the opportunity. Now.

Erma Bombeck

Woman freed of dustitis

I got this pathetic letter last week from a woman whose family was threatening to send her to a Home for the Criminally Clean.

She had all the symptoms of a Domestic-Obsessive. In her words, "I used to vacuum the furnace ducts once a week and wash them down with soap and water monthly. I scrubbed the driveway with a stiff brush when it started to look shabby. God forgive me, I even got a ladder and scrubbed down the entire outside of a white frame house because it looked dirty."

The high spot of her week was watching the sanitation truck suck up the garbage.

Through years of reading my column, she has been rehabilitated and is once again able to take her place in a normal society. The other day as she walked through her dining room and saw draperies that had been hanging there for six months with the pins still in them, she thought of me and wanted to write and tell me what I had done for her.

If that story doesn't make you want to sell your sweeper, nothing will. Actually, I haven't done anything. All I've tried to do all these years is to point out that dust was put here to measure time. If there are any newlyweds out there who do not know the history of dust, let me enlighten you.

Dust was discovered in California by John Wayne in 1846 . . . . four years before California became a state. Little was known about dust. People just covered their mouths with a handkerchief and hoped it moved east. It did. The winds of Arizona caught it and blew it across the Plains. The rains in Washington turned it into mud and travelers tracked it into Montana and Wyoming.

In Chicago, it enjoyed drinking man's status as men yelled, "Here's mud in your eye." The South reveled in its poetry, singing, "It's a treat to beat your feet on the Mississippi mud."

Dust would have hit Maine and eventually petered out had it not been for an antiseptic housewife in Portland who saw a speck of it one day on her window sill, grabbed a cloth and wiped it up. She then shook her cloth outside her window and sent the dust back to the West. It's been going back and forth across the nation ever since.

The future of dust (or its demise) lies with the American housewife. It's up to her to call a truce on this shifting of dust from one state to another. We've come a long way since that little disgusting housewife in Maine polished her window sill. At least, we've gotten the American motto to read, "In God We Trust." It used to be Dust.

Dr. Lamb

Beware of health robbers

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have decided to get into nutrition and improve my family's eating habits. As a guide I thought I would use Adelle Davis' books, "Let's Eat Right to Keep Fit" and "Let's Get Well." Are such books good guides for nutrition? I know there are lots of things published that are not always correct and I don't want to take any chances with our nutrition. Please tell me honestly what you think of these.

DEAR READER — Honestly I can't recommend them. I know this will disturb many of her loyal fans, but regardless of how well meaning she may have been her books are full of inaccuracies. I have always thought part of the problem was that she came on the scene about the time vitamins were first discovered so she was very impressed with vitamins. Also she really spoke for a different period when lack of food was the biggest problem, exercise was a bigger part of daily life — usually in the form of hard physical labor, and our medical problems were entirely different than they are today.

Qualified nutritionists do not recommend her books. In a new book, "The Health Robbers" (George F. Stickley Company Publisher, Dept. N, 210 W. Washington Sq. Philadelphia PA 19106, price $10.50) edited by Dr. Stephen Barrett, of the Lehigh Valley Committee Against Health Fraud and Gilda Knight of the American Institute of Nutrition there are comments on Adelle Davis and other "confused crusaders."

Gilda Knight writes that, "Her books, which are full of inaccuracies, are not on the approved list of any bona fide nutrition society," she quotes Dr. George Mann of Vanderbilt University as saying one of her books contains an average of one error on every page and some of the mistakes are dangerous.

She goes on to tell of a little 4-year-old girl whose mother was a health food faddist. She was hospitalized for diarrhea, vomiting, fever and loss of hair. She had enlargement of the spleen and liver. Her hair was falling out. She had signs of brain tumor. Her mother, who followed Adelle Davis' advice, had been giving her excessive amounts of vitamin A and D. The child recovered after this practice was stopped.

I would like to recommend "The Health Robbers" to all my readers. You can read about Carlton Fredericks, the vigorous proponent of low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). The book states, "Carlton Fredericks has had virtually no nutritional or health science training. He graduated from the University of Alabama in 1931 with a major in English and a minor in political science." You can also read about Linus Pauling and his questionable promotion of vitamin C against the common cold.

The book also includes important information for the public about quackery in arthritis treatments, frauds in the weight losing diet material promoted to the public and much more.

The reason we have so much medical misinformation printed is that we have freedom of the press. Any completely unqualified person may publish his or her remedy for our aches or pains or advertise them as TV commercials. Exaggerations are common. This is one of the prices we have to pay for freedom of the press and freedom of speech. The only way to cope with this problem is to provide good health information to the public. Books like "The Health Robbers" help to give people like you a chance to evaluate the material they are constantly exposed to.

What people say

"I believe that it is one of our tasks . . . to make clear to the American people that they cannot permanently have a good life in a world in which they alone are perceived to have a good life. If we cannot raise hope in other parts of the world . . . we will sooner or later live under conditions of international civil war."

—Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, on the future task of American diplomacy.

For Monday, March 7, 1977

AIRES (March 21-April 19) You gain in the long run by making a few minor concessions today. Be cooperative. You will find it's contagious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others will be willing to help you further your ambitions today if you approach them properly. Offer them a piece of the action.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your wealth of social contacts could be very advantageous in opening doors for you that you couldn't on your own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Give family matters top priority today. You're gifted in helping those you're responsible for, especially in financial affairs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to talk directly to persons pertinent to your immediate needs today. You'd lose out by using intermediaries.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Pull out all the stops today and tomorrow if you feel the effort would increase your earnings. Don't worry about overtime.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Yours is the leader's role today and you won't be comfortable in any other position. Be assertive when it suits your purpose.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It matters little who takes the bows today, if your wishes are fulfilled. Stay in the background. Encourage others with sound advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You can lead a group or committee to sound decisions today. As a catalyst, you blend diverse elements harmoniously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today is the day to put those ambitious plans into action. You're an ingenious thinker and a prime mover. You get things done.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Situations where you have vested interests with others are your key areas for gain today. Stay on top of them.

Your Birthday, March 7, 1977

You might fare well in an enterprise with another this year by offering your talent and services. Your share could be equal, even though you invest no money.

What card should you play from your hand at trick one after West has opened the four of hearts and East has won the trick with his king?

The first answer is that you should play the jack, 10 or eight. If you play the three or the two, East will be sure that you hold at least four hearts and is very likely to shift to spades. He is looking right at dummy and is not going to lead a club or diamond.

Having decided that you are going to drop one of the high hearts which one should you jettison?

Our first choice is the eight. This is more likely to give East the impression that his partner led fourth best of a six-card suit headed by the ace than is the false card of the jack or 10. In other words, East is less likely to suspect you of false carding if you drop the eight.

Once the heart is returned you will be able to set up three heart tricks and wind up making a lot of notrump. If East shifts to a spade you will still make some number of notrump but you won't make your contract.

This is a classic one-diamond opening. If partner responds one heart, bid a spade. If he responds one spade, we rebid three clubs and raise spades next. If he responds one notrump, we rebid two clubs.

Among the many pleasures of owning a dog, one significant pleasure is the one that derives from the fact that the dog doesn't talk back to you. He may bark his displeasure or show his friendliness in a happy jump but he doesn't have language skills and doesn't communicate verbally. For the most part, he is accepting of his master through the "understanding" of messages back and forth between them that are not verbally structured.

Perhaps most of us depend too much on "talk." The spoken word is a precious and highly developed brain method of communicating with each other. It begins with our earliest awkward soundings of our first words in infancy. It is often the best method for revealing meanings and intentions and it is helpful to discuss something with an articulate person. A good vocabulary and an ability to use words well is highly prized in our society. But there are some pitfalls to keep in mind:

—Sometimes we use words to cover up our meaning and obscure issues.

—Sometimes we batter each other with a diarrhea of words that serves to tell, rather than to listen and learn.

—Sometimes words fall short of communicating our meaning, even when we have the best of intentions, because the listener hears only what he wants to hear.

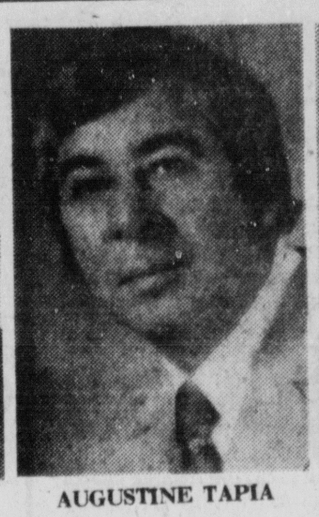

—Sometimes words are simply inadequate in the gross and do not express our deep feelings. In such instances, they seem trite and even inappropriate.

Perhaps in this day of improved communication emphasis, we should consider saying less and feeling more. Do people know you love and care for them, even though you may not have said so? Do people know you are angry with them, even though you haven't said so? It is often the case that the most "truthful" message is communicated by a presence of body, mind and spirit, unimpeded by the need to say it with words.

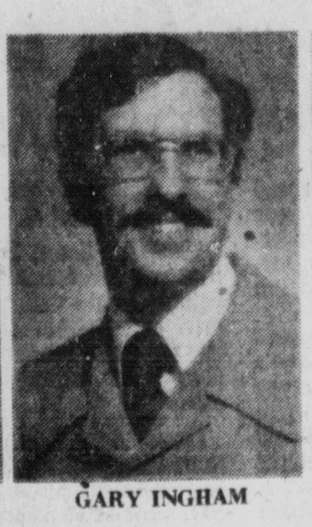

Even as a great deal occurs between the non-speaking dog and his master, so a great deal is communicated in a soft touch, a smile, a wave, a kiss, attentive listening, a nod, a raised eyebrow, a set jaw. Perhaps we can turn in on the messages around us more quickly and satisfactorily if we are more responsive to the non-verbal aspects of everyday living.

Ten candidates seek 3 board seats

Year-round schools key issue in Chino race

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

To the surprise of no one, the key issue in the race for three seats on the Chino school board in Tuesday's election is year-round school.

The year-round (YRS) program has been controversial since its inception in the district, and emerged as the dominant issue in the 1975 school board election.

Ten candidates are running for two four-year seats and one two-year seat. The eight men vying for four-year seats include challengers Patrick Hooven, Gary Ingham, Wayne McIntosh, Earl P. Owens, Robert Pipersky, Daniel Santo, Glenn Schumacher and incumbent Augustine Tapia. Incumbents Al McCombs and Paul Peterson are competing for a two-year term.

Chino voters also will be asked Tuesday to decide the fate of a $23.9 million bond issue and state loan request for the construction of new school buildings. Officials say the issue is necessary to meet demands of a growing district.

Hooven, a Monrovia teacher who formerly taught in the Chino school district, says citizens should be offered a choice of either year-round school or the traditional nine-month program. He has criticized those on both sides of the issue for using "scare tactics."

He is opposed to a separate fundamental school at this time, and believes that approach can be implemented in all the district schools.

Hooven has scored the board's recent position against the publication of controversial articles in the Chino High School student newspaper as "censorship."

Ingham, a computer programmer for Alpha Beta Co. who formerly served on the Chino Planning Commission, says YRS is a "schedule, not a change in curriculum." He has made it clear that the rights of those wanting YRS and the traditional schedule should be upheld.

He said that he supports "controlled growth" and maintaining the quality of community life in Chino. "We did try to hold down growth while I was on the Planning Commission."

Ingham, who holds a bachelor's degree in economics from UC Riverside, wants the best possible education for children "at a reasonable cost."

McIntosh, a vocational education teacher-administrator, favors YRS because "students come back refreshed, need little review and receive remedial help during intersession."

He has come out strongly for an immediate salary increase for teachers. "Employes are entitled to salary boosts. Everyone is paying more these days at the stores."

McIntosh, who attended Azusa Pacific College and Pepperdine University and has taught at various school levels, is unhappy with the present school board. He has been very critical of those who seem to oppose year-round school.

Owens, an educational consultant to the Los Angeles city schools, has made it clear he supports the YRS program. However, he also indicates both YRS and traditional scheduling could be offered.

A former Chino teacher who has children attending local schools, Owens has attacked the "inconsistent" actions of the present school board. He says YRS has been a "political football" and the issue should be settled once and for all.

Owens supports better communication at both the school and community levels, taxing developers who bring in new homes to the district, and improved requirements for graduation.

Pipersky, an Ontario nurseryman, has supported YRS but says no one should be forced to enroll in the program. "The board should be budget-conscious and get the best savings of the tax dollar."

As for the fundamental school issue, Pipersky feels every student should be able to learn the "basics" but he stops short of recommending a separate fundamental school.

Pipersky, a Chino High School graduate who also attended Mt. San Antonio and Chaffey colleges, is the youngest candidate at 24. He says the board should be directing efforts toward "quality education, improved teaching conditions and improved finances."

Santo, a financial manager, has called for the best utilization of the tax dollar — be it on YRS or another policy. However, he has spoken in favor of the year-round plan at several board meetings.

A relatively new Chino resident, Santo holds a law degree from University of San Diego and has been active in PTA, Kiwanis Club and Little League. He seems to favor certain "slogans" — indicating he wants to be part of a "can do" school board.

Santo has criticized what he called the indecision of the present board. He also has warned that developers should not be "let off the hook" for causing burgeoning growth in the district. The board should strengthen the educational program "but without sacrificing extra-curricular activities."

Schumacher, a teacher in the Corona-Norco district, has questioned the effectiveness of YRS, particularly at the secondary level. He favors a thorough review of the program to see if it should be continued, "or if another program is necessary."

A 2½-year resident of the district, Schumacher is married and has one child. He says YRS represents increased costs to the taxpayers in extended teacher contracts and maintenance of buildings.

He also favors a comprehensive reading program for the district, and competency tests. The board should deal strongly with drugs, violence and alcohol abuse in the schools, he added.

Tapia, an incumbent, is seeking his second four-year term on the board. He says he does not oppose the concept of year-round school, but has called for a full review by an outside evaluator. He recently voted against a mandatory YRS plan for new students.

Tapia, an industrial relations coordinator at General Dynamics in Pomona, says he has attempted to be independent and fair to everyone during his service on the board.

His reason for seeking reelection is to continue efforts to improve the quality of education in the district, he said. "The quality of education has taken a backseat to the problems of growth here. I intend to re-direct the board in the next four years."

McCombs, an incumbent who decided to seek a two-year term after serving eight years on the board, has been a strong and vocal supporter of year-round school. He said, "I seek a well-balanced YRS program which will still have a place for those needing a standard calendar program by necessity."

He claims Chino already has saved $5 million by having YRS, and over the next several years can "more than triple that saving."

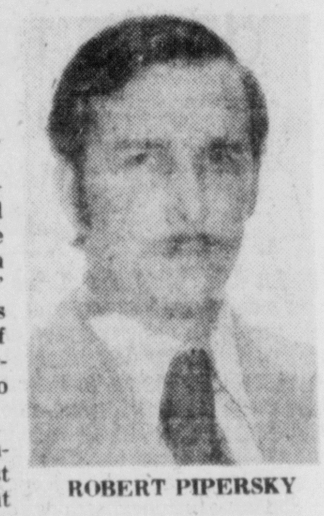

But McCombs is concerned about the board majority's "failure to face up to the fact we have a serious loading problem." He charged the board has diluted the effectiveness of YRS. McCombs is editor-publisher of the Chino Champion newspaper.

Peterson, also an incumbent, was selected last summer to fill the seat of resigned trustee Roy Ward. He favors strengthening the overall educational program, including the "basics."

He has favored an optional program offering both YRS and traditional plans. "I am not against year-round school," Peterson emphasizes.

A professor of agriculture at Cal Poly Pomona, he is the father of five children. Peterson has endorsed the traditional system for his own children and supports the fundamental school approach.

Five vie for three seats

Small turnout expected in Claremont board race

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

A small turnout of voters is expected Tuesday in the Claremont Unified School District where five candidates are running for three seats on the school board.

Only one incumbent, Maralyn Tipping, is seeking re-election to the board. Mrs. Tipping was elected in May 18, 1976 when three board members were recalled.

Not intent on serving another term are Robert Stafford and Arthur Steffen.

No controversial issues have surfaced during three candidates forums sponsored by various civic groups.

To a question raised by the League of Women Voters of Claremont on how the school district can best meet the challenge of overcrowding in certain schools because of continued construction in northeast Claremont, candidate Ray Ball, associated with a manufacturers representative agency, said that there are many alternatives to addressing the imbalance or dislocation of where buildings and pupils are.

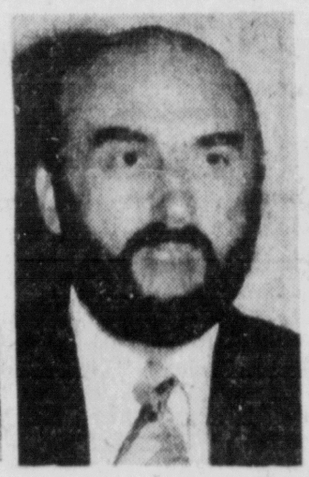

Ball said that he doesn't wish to impose his opinions without hearing recommendations from a district advisory committee which is studying the situation.

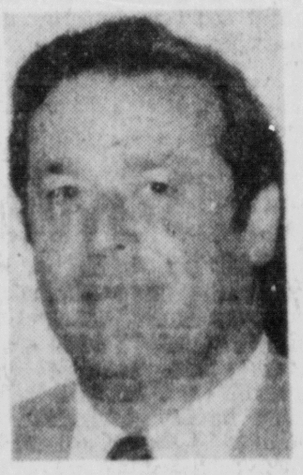

"This committee is charged with the unenviable task of finding a possible solution to a problem that is and has plagued most communities," Ball said.

Lawrence Birch, chairman of the department of education at Azusa Pacific College where he administers the teachers education program, said that in dealing with the challenge "there are many options open which could help in equalizing enrollment."

He suggested further promoting the open enrollment plan of the elementary schools, altering attendance areas, combining schools, changing school functions, transporting students, changing the school year and the school day, and possibly even closing schools.

ALICE OGLESBY

LAWRENCE BIRCH

JIM MERRILL

RAY BALL

MARALYN TIPPING

Jim Merrill, who like Ball is a member of the Claremont Planning Commission, feels that the housing picture is confused and all the facts are not in.

He said that the district advisory committee in choosing facility use as its top priority will search out every possible creative solution, and, only then will the school board make any decisions.

"Only after all existing facilities are being used to capacity should new building construction be considered at the cost of $42 a square foot," Merrill said.

Alice Oglesby, a part-time instructor in biology at Citrus College and a school board observer for the league, said that it is still too early to tell how many students will be moving into northeast Claremont and what their age distribution will be.

"If large numbers seriously overcrowd existing facilities then we will need to build, and we have the bonding capacity to do so," she said.

Mrs. Oglesby noted that there is a flexibility because the district is using available elementary classrooms for adult education and pre-kindergarten.

Maralyn Tipping, past president of the Vista PFA and the PFA Council and present school board member, feels that the challenge can best be met by brainstorming ideas, discussing alternatives, and determining what is most feasible in terms of cost and what is best for students.

She said that recommendations of a district advisory committee, if adopted, probably will require long range planning to implement, and hopefully will solve many district and community concerns.

Pomona business and development, crime problems discussed

Familiar issues 'revived' in chamber's candidates forum

The Pomona Chamber of Commerce's "meet the candidate" forum sounded something like a broken record as City Council candidates time and again based their platforms on "crime" in the city of Pomona.

Mayoral candidates concerned themselves with business and development problems.

Six candidates for mayor got the opportunity to address nearly 120 persons attending the buffet-type meeting. City office hopefuls were given three minutes to relay their messages to potential voters.

Candidate Charles Bader, who resigned his council seat to run, told the gathering that while crime and economic problems were evident the community shouldn't forget the "other" factors which contribute to Pomona.

Said Bader, "Let's don't lose sight of our schools, the library and recreational facilities. That's what brings people here."

He also told the audience he thought the city was becoming too dependent on short-term funds (from federal and state governments) for long-term projects.

"We have a need to check the cost of government," said Bader. "We have a need to open up city hall."

As Clay Bryant saw the problem, the loss of business was pulling Pomona down. "In the last four years," Bryant said, "businesses have thrown up their hands and left Pomona." This, he noted, was due to unwillingness and unflexibility on the part of the planning commission, the development commission and the City Council to entice or embrace present business in its efforts to stay viable.

Mayoral hopeful Richard Brownell said Pomona has a bright future, but there needs to be pressure applied to City Hall to "woo businesses and industry into the city."

Henry Cole Jr., cited the city for not doing its part to help build and sustain a high level of equity in business and private property. He noted that the value of property and homes has gone up, but said Cole, "Equity in buildings should be because of government's efforts. But it's not, it's in spite of it."

Incumbent Mayor Ray Lepire told the gathering the council and it's leadership is responsible for much of the improvement now seen in Pomona. "It's how you get along with and work with the council that gets things done," he said.

Lepire commented that, "Everyone is talking about crime, but Pomona is headed in the right direction." He pointed out that the city has been more successful in reducing the crime rate, but it was not a problem faced alone by Pomona.

The final mayoral candidate speaker, William Kaminski, saw the major problem facing Pomona as a failure to properly deal with civic employes. "We need a City Council member to work with city employes on their wages and other needs," said Kaminski.

He felt, too, the police department was in need of bolstering by 22 or more officers. Kaminski believed that motorcycle patrols and more obvious patroling by police would go far in hindering criminals.

There were four candidates for the 2nd district council seat who addressed the forum. Irving Clark called for a program to increase employment in the city. "If we can provide jobs, it's possible we can reduce crime," he said.

"If Pomona is going to move ahead," said Adrian Wright, the incumbent, "you must set the stage." To do that he felt enticing businesses to Pomona would be the answer. "We can entice businesses by providing adequate sites and facilities to meet their needs."

Wright also thought the Diamond Bar school transfer issue was vital to the growth of Pomona. He saw the transfer as adversely affecting integration, schools and housing.

Wright noted that crime was a major problem in the city. "We need more policemen in the neighborhoods. We've got to get officers away from paperwork and out into the field."

William Cook also pointed to crime as the priority problem facing Pomona. He remarked that a police commission made up of private citizens would be helpful in handling and reviewing complaints against the police department.

A "lack of leadership" was how Manuel Ramirez pinpointed the major concern of Pomona. "There are many platforms," said Ramirez, "but no action."

Ben Ochoa, incumbent candidate for the third district, provided a positive note to the proceedings commenting, "The council has made significant progress and contributed to the growth of the city and to the economic growth."

Ochoa said the council was working on programs to combat crime. He voiced optimism that under a newly proposed anti-crime plan the city would be able to more effectively deal with crime.

He praised the fiscal policies of the council noting, "We have been able to keep the city from raising local taxes in the last four years." But he said he was aware of the need to keep this pattern going.

Walter Clark expressed his platform in simple terms. "I'm the crime-control candidate. Crime is the number one problem in Pomona. We've got to control it."

The last City Council candidate to speak, John Ridley, saw unemployment looming in the foreground. "The major problem is unemployment. If we could reduce that, it would help reduce crime," he said.

Registrar aide sought

Los Angeles County is seeking new deputy registrars to augment its force of more than 2,000 persons now active in the field, it was announced recently by Supervisor Baxter Ward.

Persons who are registered to vote in Los Angeles County and are interested in becoming deputy registrars can do so by attending a single training class and successfully completing a brief qualification test, Ward said.

"And the need for that service is ongoing, as persons become newly eligible to vote because they have reached the age of 18, or desire to reregister because they have moved, changed their names, or wish to change political party affiliation."

Deputy registrar training classes can be arranged for groups of 10 persons or more at any location of the group's choice.

In addition, the Registrar-Recorder's Office conducts regularly scheduled sessions mornings, afternoons and evenings. Sessions are held Monday through Saturday throughout the county.

Further information regarding either special or regularly scheduled deputy registrar training classes may be obtained from the registrar's office, 808 N. Spring St., Los Angeles 90012. The telephone number is (213) 974-6745.

Deputy registrars are paid 35 cents for each valid registration affidavit they execute, Ward said.

Antique records attract collector

HAMMOND, La. (AP) — Ronald Cole collects history by ear.

He has a collection of more than 1,500 antique records, including rare discs from the late 1890s to 1925.

Adelina Patti, Enrico Caruso, Amelita Galli-Curci, Mary Garden, Blanche Marchesi — names to conjure up the golden age of opera — are all in the Cole collection, considered one of the best in the Southeast.

"I personally consider these antique records to be documents of operatic history as much as books are written documents of history," said Cole, a librarian at Southeastern Louisiana University.

"The styles as well as the actual voices of the singers are documented in these grooves."

Cole began his collection with a gift from the widow of an Emory University professor.

"She gave me nearly a hundred of these old one-sided 78s and for the first time I could hear these incomparable voices," said Cole. "That's when the collecting bug hit me."

There have been highlights in the six years of collecting that followed, like the record by Allessandro Moreschi, a castrato soprano, he found in a French Quarter junk shop.

"Women were not allowed on stage and were not allowed to sing in church, so to create needed soprano voices, choir boys were castrated," said Cole. "In 1902, Moreschi, the last of the great castrati to perform, made a few records which were recorded in the Sistine Chapel.

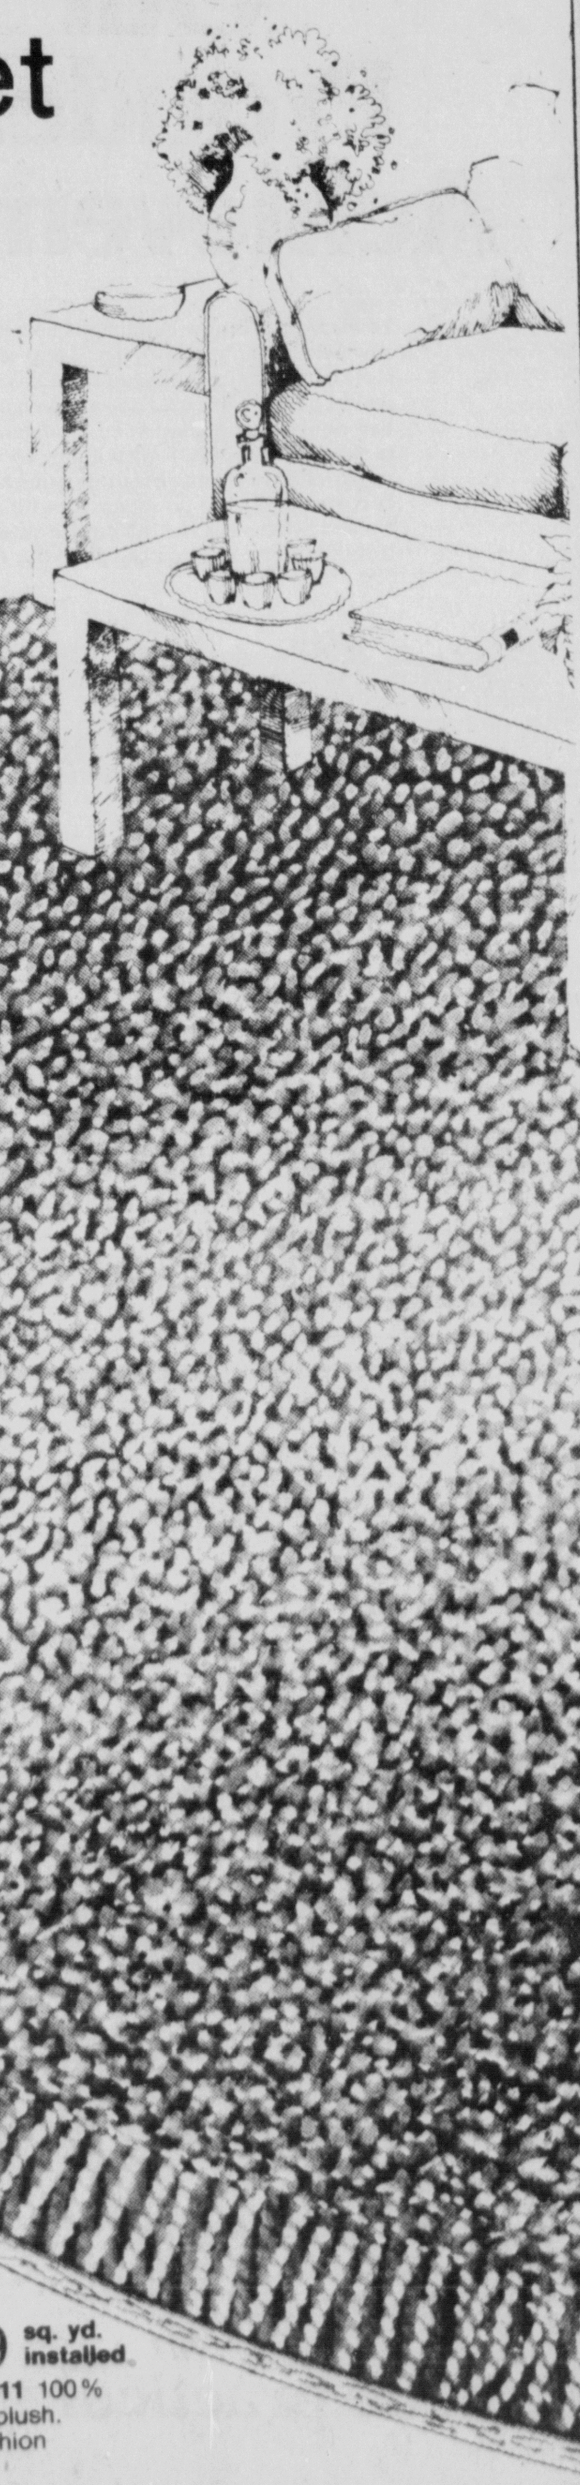

"He was the only castrato soprano ever to make a record and was 55 years old at the time.

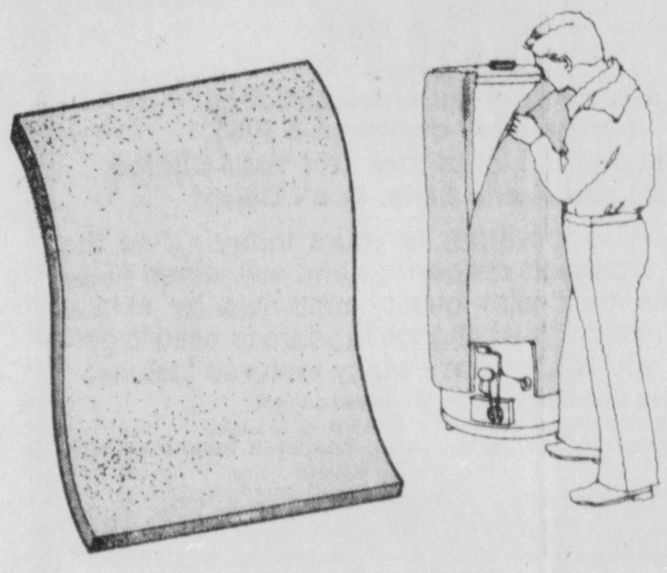

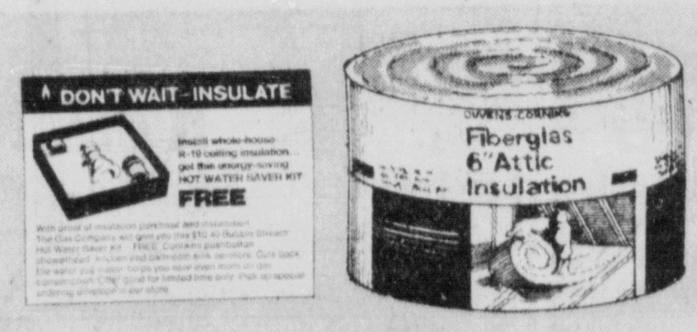

"When I happened on this jewel, I managed to keep a poker face while I asked the owner how much he wanted for the record. Imagine my thrill when he told me 25 cents."

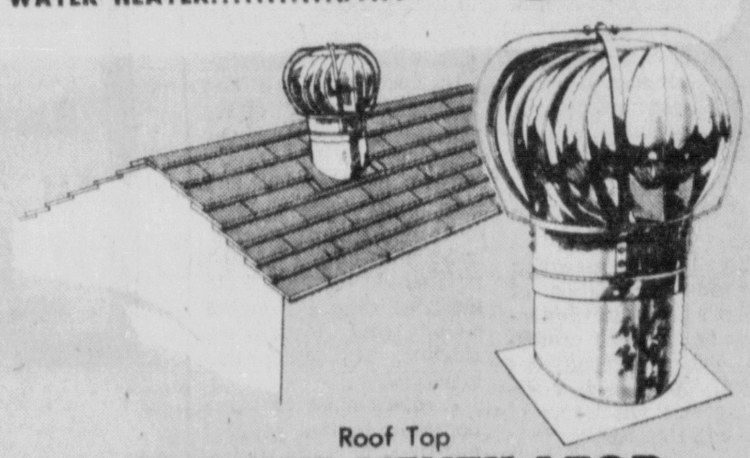

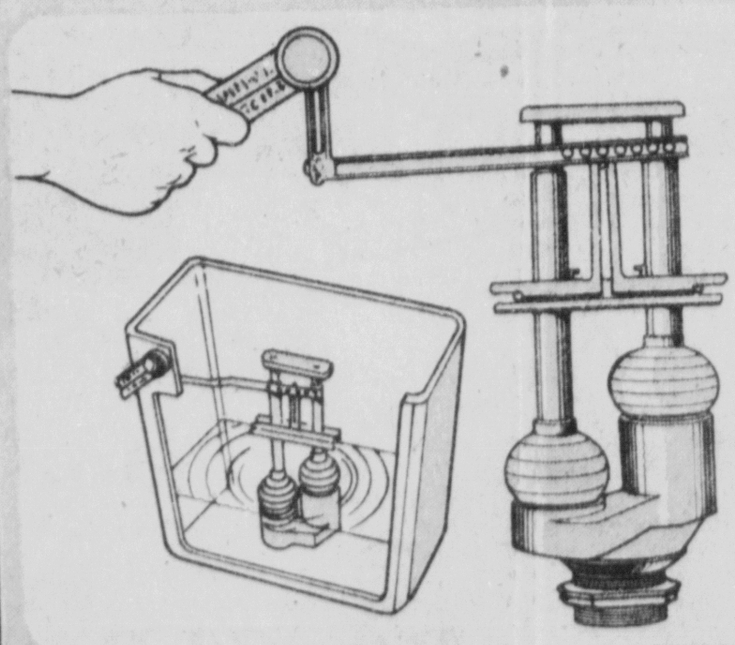

Among his collection are records cut by Patti, considered by many to be the singer of her century.

Development draws award

The American Wood Council's "Award for Better Living" was recently presented to C/L Ranch, Crowell/Leventhal, Inc's equestrian oriented single family development in Alta Loma.

Barry Disdero of The American Wood Council presented the award to Harry Crowell, president of Crowell/Leventhal, Inc. in a brief ceremony in the sales office of C/L Ranch. First to congratulate Crowell was William McVittie, 65th District legislator.

Picked over all other developments in Southern California, C/L Ranch was selected as "the finest in design excellence and the creative use of wood."

According to Crowell, wood is a basic staple in all C/L homes. "We use wood because it is tough, durable, easy to work with and last but not least, attractive."

Disdero, representative of The American Wood Council, cited several examples of the longevity of wood. During a short talk he pointed out that the city of Venice, Italy is supported by wood pilings still intact today, after one thousand years, and that timbers 2,700 years old were discovered in use in the tomb of King Cordius near Ankara, Turkey.

As an American example of wood's service he explained that most of the original framing, flooring and shingles are still in place in the old ironworks house in Saugus, Mass. after 331 hard New England winters.

Other surprising facts were: That pound for pound wood is stronger than steel, yet because of a unique structure consisting of thousands of tough cellulose fibers cemented together by a natural glue, called lignin, wood retained its elasticity, making it comfortable to walk on and pliable in high winds or earthquakes.

Regarding insulation properties, wood is six times better than bricks, and 15 times better than aluminum, which saves wood homeowners on fuel costs.

In addition to the carved wooden wall plaque presented to Harry Crowell of Crowell/Leventhal, Inc., a permanent monument is being built and will be erected at the site.

C/L Ranch offers 3 and 4 bedroom single family hill top homes on country-sized lots (approximately ½ acre, with each home adjoining the interlacing bridle trails. Prices range from $61,950 and offer such amenities as shake or tile roofs, built-in burglar alarm systems, oversized 2 and 3 car garages and approved smoke detector systems.

To reach C/L Ranch, take the San Bernardino Freeway to the Euclid Street Exit. North on Euclid to 19th Street, east to Sapphire, then north beyond Hillside Street to the models.

AWARD — Assemblyman William McVittie, left, congratulates Harry Crowell, of Crowell-Leventhal Homes, as he received the American Wool Council "Design for Better Living" award from Barry Disdero, center, for the firm's development in the Alta Loma area.

Protection stressed

'Earthshaking' news for buyer

Under all is the land, the surface of which is constantly changing. Normally, this is not "earthshaking news, but to a potential homebuyer or seller in California it should be a matter of serious concern.

The 100,000-member California Association of Realtors has a growing interest in consumer protection, and as a result, has recently published a 43-page book, "Disclosure of Geologic Hazards."

This book is concerned with responsibilities which Realtors have regarding disclosure of facts about property affected by hazards such as earthquakes, landslides, floods, fault creep, soil erosion, volcanic activity, tidal waves, etc.

One of the book's six chapters dealing with special studies zones, focuses on the Alquist-Priolo Special Studies Zone Act, which covers fault creep. Basically this chapter outlines why this Act requires a Realtor to disclose whether a piece of property falls within a zone. It further describes how a Realtor can determine this by contacting county and/or city agencies, which are responsible for formulating the "seismic element" of the general plan of a particular community.

Once the inquiry has been made, the Realtor must disclose to the seller and buyer whether the land falls within the zone. This must be attached on the deposit receipt form by the Realtor, stipulating this condition.

Realtors exist to serve consumers, the general public. This includes buyers and sellers of homes and property. Since geologic factors often influence the use of land and its value, there is sustification for the discovery of those facts and their disclosure to a potential buyer.

CAR's interest in consumer protection prompted the publishing of "Disclosure of Geologic Hazards," another in a series of services the state Association offers its members and the public.

The book may be purchased for $2.50 by sending check or to the Order Desk, California Association of Realtors, 505 Shatto Place, Los Angeles, California 90020.

Builders report sales increases

Marlborough Development Corporation, builders of single family homes in Southern California and Arizona, has reported a 1976 sales increase of approximately 262 per cent over 1975. Combined sales for single family homes as well as unimproved sites in California and Arizona jumped to more than $34.5 million in 1976, dramatically up over 1975's $13 million total.

According to Ron Lushing, President of Marlborough Development Corporation, this represented net sales of 730 single family homes for the corporation as compared with 361 sales in 1975 for an increase of more than 100 per cent.

Southern California sales topped $27 million for single family homes in the Marlborough Development Corporation communities in Chino, Riverside and Canoga Park. A total of 181 homes were sold during the same period in Arizona.

Marlborough Development Coproration has plans for four new development projects in Carson, Chatsworth, Pomona and Cucamonga as well as three additional developments in the Phoenix, Arizona area during 1977.

Community aid given

Spectrum, a La Verne real estate company, has announced a plan to set aside a portion of the company's earnings as a donation to local church, charitable or community organizations.

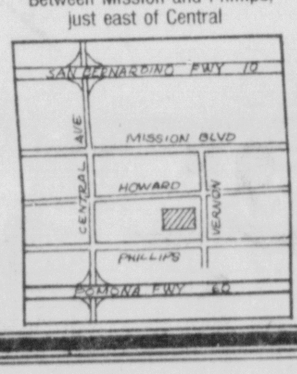

According to Spectrum's Al Konersman, the company will set aside 10 per cent of the company's earnings on each transaction (after deducting agent commissions) to the organization designated by the client. He said the donation involves no added expense or "hidden markup" to the client.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

At the C/L Ranch in Alta Loma, wood proves that beauty can be practical, too.

Since a wood home is practically maintenance free, you'll have a lot of free time on your hands at the C/L Ranch in Alta Loma, and you can use every spare moment just enjoying yourself.

For example, you can take an afternoon ride on your own horse trails. There's even an area to stable two horses, right on your own lot.

If you like, take a walk and view some of the most spectacular scenery in Southern California. When we built the C/L Ranch, we also made sure its location was perfect. Here, you're 30 minutes from the Mt. Baldy Ski area, an hour from the beach or Lake Arrowhead, yet only 50 minutes from Los Angeles. The homes themselves are designed to make it easy to get the best of the California lifestyle. Standard three car garages. Self cleaning microwave ovens. Multiple fireplaces including one in the master bedroom. Even a built-in wet bar. And, of course, wood construction throughout.

Wood framing and floor joists add strength to the home. In fact, pound for pound, wood is stronger than steel. And since wood is a great natural insulator, you'll save on energy bills. Wood insulates six times better than brick, 400 times better than steel and 1700 times better than aluminum.

Even the roof at the C/L Ranch is wood. Its cedar shakes resist the elements, and weather to a beautiful, natural glow. Because C/L Ranch reflects overall excellence in architectural design and the creative use of wood, the American Wood Council has awarded it the Design for Better Living Award. Groove cutting is old process

NEW YORK (AP) — The pavement grooving process — cutting precise channels into highways and runways to prevent skid accidents, or hydroplaning, in wet weather — has a long history, according to the International Grooving and Grinding Association with headquarters here.

The ancient Greeks and Romans were aware that shod horses, either pulling chariots or carrying riders, tended to skid on wet pavement, says the association, a group made up of companies engaged worldwide in the grooving and grinding of all types of pavement.

In the ancient city of Ephesus in Turkey, which was settled by Greeks in the 10th century B.C., remnants of a marble street still exist, showing clear vestiges of grooves, the association says.

They were cut transversely and spaced on approximately 2 to 5-inch centers. This compares with 1½-inch centers in common use today on airport runways, cut transversely — that is, across the runway. On highways, however, spacing between groove centers ranges from ¾-inch to 1-inch. Grooves are usually cut longitudinally.

No one knows for certain when or how the grooves were made in Ephesus, the association says. But according to Dr. Musa Baran, a Turkish archeologist and author of a book, "Ephesus and its Surroundings," the prime purpose of the grooves was to provide better traction for horses fitted with metallic horseshoes.

POOL ACTIVITIES

Crippled Children's Guild sets philanthropic luncheon

The Pomona Valley Center for the Crippled Children's Society at 480 S. Indian Hill Boulevard, Claremont, will be the setting for the benefit bridge luncheon to be sponsored by Foothill Guild on April 1.

All funds raised by the guild are used to support the programs and services which are provided without charge to the handicapped children, teen-agers and adults of the Pomona and East San Gabriel valleys. These services include recreation and therapy in the beautiful therapeutic pool at the Pomona Center. Guild members volunteer many hours of service staffing the reception center, aiding in the mail fund campaign and interviewing for the summer camp enrollment.

"Green is Beautiful" will be the decorative theme of the party which will feature attractive green plants as table decorations. There will be a boutique with articles made by guild members.

Punch will be served at 11:30 a.m. and at noon there will be a buffet luncheon prepared and served by guild members.

Fashions from The Closet of John P. Evans Store, Pomona, will be modeled by guild members during the luncheon, with Mrs. John A. Evans of Claremont in charge of the show.

Mrs. Russell Lett of Claremont is chairman for the luncheon. Assisting her are: Mmes. Kenneth Russell, Claremont, reservations; Charles Thum, Claremont, and Robert Leggewie, Claremont, decorations; Fred Emerson, Claremont, food; Theodore Criley, Claremont, punch table; Robert Miller, Claremont, properties; Stanley Butler, Claremont, publicity; Max Forney, Claremont, activity; and Ralph Gain, Claremont, serving pieces. Mrs. Rex Booth of Pomona and Mrs. Bob Bolinger of La Verne will be in charge of the boutique.

President of the guild is Mrs. J. P. Rimer of Upland and Mrs. Lee MacFarland of Claremont is executive director of the Pomona Valley Center.

Tickets may be obtained from guild members or by calling Mrs. Norman Williamson, 626-4251, or Mrs. Russell, 624-2343.

Former teacher battles sexism

NEW YORK (AP) — Not long before Barbara Sprung started creating and promoting nonsexist materials for schoolchildren, her own classroom was strictly old school.

"I used to tell a little girl her dress was pretty. I encouraged aggressive behavior in boys and passive behavior in girls," she admits.

Ms. Sprung, 43, now at the head of a national thrust to eliminate sex role stereotypes in young children, explains:

"When I was trained as a teacher in the 1950s, I was taught that sex roles were important and that as a teacher it was part of my job to reinforce these roles."

All that changed in March 1972 when she spotted an ad seeking a feminist to create a nonsexist early childhood program at the Women's Action Alliance, Inc. here.

Jolted by the sexist imagery in books she was shown during that job interview, Ms. Sprung underwent "an instant consciousness raising," and took the job.

In the five years that she has been director of the Nonsexist Child Development Project for the WAA, Ms. Sprung says she has seen encouraging progress in efforts to sweep out the stereotypes.

Many publishing houses have issued new guidelines to eliminate sexist terminology, and most publishers have produced one set of new readers or are working on them now, she notes.

Ms. Sprung and her staff of two at the WAA project aim to reach educators who work with preschool tots. Proceeding from the tenet that children learn through play, they have developed several toys, games and classroom materials. These items depict men and women in nontraditional roles and also present men in nurturing roles.

"If these concepts are taught early," Ms. Sprung maintains, "they won't have to be retaught later."

The project could not provide figures indicating the reach of its nonsexist efforts to date. But the director concedes that "a very small percentage of preschools have nonsexist materials."

She and her staff travel regionally and nationally to lecture and give presentations to educational, parent and day care groups.

The interest has been good, she says, but roadblocks remain. First among these is the low-level priority given to early childhood education. The lack of awareness of decision-makers and power-wielders throughout the educational system is another impediment.

"The key people who'll decide what materials the children will get have a spotty awareness of the problems. We need more of a national commitment on the part of curriculum developers, state departments of education, school administrators and materials manufacturers," Ms. Sprung says.

Teacher training is undergoing changes, she continues, "but it's happening too slowly." The mother of two also laments the "staggering" amount of sexist imagery that television hurls at its young viewers.

She foresees the project's gradual evolution into a major resource center for early childhood education. But her immediate goals are to expand its teacher-training capacity and develop more materials for preschool children.

Ms. Sprung planned and coordinated the First National Conference on Nonsexist Early Childhood Education in 1976, which drew over 250 educators from all parts of the country.

In 1975, she visited the People's Republic of China as a member of a delegation of early childhood educators.

Diamond engagement ring tradition is 500 years old

NEW YORK (AP) — This year marks the 500th anniversary of the diamond engagement ring.

It all started in 1477, the Jewelry Industry Council says, when the dashing young Archduke Maximilian of Austria wooed and won comely Mary of Burgundy and sealed the pact with a handsome diamond ring.

Heeding his advisor who wrote: "At the betrothal your Grace must have a ring set with a diamond and also a gold ring," Maximilian had an imposing-looking gold one fashioned and wed his beloved Mary within 24 hours of the betrothal ceremony.

The actual ring, with a large cutout "M," for Maximilian, highlighted with diamonds and a smaller stylized "M," for Mary, done in smaller diamonds, is still in existence. The ring is now in the Museum of Fine Arts in Vienna, the Jewelry Industry Council learned during research in connection with the anniversary celebration.

Although the tradition of the diamond as the bethrothal stone began 500 years ago, evidence of the engagement tradition dates back as far as the caveman.

The pharaohs of Egypt are believed to have originated the ring, or circle, as a symbol of eternity. Their sketches indicate the circle as a heavenly sign that life, happiness and love have no beginning and no end.

Until the 19th century, the diamond engagement ring was a luxury only royalty and the very wealthy could afford, says the Diamond Information Center. But today in the United States, it reports, 78 per cent of all first-time brides and nearly 50 per cent of all repeat brides receive a diamond engagement ring, and nearly half of all brides choose matched sets of engagement and wedding rings.

Since their discovery some 2,000 years ago diamonds have been a constant source of fascination, the information center researchers say. Named after the greek word "adamas," meaning unconquerable, diamonds are the hardest and most durable of all natural substances. By their very nature, they came to symbolize courage and invincibility. Some ancients believed that those who gazed into a diamond would gain inner strength. Others saw the diamond as a talisman to ward off evil.

While the oval and marquise shapes are gaining in popularity, the solitaire in the brilliant or round cut remains the most popular choice today.

However, this has not always been so. The engagement ring, like women's fashions, has followed various trends. In colonial days the preferred setting was a hoop with diamonds circling half way or all the way around the finger. This style was referred to as the keeper ring, as it was placed above the wedding band for safekeeping.

In Martha Washington's day, clusters of diamonds were fashioned into floral bouquets. Many of these bouquet rings had scalloped borders and were referred to as cookie rings.

During the Victorian period diamond engagement rings, like the architecture, were quite large and ornate. Bands of yellow gold were embellished with details of black enamel.

At the close of the 19th century, jewelry designs underwent extensive changes when platinum began to be used for setting gems. Because platinum is stronger than gold or silver it allows the diamonds to be set in claws raising the stones from the ring — enabling the stone to catch and reflect even more light rays.

The brilliant-cut solitaire began to gain popularity and became a classic ring in the 1890s. In the 1920s, however, the emerald-cut diamond in ornate mountings came into vogue.

In the 1930s a variety of settings developed, which were referred to as illusion rings. Small stones and engravings surrounded a large stone, which was set onto a metal plate having a diameter slightly larger than its stone, thus creating the illusion that the center stone was larger.

While Maximilian's ring was quite a knockout in its day, jewelry experts point out that the multicarated treasure can't hold a candle for brilliance to even the most modest of today's half to one-carat diamond rings, the most popular sold.

Now, more scientific methods of cutting the diamond and carving the facets enable gemologists to bring out the fiery brilliance of the stone much more than the diamond cutters of the past ever dreamed could be done.

Fine Arts program scheduled

Martha Longenecker, ceramicist, professor of art and founding director of Mingei International, will speak to members and guests of the Fine Arts Foundation Tuesday at 2 p.m. in Balch Auditorium of Scripps College.

Mrs. Longenecker is a graduate of UCLA. She received her MFA at Scripps College and Claremont University Graduate School under such great artists and teachers as Millard Sheets, Albert Stewart, Jean Ames, William Manker and Richard Petterson.

She has been professor of art at San Diego State University since 1955. The Mingei International is a nonprofit organization for furthering the understanding of world folk art.

The Fine Arts Foundation will take a bus tour on Thursday to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art and the Craft and Folk Art Museum in Los Angeles.

Salad luncheon arranged

A salad luncheon is planned for the American Baptist Women of Bethany Baptist Church in Montclair when the group meets at noon, Tuesday, in the Montclair home of Mrs. John Kooy.

Mrs. Alferd Brown will relate her experiences on a recent tour of Baptist missions. Her talk will be accompanied with color slides.

The music part of the program will be presented by Mrs. Hubert Gessford and Mrs. Evelyn Dyer.

The nominating committee will present the slate of officers, and babysitting will be provided at the church.

Sweater care time

Sweaters can be found in almost every winter wardrobe. The variety of fibers, patterns and textures is almost limitless.

To maintain good looks and long life, sweaters should be washed frequently, before soil becomes embedded in the yarn. Be sure to follow the care label instructions when laundering. Generally, man-made sweaters can be machine washed and dried. Wools, unless labeled for machine care, should be handwashed. Take special care with sweaters featuring decorative trims.

To reshape a woolen sweater to its original size, draw an outline of it before washing. Place the sweater on clean paper such as a brown bag. Use a pencil to outline the sweater. After the sweater is washed, block it to match the outline. It may be necessary to reshape the garment several times as it dries.

Quarterly meeting planned

The first quarterly meeting of Ontario Deanery, Diocesan Council of Catholic Women will be held Thursday at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Montclair, with Mass preceding the luncheon at 11:30 a.m.

A board meeting is charted at 10:30 a.m. The program is a taped conference on Todays Sisters and Laywomen by Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen.

Reservations must made made with Mrs. Mary Novelli or Mrs. Katherine Wilson by Tuesday.

Clean brushes

To clean lip and eye brushes, soak them in mild suds, rinse and squeeze out excess water. Then reshape the brushes with your fingers.

Shape skate

We can't think of anything better for a shapely figure in winter than a pair of ice skates, provided you use them.

Claremont club charts program

Members of the Claremont Women's Club will be entertained by Peggy Smyth and her "Belle Ringing Fashions with Sheets" at the luncheon meeting Wednesday noon at the clubhouse, 343 W. 12th St., Claremont.

PEGGY SMYTH

A graduate in apparel merchandising at UCLA, Peggy has been sewing since high school. In recent years, in the interest of economy, she has made draperies, tablecloths and play clothes from sheets.

Members of the March Service Group with Mrs. G. H. Stocker as chairman will prepare and serve the luncheon. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Gail Mitchell, 621-1936.

The March ways and means project will be a rummage sale to be held March 25 at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Jerold Morgan, philanthropy chairman, and members of her committee have announce the following recipients of cash donations for the year: Senior Citizens Information and Health Fair, Aid to After Stroke Resocialization, Claremont Red Cross, City of Hope, March of Dimes, Teen Challenge, Regional Center of Crippled Children's Society, Los Angeles County Probation Camps, San Gabriel Valley District coloring book project, Claremont Coordinating Council Campership Fund, El Camino Olympic Fund, Claremont YMCA, Crippled Children's Circus, South Hills Neighborhood Service Center, Recording for the Blind, Claremont Friends of the Library, President's Birthday March, McKinley Home for Boys scholarship, San Gabriel Valley Foster Child scholarship.

Over 2,000 hours of work were given by the membership in community service. Many hours were spent in colaboration with the Junior Membership.

Activities scheduled in March

A series of activities will fill the March calendar for members of the Upland Woman's Club this month.

Members will meet for a luncheon at noon, Tuesday, in the clubhouse. A choral music program will be presented under the direction of Don Bowers, Alta Loma High School.

Members of the press will be guests as will two foreign exchange students.

Delegates and alternates will be elected to attend the April San Bernardino District convention to be held in Victorville.

The annual scholarship luncheon and card party will be held at the clubhouse March 19 at 12:30 p.m. under the chairmanship of Mrs. E. W. Knox and Mrs. Robert Conway. Mrs. L. R. Nylander is in charge of tickets.

A fashion show is scheduled March 22 at 1:30 p.m.

Chairmen are Mrs. C. C. Hennessy, Mrs. Clarke Reno, March activities; Miss Florence Armstron, Mrs. Edwin Dean, decorations; and Mrs. L. B. Van Ornam and Mrs. Paul Rusche, greeters, for March. Committee members are Mmes. James Durie, Mike Elardi, Gerda Elleri, Cecile Elser, Raymond Herdman, Wilma Keeker, Harriet Largent, Alice Lund, Seymour Lydick, May Markley, Glenn Mather, Frederic Maurer, Gilbert McKeon, Nellis McNeil, Bea Riggs, Rodney Walton, Walton Wolfe and Glenn Wright.

Zauggs address league

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Zaugg of Wycliffe Bible Translators will show slides of their missionary support work in Indonesia when the St. Paul's Lutheran Women's Missionary League meets at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, in the parish hall.

The Zauggs have served a three-year tour in Australia which was followed by a year of furlough and two years in Indonesia. They are enroute to another period of three years in Indonesia.

Mrs. Lila Weiss, chairman, invites anyone interested in hearing the couple to attend the meeting.

Program scheduled Tuesday

Program for the meeting of United Methodist Women of Claremont United Methodist Church will carry out the theme, "The Whole World in His Hands" when the group meets at 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, in the Round Building of the church.

The director of youth and educational ministries, Michael Parker, will present "Communicating with Youth, Their Care and Nurture." Mrs. John Trever will give the worship service.

Members of Rachel Circle will be hostesses for the fellowship hour. Child care will be provided by calling Mrs. Paula Lightfoot, 621-2103.

Presbyterian women will hear missionary

The Rev. John T. Underwood and Mrs. Underwood will speak at the meeting of Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church of Pomona at 10:30 p.m., Tuesday, at the church.

Mr. Underwood and his wife teach in the theological seminary in Kwangju, Korea, a city 200 miles from Seoul. He teaches biblical and theological subjects and she teaches music and Christian education.

He is a third generation Presbyterian missionary to Korea. His grandfather was one of the original Presbyterian missionaries in Korea, arriving there in 1885. Their two sons, students at Macalester College, St., Paul, Minn., are the third generation of Underwoods to have been born in Seoul.

The Underwoods are here on a special furlough to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of Mrs. Underwood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert C. Welch of Pomona. The occasion will be marked at a family dinner on March 13.

Following the program, luncheon will be served in Westminster Hall by members of Circle Three.

Hunger topic at meet

"The Human Family Speaks Out on Hunger" will be the program to be presented for the Women's Fellowship of Lincoln Avenue Community Reformed Church Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the church Fellowship Hall.

Presenting the program will be Mrs. Pete Wiersma of Chino. Assisting will be Mrs. Art Whittington, Mrs. Pete Vanden Hoek, Mrs. Floyd Zwart and Mrs. Otto Wiersma.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Grant Griffin, Mrs. Palmer Fitchner and Mrs. Bill Novinger. Greeters will be Mrs. Wiersma, Mrs. Dwight Peters and Mrs. Lynwood Davis.

Barbara Hocke will be the speaker for the Women's Spring Conference of the church to be held at 10 a.m., March 23, at El Prado Golf Course in Chino. Reservations for the event are due March 13.

Flute, piano recital planned

Flutist Jill Shires and pianist Janice Wheeler Jubin will present a recital in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Admission is free.

The program includes one work for unaccompanied flute, the Partita in A Minor by J. S. Bach. The remainder of the program, for flute and piano, includes "Jeux" by Jacques Ibert, the Poulenc Sonata, "Chant de Linos" by Andre Jolivet, "Aria" by Dohnanyi and the Sonatine by Phillippe Gaubert.

Miss Shires, one of the younger professional flutists of the Southwest, is well known to local audiences from previous recitals and from her performance as first flutist of the Claremont Music Festival for several summers. She has taught at Cal Arts. Miss Jubin, currently teaching and performing in the Los Angeles area, holds both the B. M. and M. M. degrees from the Juilliard School, where she was a scholarship student of Rosina Lhevinne.

Student exhibit to open

Fifteen first-year art students at Claremont Graduate School will have a two-week show of their work in Libra Gallery starting Monday.

The title of the exhibit is, "This is what you call your artist's art," a comment one of the artists overheard in the gallery. The show includes works in a variety of media.

The participants will be in the gallery to meet the public and discuss their work from 8 to 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Regular gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Hallmark Dancers, under the artistic direction of choreographer Carol Harder, will present a concert in the University Theater at Cal Poly at 8 p.m. Saturday. Admission is $2 general, $1 for students.

The repertoire of the young 12-member company ranges from classical ballet to jazz. The program will include the premiere of three works by Miss Harder: "Massenet Suite," a group of pas de deux and pas de trois; "Impressions," a dramatic modernistic work, and a jazz sequence.

The performance is sponsored by the Associated Students, Inc. Tickets and information can be obtained from the ASI business office in the University Union. Reservations can be made by calling 598-4488.

Orchestra sets spring concert

The West End Symphony Orchestra, in conjunction with the Chaffey College Concert Choir, will present its annual spring concert in Spring Auditorium, Ontario, at 2:30 p.m. next Sunday. Admission is free.

Directing the orchestra for the third year is G. Keith Moon. The annual Children's Concert which he conducted in Ontario Feb. 10 won enthusiastic response from the 5,000 grade school youngsters who attended, and brought scores of complimentary letters from them after the event.

MATHEW J. SCULLY

The program Sunday will consist of two major works — Symphony in G Minor, No. 40 by Mozart, and the cantata, "Carmina Burana," by Carl Orff, which will include the 65 voices of the college choir accompanied by an augmented orchestra. The choir, prepared by Joyce Shannon, chairman of the Chaffey College music department, has appeared many times with the West End Symphony, most recently in November of 1975 in the performance of "Symphony of Psalms" by Igor Stravinsky.

"Carmina Burana" is one of the most popular of large choral works to be composed in the 20th century. Bursting with exciting rhythms and colorful orchestrations, the music is set to medieval texts celebrating the pleasures of spring and love and the earthly delights of the tavern and the gaming table.

Singing the demanding solos will be tenor Mathew Scully of Upland and soprano Kristine Kent of Los Angeles. Scully, a member of the Chaffey High School music faculty, appeared as soloist recently in the Greek Theater in Los Angeles in the performance of Mendelssohn's "Walpurgis Nacht." He is also former director of the Upland Presbyterian Church choir. Miss Kent is currently working with the USC Opera Theater, where she sang a leading role in the fall production of Benjamin Britten's "Midsummer Night's Dream." Susan Scott of Ontario, a freshman music major at Chaffey College, will sing one of the soprano solos, "Amor volat undique." Miss Scott is a member of the Chaffey College Concert Ensemble.

NEW TECHNIQUE — Gerhard Schulz of Diamond Bar demonstrates wax intaglio, an art form he recently invented. An exhibition of his works is being held through March at the Pomona Public Library. "Wax and intaglio have both been used in art for many years," Schulz says, "but to my knowledge this is the first time they have been used together."

Montagnana Trio

By HARVE EDWARDS

The Montagnana Trio, appearing Wednesday night in Spring Auditorium, Ontario, as the final concert of the Pomona VAlley Community Concert Association series, gave the audience a taste of chamber music at its best.

Although the 2,340-seat auditorium cannot exactly be considered a chamber, those devotees of chamber music in the audience were knowledgeable enough to sit close to the performers to enjoy those quiet dialogues and delicate nuances of the music which may have been lost to those in the last rows of the audience. Being one of the former, I found the concert delightful.

The performers, Caroline Worthington, cello; Dolores Stevens, piano, and John Gates, clarinet, all with formidable pedagogic backgrounds as the basis for their individual artistry, combined to produce an amalgam of sound that was a joy to hear and a communicative rapport in interpreting the composers' intent that was truly inspiring.

The choice of program material logically encompassed the musical periods of Baroque, Classic, Romantic, and the 20th Century, represented by a Suite for Clarinet and Piano by Rameau, Beethoven's Trio in B Flat Major, Mendelssohn's Sonata in D Major for Cello and Piano, Brahms Trio in A Minor, and an encore number by Max Bruch.

Miss Worthington did not choose on this occassion (for reasons best known to herself) to use her genuine Domenico Montagnana cello from which the trio derives its name. Perhaps it was the size of the hall or perhaps the coolness of the auditorium as was remarked by some members of the audience, but her artistry would have been evident on whatever cello she played.

Gates, who, as they say, "in real life," is Miss Worthington's husband, played with fine conviction when required and connubial subservience when he desired with imagination and insight galore. He was ever in complete command of his instrument with a fine lifted tone from pianissimo to fortissimo exploiting all of the sonorous shadings of which the clarinet is capable.

Miss Stevens possessed of a fine sense of dynamic proportion, was ever evident without ever being obtrusive, an accompanist and a trio performer par excellence.

Although this concert concluded the local community concert season, reciprocity concerts are still available at no cost to membership card holders in Fullerton, Riverside, San Bernardino, Fontana, Whittier and other Southland communities.

Pomona's Children Need To Be First! DON BARNES Will Put Them First!

DON BARNES promises are realistic and simple, but essential to the growth and cohesiveness of the Pomona Unified School District. As A Board of Trustee Member, DON BARNES will develop policy that speaks to . . .

- Developing positive community input
- Promoting positive student self-image
- Liaison with the business community
- Monitoring and evaluating use of funds
- Utilizing available resourses
- Emphasizing training for the world of work

DON BARNES feels that this plan will result in a higher standard of achievement.

Please won't you help us see that is elected to the Pomona School Board on March 8, 1977

Paid for by the committee to elect DON BARNES

On campus

Jane Goodale, professor of anthropology at Bryn Mawr College, will speak on "The Contaminating Women: The Kaulong of New Britain," Monday, at 4:15 p.m. in Avery 201 on the PITZER COLLEGE campus.

Her lecture, second in the Pitzer College Anthropology Colloquium Series, is free and open to the public.

CHAFFEY COLLEGE colloquium on international and domestic issues is scheduled for noon to 2 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday in the little theater.

The discussion series, organized by a class in "Communist Worlds" will be open to the public.

Each session, leading to audience participation, will be keyed to presentations by a visiting political science professor and three Chaffey students. Moderating the program will be Arthur Rachwald and Michael Viera of the political science faculty here.

Featured at the first session will be Morton Schwartz from UC Riverside with a paper entitled "Soviet Perceptions of the United States."

J.K. Zawodny from Claremont Graduate School and Pomona College will head the final session. His paper for this part of the program is entitled "International Organizational Problems of Terrorist Movements as the Catalyst of Violence."

There will be no charge for admission.

Art with an ancient African look from the hand of a second-year student will be on display through Thursday in the CHAFFEY COLLEGE library foyer.

On exhibit are the sculptures, ceramics, carvings and scrimshaw of Howard Ducksworth, an Upland resident whose works are obviously inspired by his African ancestry.

Ducksworth's subjects range from men to tribal gods. He is also preoccupied with creating the likenesses of the dolphin, the serpent, the longhorn and the elephant.

Finland imposes stiff tobacco, alcohol laws

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — New laws went into effect in Finland today banning smoking in all public buildings and making it illegal to advertise any new tobacco or alcoholic products.

Tobacco manufacturers rushed eight new brands of products onto the market before March 1 to beat the advertising ban, part of laws legislators hope will make Finns a healthier people.

Tobacco products on the market before March 1 can be advertised for one more year under the new laws, which also imposed an immediate ban on selling tobacco products to anyone under 16.

Alcoholic beverages can now be legally promoted only inside restaurants, in publications of the state alcohol monopoly, Alko, and in specialized tourist and restaurant publications.

Alko said liquor ads could be taken down gradually, as long as all of them were gone by the end of the year.

'America is' theme

Fourth-grader honored

A fourth-grader at Vista del Valle Elementary School will receive a special trophy during Claremont's Fourth of July celebration because his suggestion of "America is Beautiful" was chosen as the theme for the college community's Independence Day celebration.

Khoa Nguyen, a Vietnamese refugee, was one of more than 60 elementary school children who submitted ideas for themes.

The second-place winner was "Our Country Is . . ." and was suggested by Carl Larter, a Sumner School fifth-grader. That theme will be used as a parade theme. Larter also will receive a trophy.

The city community services department sponsored the contest. Winning entries were chosen by the Fourth of July committee.

Awarded certificates for their entries will be Ray Fennigan, Condit School; Mike and Chris Neely, Condit School; and Heidi Willey, Chaparral School.

China art show set

GREENVALE, N.Y. (AP) — An exhibition of 170 objects, the Arts of China, will be on view at the C.W. Post Art Gallery at Long Island University through March 27. The exhibit spans 4,000 years of Chinese art and history.

Johnson stars again

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — UCLA will enter the NCAA basketball playoffs next Saturday as one of many teams figuring to have a chance to win the national championship in a well-balanced field.

And the Bruins' biggest weapon is All-American forward Marques Johnson.

The 6-7 senior played his final collegiate game in Los Angeles Saturday afternoon in leading the Bruins to a 78-69 victory over cross-town rival USC at the Sports Arena.

Johnson showed why he is the favorite to be selected the College Player of the Year as he scored 25 points and 18 rebounds - equaling a career high in leading the Bruins to victory in a tougher game than expected against the last-place Trojans.

"Marques Johnson is a super talent - a great leader on the floor and off - and he's a wonderful person. I've never coached a player like him," said UCLA coach Gene Bartow.

Without Johnson, UCLA could have lost its regular season finale to the outmanned Trojans.

But the Bruins will take a 23-4 record into the NCAA playoffs next week when they face an at-large opponent, which will be named today, at Pocatello, Ida.

For USC, it was the end of a rough year as coach Bob Boyd's squad ends up with a 6-20 mark, 2-12 in the Pacific-8.

The Trojans gave the 9,300 fans in attendance plus a television audience some thrills in grabbing a 10-point lead in the first half and staying close until the five minutes.

All hopes of an upset vanished after USC got within three points (66-63) with 5:02 left in the game.

UCLA then sank six consecutive free throws to ice the victory, its 16th straight over USC.

The Trojans, using a zone to frustrate UCLA's inside game, surprised everyone by scoring several layup baskets in the early going for a 27-17 lead with 8:40 to go in the first half.

But UCLA, using its press to create turnovers, exploded for nine straight points in 74-second stretch to pull within one.

The Bruins took a three-point lead with 1:38 left in the half but USC scored the final two baskets to hold a 43-42 advantage at the intermission.

USC stretched its lead to to five points by scoring the first four points of the second half but UCLA took control by ringing up 10 straight points to permanently take the lead.

"I think our team played well," Bartow said. "I didn't think USC would miss in the first half, even though our defense was good. USC was ready to play a great game — and it did."

"The keys today were our zone press, hitting the boards well and keeping our turnovers low," Bartow added.

USC shot 50.8 per cent from the floor after making 57.1 in the first half. UCLA ended up with 47.8 per cent.

The key to the final margin was at the foul line as UCLA sank 12 of 14 while USC was perfect but had only three opportunities.

Thanks to Johnson, UCLA enjoyed a 36-29 edge on the boards with several second half baskets coming on second shots. The Bruins also had only nine turnovers to USC's 11.

David Greenwood (16), Jim Spillane (14) and Roy Hamilton (10) also scored in double figures for UCLA while Paul Henderson (21) and Greg White (18) paced USC.

Why did Boyd use the zone?

"Except for one or two occurrences, while our zone was set, I thought we contained them pretty well," he said. "You'll notice Johnson hasn't set most of his records against zones. He's somewhat minimized by them. They rely heavily on their two perimeter shooters instead."

"We didn't shoot well against the zone today," Bartow said. "I'm sure we'll see it in the NCAA playoffs. The zone bothers anybody if you're not shooting well from the outside."

How will UCLA do in the playoffs?

Boyd gave this opinion: "This is a very strong UCLA team with good balance. Some of their other teams were pre-tournament favorites to win the NCAA. And they did exactly that. I don't think this team is the odds-on favorite to win the national championship. It's one of a number of very good teams."

Rutherford and Foyt(?) win poles

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

Johnny Rutherford is certain and A.J. Foyt "probable" for the pole positions in today's inaugural Datsun Twin 200 at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Rutherford won the pole for the championship (Indy) car race at 1:30 p.m. Foyt has the fastest time so far (153.035 mph) for the stock car event which is slated to get underway at 10:30 a.m.

Five cars were still in line waiting to qualify Saturday at 6:05 a.m. when darkness forced closing of the track.

Bobby Unser and Mike Hiss were among the five which also included Gary Mathews of Fresno, Terry Wood of San Bernardino and Ernie Stierly (address not listed).

Qualifications ran long because installation time on the popoff valves for the Indy cars was much longer than anticipated.

That combined with a half hour later start (because of having to extend practice time to make up for Friday's loss) and a crash that shut down the track another half hour resulted in failure to complete the qualifying.

Those last five drivers will have their qualifying session beginning at 8 a.m. this morning.

Foyt scorched the 2½ mile oval in the stock car qualifications. His 153.035 mph in his '76 Chevy is nearly a mile per hour faster than that of Mission Hills' Jimmy Insolo's 152.207 mph in his '75 Chevy.

The fiery Texan had to settle for the number six spot on the Indy car grid and the blame probably lies with faulty installation of the popoff valve.

A.J. was delayed more than five minutes in starting his qualifying run while USAC officials labored to get the device installed.

Although he had run 194.734 in practice, the best Foyt could do in qualifying was 191.002 mph.

When he came back into the pits, he jumped out of his car, yanked off his helmet and slammed it down into the car.

"That bleeping valve wouldn't fit right and there was a bleeping gap in the fitting that kept me from getting any bleeping boost," A.J. yelled. "I could have run a lot faster."

Then he stomped off to his garage. When last sighted, he was still waving his arms angrily, yelling and cussing.

However, the popoff valve will not be required today.

It remained for another Texan, Rutherford, to run away from everyone and win the pole position.

Rutherford was nearly four miles an hour faster (197.368) than the number two qualifier, Tom Sneva (193.590).

"We had a few chassis problems when we got here, but we got them sorted out and everything went fine today," said Rutherford. Sneva was the guy I was most concerned about. Not Foyt.

"When A.J. is right and has everything together, he's quick right from the first day. But he's having problems."

Ironically Rutherford said he didn't use the maximum 80 pounds of "boost" allowed with the popoff valve. And after initial trouble, his was installed perfectly.

"The holes fit the studs on the manifold but were too small for the flange," Rutherford revealed. "We just got a drill and drilled 'em out and it fit fine."

Janet Guthrie, who has had engine problems everytime out, burned a piston in practice Saturday morning and did not appear for qualifications.

Al Unser's crew had to change an engine before he qualified third fastest at 192.513 mph. It might be noted that the three fastest qualifiers have the English-built Cosworth engines in their cars.

Only 25 cars qualified for the 26-car race. When it was announced that rookie Cliff Hucul would be allowed to start (He was in line twice but engine difficulties forced him out) as the 26th car, Bill Vukovich's crew protested and demanded the same break.

Vukovich had blown an engine and didn't have time to get another ready. A drawing was held. Vukovich won and he will start instead of Hucul.

Hugh Pearson of Bakersfield was injured in the stock car qualifying when he smashed into the wall coming out of turn two and skidded over 200 feet into the infield.

Although it took nearly 20 minutes to free him, he reportedly suffered only a concussion and bruises.

PROBABLE POLE-SITTERS

A. J. Foyt (L) and Johnny Rutherford (R) relax prior to qualifying Saturday for today's Datsun Twin 200 races.

N.D. shatters USF's streak

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — "I owe a lot to St. Jude," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "He's the saint of the impossible."

After racking up 29 straight victories without a loss, San Francisco's basketball team might have seemed invincible, but not to Phelps and Notre Dame.

The Fighting Irish are in the business of shattering West Coast winning streaks. With the help of a vocal home crowd and second-half heroics by Don Williams and Toby Knight, the Irish knocked off the Dons 93-82 Saturday to end top-ranked San Francisco's hope of a perfect season.

"We started the game in a press. They've never been pressed before," said Phelps. "I didn't think they could match up with us defensively."

Three years ago the Irish snapped UCLA's 88-game winning streak and six years ago they broke the Bruins' 19-game streak, both victories coming at South Bend.

"The home crowd was very important for ourselves," said Phelps. "It inspired us ... the crowd juiced us to keep us going."

San Francisco Coach Bob Gaillard agreed the fans had more of an effect on Notre Dame than on the visitors.

"Our players know people yell and scream. They knew it all year long. I don't think it affected us," said Gaillard. "The crowd didn't make us crack or miss good percentage shots."

Williams, who scored 25 points and ignited a second-half attack, said, "The student body is great. They pulled us through in a lot of ballgames when we were down."

Haselrig wins title

SACRAMENTO — Ontario High wrestler Bill Haselrig won the 157-pound state championship here at American River College Saturday night.

Haselrig, a senior who ends the season with a 39-2 record, recorded his 31st pin of the year in the championship match. Leading 8-2, Haselrig pinned Youseff Abed of Aptos High, the Central Coast Section runnerp, at 5:10.

In his semi-final match, Haselrig had decisioned Greg Thomas of Berkeley, the North Coast Section champion, 12-5.

The Ontario wrestler won four matches at the state tournament. Chino's Joe Alaniz, 2-2 at the finals, and San Dimas' Bob Pleasant, 1-2, did not place.

Clayton Valley High of Concord edged Merced for the team title as five Southern Section wrestlers won five of the 13 weight-class titles.

Dionne gives L.A. 3-3 tie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marcel Dionne fired in his 42nd goal of the season with seven seconds left to play Saturday night, giving the Los Angeles Kings a 3-3 tie with the Pittsburgh Penguins in a National Hockey League battle.

Dionne, who also added two assists, now has 100 points for the season—a new Kings scoring record.

Dionne's goal came after Los Angeles goalie Rogie Vachon was removed to add an extra attacker on the Kings' power play. The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the third period on goals by rookie Greg Malone, who drilled his 16th and 17th of the season.

His first score, with 10:46 left to play, was an unassisted score from 25 feet. A little over three minutes later he struck for his second, on a pass from Blair Chapman.

The Kings earlier took a 2-1 lead on Bob Berry's second goal of the night, a 15-footer. Berry shot Los Angeles into a 1-0 lead at 2:23 of the first period after taking a pass from Dionne, but the Penguins tied it 1-1 at 12:52 of the second period on Rick Kehoe's 26th goal of the season.

King Pellinore favored for Santa Anita 'Cap

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — The purse is up and the question remains, who's the real monarch of Santa Anita racing.

King Pellinore gets the title until Sunday's 40th renewal of the Santa Anita Handicap. Then he may find his high-weight of 130 pounds could give him trouble.

Only four in the past have won under such an impost.

Ancient Title proved he wasn't so ancient in winning the San Antonio Stakes and the 7-year-old gelding impressed enough to get 125 pounds for this 1¼ mile test.

The gross, if the 13 entries all run, reaches $273,550 for the most in this race and the winner collected $150,000 for less than two minutes of action.

King Pellinore holds the world record for the 1¼ at 1:57 3-5 but, in addition to Ancient Title, he'll be facing a 4-year-old who equalled the 1⅛-mile record at 1:45 2/5 — Crystal Water.

With Laffit Pincay Jr. riding, Crystal Water gets in with 122 pounds, one less than L'Heureux with Donald Pierce.

Second place will be worth $40,000 with $30,000 for third, $20,000 for fourth and $10,000 for fifth in the rich outing.

In post position order, the field will have Faliraki, Ancient Title, Properantes, Legendario III, Confederate Yankee, Gallivantor, Pocket Park, Kirby Lane, King Pellinore, Austin Mittler, Anne's Pretender, Crystal Water and L'Heureux.

Robyn Smith gets the ride on Austin Mittler, a lightweight at 110 who doesn't figure to challenge, but nevertheless, this will mark the first time in the 40-year history of this Big 'Cap where there has been a lady rider.

King Pellinore never has carried 130 and he skipped an appearance in the 1⅛-mile San Antonio when asked to shoulder that much. But this is a richer and more presitigious affair.

Last fall King Pellinore established his world record in winning the Carleton F. Burke Handicap at Santa Anita's Oak Tree meeting.

The King won't have his regular rider. Bill Shoemaker, the record holder among jockeys, was suspended five days for an infraction last Sunday and it carries through this weekend feature. So Darrel McHargue, who hasn't ridden a Santa Anita Handicap winner, gets the assignment.

Three Dodgers hit home runs

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Reggie Smith, Steve Yeager and Ron Cey hit home runs Saturday as one Los Angeles Dodger squad defeated another 8-4 in a spring practice baseball game.

Smith and Cey each drove in three runs and had three hits. Smith also doubled and singled, while Cey added a triple and a single.

Smith, who had shoulder surgery this winter, hit his two-run homer in the first inning off Don Sutton, who is scheduled to be the Dodgers' opening day starter. Cey and Yeager hit their homers off knuckleball relief pitcher Charlie Hough.

The two teams were named for Dodger trainers; the winners were Bill Buhlers and the losers Jack Homels.

The Buhlers are the likely starting lineup for opening day April 7: Dave Lopez, second base; Bill Russell, shortstop; Smith, right field; Cey, third base; Steve Garey, first base; Rick Monday, center field; Dusty Baker, left field; and Yeager, catcher.

Another intrasquad game was planned today. The first exhibition game is Thursday in Winter Haven against Boston.

Bobby Grich probably will undergo traction

HOLTVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Grich will probably spend the first week of the exhibition season in traction instead of playing shortstop for the California Angels.

The decision to send the former Baltimore star home to be examined by Dr. Jules Rasinski was made Saturday, shortly before the Angels played their first intra-squad game of the spring.

Bob Clear's Champions defeated Del Crandall's Cowboys 1-0.

"We're not going to fool around with this any longer," General Manager Harry Dalton reported. "Grich will be examined by Dr. Rasinski and he should be able to join us next weekend in Palm Springs."

There have been rumors Grich has a slipped disc. The player denied it and the Angels say X-rays of Grich's back indicate the problem is of a muscular nature.

The four-time Gold Glove winner at Baltimore had been expected to resume full-scale workouts Saturday, but his back stiffened on him Friday night.

If Grich isn't ready for the season opener April 6 at Seattle, Manager Norm Sherry has a number of options. He can use last year's opening day shortstop, Orlando Ramirez, or Mario Guerrero, who was acquired in mid-season and led the club in hitting.

Sherry could also use Dave Chalk, who played shortstop last season, but who is now engaged in a battle with Ron Jackson for the third base job.

The only run of Saturday's game was scored by Jerry Remy, who tripled in the first inning and scored on a fly ball by Thad Bosley.

Damien to host soccer contest

Damien High will be at home Tuesday afternoon for its CIF 4A semifinal soccer match with Santa Barbara.

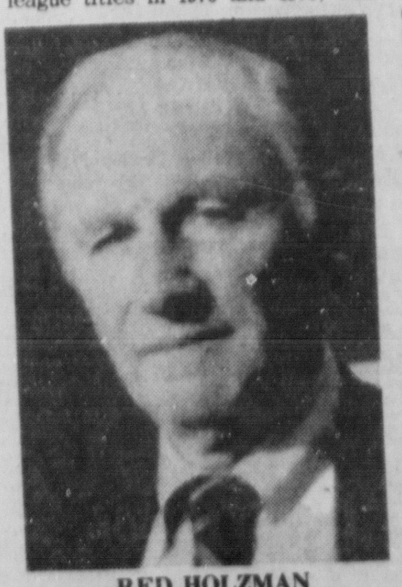

The Spartans won a coin toss Saturday morning with S.B., thus winning the right to host the semifinal clash.

Ticket prices for Tuesday afternoon's game at Damien will be priced at $1.50 for adults and $1 for students with proper ID and children under 12.

Chaffey also won the right to host its semifinal 3A soccer match with Montebello, but the Tigers had not yet set a definite time for the contest. It will be played either Tuesday night or Wednesday at Chaffey.

Red Holzman to vacate post

NEW YORK (AP) — Red Holzman, the dean of National Basketball Association coaches who guided the New York Knicks to league titles in 1970 and 1973, will step down as coach of the Knicks at the conclusion of the current season, it was announced Saturday.

RED HOLZMAN

No successor was named, although Knicks President Mike Burke said former New York center Willis Reed was "a leading candidate" to coach the team next season.

"Red has been a magnificent coach," Burke told a Madison Square Garden news conference. "He has been without peer during his coaching career. But sometimes you have to move along."

And by mutual consent, it was decided the time to move along was now.

Since the 1973 title season, the Knicks have had their problems. They are currently headed for their third straight losing season and their second out of the playoffs.

The 56-year-old Holzman, the second-winningest coach in NBA history who had one year remaining on his contract as coach, then is committed to the team for five years as a scout and consultant, said it was just a matter of advancing the process by one year.

"So it will end one year earlier," he said. "But the relationship will go on for many years. It was decided that this was best for the team, and that's okay with me.

Holzman, now in his 14th pro coaching season, has a record of 537 victories and 429 defeats.

Tar Heels make playoffs

By The Associated Press

North Carolina defeated Virginia 75-69 in the Atlantic Coast Conference finals and led a group of newly-crowned college basketball champions into the NCAA playoffs.

Joining the Tar Heels in the NCAAs after Saturday night's action were Arkansas, Cincinnati, Princeton, Southern Illinois, Middle Tennessee, Duquesne, Utah, Idaho State and Syracuse.

Seventh-ranked Arkansas won the Southwestern Conference championship by beating Houston 80-74; No. 14 Cincinnati trimmed Georgia Tech 74-61 in the championship game of the Metro-7 playoffs; Princeton nailed down the Ivy League title with a 61-39 victory over Yale; Southern Illinois captured the Missouri Valley Conference title with an 82-69 decision over West Texas State; Middle Tennessee took the Ohio Valley Conference championship with a 77-65 victory over Austin Peay and Duquesne won the Eastern Collegiate Basketball League title with a 57-54 victory over Villanova.

Idaho State won the Big Sky title with a 61-55 decision over Weber State. Utah won the Western Athletic Conference as a combined result of its 67-54 victory over Brigham Young Saturday afternoon and Arizona State's 95-89 triumph over Arizona Saturday night.

Syracuse, representing the Upstate New York Region, defeated Old Dominion, of the Southern Division, 67-64, to claim an at-large berth in the NCAA regionals.

Fourth-ranked UCLA, which won its way into the NCAAs by clinching the Pac-8 crown earlier in the week, completed its regular season with a 78-69 victory over Southern Cal.

Earlier in the day, Holy Cross, St. John's and Hofstra gained berths in the NCAA playoffs and Notre Dame and Marquette enhanced their chances for post-season play with signifiicant victories.

Marquette, meanwhile, took a 72-60 decision over Creighton, an independent power in the Midwest, and expected to get an invitation from the NCAA selection committee, which will announce teams for the at-large berths Sunday.

Meanwhile, Tennessee defeated Kentucky 81-79 Saturday and moved into a tie for the Southeastern Conference title with the Wildcats. Each has a game remaining Monday night and if the teams both win and finish the regular season in a tie, as expected, Tennessee will represent the SEC in the NCAA Mideast Regionals. Kentucky presumably would be given an at-large berth in that event.

Michigan, which clinched an NCAA berth earlier in the week, earned its first outright Big 10 championship by beating Purdue 84-79. The Minnesota Gophers, on probation this season because of NCAA violations, finished their season as the Big 10 runnerup with a 105-82 victory over Northwestern.

Butch Lee's 18 points led 19th-ranked Marquette, 20-6, over Creighton. Outscoring Creighton 34-26 in the first half, Marquette gained what Coach Al McGuire called "a real good chance" for an NCAA invitation.

Connors bests Ilie

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Jimmy Connors, aggressive and determined, successfully defended his Heavyweight Championship of Tennis title Saturday by downing a weary Ilie Nastase 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-3.

Connors, who has won all four matches in the "Heavyweight" series, collected $250,000 for his efforts.

Connors, apparently not bothered by a knee injury suffered in Toronto two weeks ago, got stronger as the match progressed under sunny skies with temperatures in the 80s and wind gusts at times up to 20 to 30 miles per hour.

By winning, Connors managed some revenge against a player who had beaten him four of the last five times they had met. Nastase holds a 15-6 edge over Connors lifetime.

Connors first won the "Heavyweight" title against Rod Laver of Australia. He successfully defended it against Australian John Newcombe and Spain's Manuel Orantes.

More than 3,000 fans watched the match played at the Cerromar Beach Hotel, about 25 miles west of San Juan. The contest was also seen live in the United States on CBS TV.

Owls extend cage season

SAN MARCOS — Citrus College stayed alive in the Mission Conference basketball playoffs by upsetting host Palomar here Saturday night.

The Owls, who finished third in the conference with an 8-6 mark, scored a narrow 59-57 triumph over Palomar, conference co-champion along with Saddleback at 13-1.

Citrus will continue playoff action Wednesday against Saddleback, 101-92 winner over Riverside City College in another Saturday night game.

Forward Eric Childs led the Owls with a game-high 22 points Saturday and teammate Bill Rutz added 11. Chaffey is now 18-13 on the year.

Sagehens run well

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Pomona-Pitzer captured seven events in the Men's division Saturday afternoon on the Sagehens' track in a non-scoring meet with Claremont-Mudd, Caltech, and Redlands.

Redlands dominated the Women's division while Jenny Stary captured the shot put, long jump and the high jump.

Miss Stary, a graduate of Claremont High, gave P-P its only three decisions in the Women's division. She won the high jump with a jump of 5 feet, 3 inches and the shot put with a toss of 37-2. She jumped 17-10¾ in the long jump while placing second in the first heat of the 100-meter intermediate hurdles.

Jerry Harnett of P-P broke a personal record in the Three mile event as he covered the 12 laps in a time of 14:22.6. It was 22 seconds faster than his previous best mark of 14.42.

Dwayne Burgess of Redlands captured the 100 yard Men's dash with a 9.9 effort. Mark Frazier and Stuart McLain of C-M finished in a tie for second at 10.4.

John Armstrong of P-P took the Men's mile with a time of 4:16.6. In the Women's mile, Pam Morris of Occidental defeated two Redlands' runners in a race that featured just three runners. Her time was 5:43.7.

Redlands' Women's squad captured nine of 15 scheduled running and field events.

Leopards sweep, Stags lose pair

La Verne College swept a doubleheader from Caltech's Engineers Saturday afternoon, by scores of 16-0 and 12-0. In non-conference baseball, UC Irvine dealt Claremont-Mudd a double blow, as the Anteaters downed the Stags 10-3, and 2-0.

Both of the La Verne Leos' games were just five-inning affairs, as the host Engineers surrendered each time after the game was officially a "complete" contest.

Three La Verne home runs highlighted the first game. Wayne Redfearn, David Chavez, and David Nash all popped HR's for the Leos. Redfearn added a triple in that game.

Paul McGuire and Brent Jetton pitched for the Leos and fanned six men between them. Neither walked a Caltech player.

Nash belted a grand slam homer in the second contest, as he ended up with a double and a pair of HR's for the afternoon.

Steve Goggans pitched all five frames for La Verne, allowing just one hit, while striking out three.

At Irvine, the Anteaters came up with a six-run fourth inning to blitz the Stags. UCI had 12 hits in the game, and one-half of those were doubles. Bobby Neilson (0-1) was the Stags' losing pitcher.

In the nightcap, UCI only was allowed four hits by C-M's Mitch Katlin, but the Anteaters still managed to score twice in the first inning to win.

Mark Stott, Dave Meyer, and John Pignotti had one hit apiece for the Stags.

Claremont-Mudd's record is now 1-6, and will travel to Occidental College on Tuesday for a 3 p.m. game.

La Verne College moved over the .500 mark with its victories. The Leos are 4-3 this season. They will host Caltech on Tuesday at 3.

In other action Saturday, Chaffey College defeated Cal Poly Pomona's junior varsity team, 6-3, at Chaffey.

Sports briefs

AMITYVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Ron Letellier, who was named the Professional Golfers Association Club Pro of the Year in 1976, died Saturday of cancer at Brunswick Hospital. He was 42.

Letellier played infrequently on the pro tour and most recently was the club pro at the Cold Spring Country Club in Huntington, N.Y. He won numerous events in the Metropolitan New York area including the Met Open and the Long Island PGA.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Former English star Bill Glazier has signed a contract to play goal for the St. Louis Stars this season, the North American Soccer League team said Saturday.

Glazier, once considered one of England's top six goalkeepers, performed for 11 seasons with Coventry City before closing his career with Brentford in 1976.

His 11-season stint with Coventry City included 343 games and a 1.32 goals-against average, including a 0.85 goalsagainst mark in 1970-71.

The signing of Glazier, 33, boosted the Stars' roster to 14 players under contract for the 1977 NASL season.

Conteh retains WBC title

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — John Conteh of Britain stopped Len Hutchins of Detroit in the third round Saturday night and retained his World Boxing Club light heavyweight title.

Hutchins was badly cut over the left eye in the first round — apparently in a clash of heads. Blood ran down his face during the next two rounds.

In the third Conteh, attacking the damaged eye, put Hutchins down and referee Sid Nathan stopped the fight.

Hank Grooms, Hutchins' manager, angrily shouted at the referee and the crowd as the fight ended.

"No referee in the world would allow that," he yelled.

Grooms said he would file a protest to the WBC.

The wildly partisan crowd yelled for Conteh, who was defending his title for the third time — and for the first time in his home city.

Hutchins fought bravely in the second round with blood running down his face. Conteh twice had him against the ropes, but he held on.

At the end of that round the cut over Hutchins' eye looked deeper.

Conteh, who has twice suffered fractures of his right hand, used his left for almost every punch. But in the third round he suddenly landed a heavy punch with his right and Hutchins went down.

Tee to Cup

Tourney time in La Verne

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

La Verne's enterprising Chamber of Commerce has another golf tournament in the hopper. It's called the Price is Right, and the place is right with San Dimas Canyon as the setting.

The entry fee of $15 covers green fees, cart, awards and dinner. Golf only is $10 with dinner only $6.

The tourney is set for Friday, March 25 with tee off times scheduled from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. Trophies will be awarded for low gross, low net, Calloway, and prizes will be given for longest drive on No. 18 and closest to the pin on No. 2 and No. 10.

Entries can be made by contacting the Chamber office at 2078 Bonita, La Verne. The phone number is 593-5265.

Bob Floyd of Marshall Canyon Men's Club was the only player to par the treacherous ninth at Indian Hills in Riverside during a recent club tournament. Anyone who has played that "marvelous" hole knows what a feat it was.

A bogey is beautiful on the hole; a par a monumental accomplishment.

Jerry Jors shot an 86 to win low gross honors for Marshall Canyon fellows at Indian Hills.

The Progress-Bulletin's well-organized Wednesday league will begin play on March 16. San Dimas Canyon will again be the testing ground for some 22 P-B golfers. Doug Burnett of composing is president of the league this year.

The courses in the Pomona Valley during the past few days have been wind tunnels. I'm not certain which day, Wednesday or Thursday, was windier or colder, but I do know golfers were turning blue at valley layouts.

I had a chance to play Chino Creek at El Prado with football coach Jim Rawls on Thursday, and we found it a blustery experience. I have always liked the El Prado courses and playing in the wind just made me respect them more.

Incidentally Rawls of Chino High is a rapidly improving player and hits his 3-wood on occasions right down the middle some 240 to 250 yards.

The CBS presentation of the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic was an admirable effort. My nomination for the two best golf announcers goes to Jack Whitaker and Ken Venturi.

Venturi though is far ahead of the field, in a class by himself. The former U.S. Open winner is especially informative, yet always relaxed. He knows the intricacies of the game and lets the viewer in on the secrets of the pros.

Ron Squire Memorial a hit, may continue

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio College's first annual Ron Squire Memorial Game was well-received Saturday afternoon by a large crowd at the Mounties' diamond in Walnut.

Cal Poly won the exhibition contest with their neighbors, 11-9, in an exciting affair which featured a little bit of everything for the baseball buff.

The game was staged to raise funds for the Ron Squire Scholarship Fund at the Walnut campus. Squire coached the Mountie baseballers from 1964 to 1969 and was a counselor at the school at the time of his death last year.

"We really appreciated the fact that John Scolinos and his team agreed to this game," noted MSAC coach Art Mazmanian afterward. "It was a good game for both of us, I feel. They swing the bat real well."

Mazmanian and Poly skipper Scolinos agreed afterward to try to make the event an annual fund-raising feature. If they can arrange to have every game as slam-bang as Saturday's clash, the contest should be a major diamond attraction in the valley.

The Broncos broke open a 6-6 tie in the seventh inning off MSAC relief hurler Chris Axelgard, as Jay Johnson and Kevin McLean drew walks and Rufus Thompson beat out an infield dribbler to load the sacks with no outs.

Darrell Miller, a freshman catcher from Riverside, then smacked a long fly to right which brought in Johnson with the go-ahead run.

Bobby Reyes followed that with a long triple to right, scoring both McLean and Thompson and making it 9-6 Poly.

Host MSAC rallied for two runs in the last of the seventh on Brian Menasco's two-run single, making it a close 9-8 game once again.

Poly got one run back in the top of the eighth, on McLean's RBI single, but the Mounties came right back with a run of their Bob Costello's RBI one-bagger to make it 10-9.

It became 11-9 in the top of the ninth, as MSAC's third pitcher of the day, David Drury, walked Ray Pekarcik with the sacks full to force in the score.

The Mounties tried a last-ditch rally in the last of the ninth, as Larry Marsh singled with two away, but Poly hurler Joe Chacon got pinchhitter George Davis on a liner to short to end the wild game.

Chacon, who came on in relief of Poly starter John Hoban and hurled the final five innings, picked up the win. Both Chacon and Hoban are freshmen.

The Broncos' 17-hit attack was led by Pekarcik and Thompson with three hits apiece.

MSAC's 16-hit onslaught was paced by Costello with four singles in five at bats and Mark Canavan with a perfect three-for-three afternoon. Menasco finished the day with three RBIs for the Mounties, who are 9-3 on the year.

PALOS VERDES — With a field of 13 teams running here in the Palos Verdes Relays, Claremont High's girls' track team finished in eighth place.

Camarillo High and Rolling Hills High tied for the first place spot, while Beverly Hills High finished third.

Claremont came in third in the two-mile team race, as Martha Brownlee was the fourth girl to cross the finish line. Martha's time was 12:34.8.

Teammate Cherry Henry came in just after Brownlee, with a 12:36.7 clocking.

The Wolfpack was third in the two-mile relay, with a time of 10:30.2. Both Brownlee and Henry finished under the 2:30 mark.

The 'Pack also placed fifth in both the shot put and high jump events.

Claremont's girls' and boys' track squads will host the Chino Cowboys in a San Antonio League battle next Thursday afternoon at 3.

Jim Lee, popular pro at Red Hill C.C., gives this advice for playing well on windy days. "The ball must be struck low, crisp and straight. To achieve this shot, use a slightly less lofted club than normal, choke down on the grip slightly, and finish the shot as soon after impact as possible.

"Regarding the third point, strike the ball solidly with your left wrist very firm. This will shorten your follow through and keep the ball driving low and forward." Thank you, Jim.

La Mancha's Replay tournament winners were announced recently. They are Bonnie Woodrow and Alta Hutchins, first flight; Lillian Smith and Mae Extale, second flight; Bev Greenwood and Mae Wellborn, third flight.

Talking about women, 69 top women pros will play in the $305,000 Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle championship at Mission Hills C.C. near Palm Springs from March 29-April 3. The winner — get this — receives $36,000, the highest prize in women's golf history, plus a 1977 Chrysler Cordoba, and a good-looking trophy naturally.

You know, I've never seen a woman's golf tournament. I've never jumped into a car and said, "Oh, boy, today I'm going to watch a whole bunch of ladies play golf."

I did see Patty Berg play an exhibition way back in the 1940s against our course pro. Whupped him good, she did too. But Patty was almost unique then. She could hit a ball about 230 and played always in the 70s. I think she was the only girl in those days I saw who could break 110. Yep, I don't believe I saw more than two or three ladies play under 100 in all the years I hung around golf courses.

But take today. Why those women pros hit the ball so far that it's out of sight. They putt, in many cases, BETTER than men pros. I'll tell you if I ever got into a foursome with those girls and they beat me fair and square, I'd probably hang up my shoes and toss my clubs into a corner. I guess that's one reason I haven't seen the sharpshooters on the women's trail play. It's too big a blow to my ego.

But I think this year I'm going to say "What the heck." I might as well give the gals a break. I think I just might drive over to Palm Springs and watch those long hitters break my heart. Anyway, I might learn something.

Jack Nicklaus will make his only Southland appearance this year in the $225,000 MONY (Mutual of New York) Tournament of Champions.

"I'm looking forward to competing in the Tournament of Champions," said Nicklaus. "La Costa is one of the best-groomed courses we play all year."

Nicklaus did not compete last year for "family reasons."

The richest event in the West will be played April 14-17 at La Costa Country Club. Only winners of major PGA tourneys in the past 12 months, plus the British Open, are eligible to compete for the $45,000 first prize.

Nicklaus has indicated he's back on his game by winning the Jackie Gleason Inverrary last Sunday.

But he'll have to contend with a strong field at La Costa, 29 top-flight players in all. Defending champ Don January leads the list with fellows like Al Geiberger, Jerry Pate, Lee Trevino, Rik Massengale, Tom Watson, and red-hot Bruce Lietzke.

Pom Lanes will hold exhibition

American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame member Joe Norris and Mrs. Mary Gardener will conduct a bowling exhibition Wednesday at Pomona's Pom Lanes at 1 p.m.

Norris is also a member of two other Hall's of Fame in Michigan. He will roll an exhibition match and give instruction to individual bowlers.

Gardener of San Carlos California will also participate in the clinic to offer free instruction to local bowlers.

Norris has been in bowling professionally for quite some time with his famous Stroph's Beer Team that dominated from 1934 to 1947. That team also competed in the 1936 Olympics in Berlin.

Norris was selected to the All-American Bowling team eight straight years in the 40's and owns 160 medals and trophies.

Mrs. Gardener has only been bowling professionally since December of 1969. She has won many events in her seven years as a pro. She has traveled to parts of Europe, Russia, and Japan competing and promoting bowling.

Wells joins MSAC staff

Former Edgewood High head coach Ken Wells has joined the football staff at Mt. San Antonio College.

Wells, a former Bonita High and MSAC star athlete, will be assigned a defensive coaching position on Mal Eaton's staff.

Ranching changed by convenience, economics

Telephone, color television at 'home' on lonely range

EDITOR'S NOTE: The romance of home on the range is giving way to convenience and economics. The loneliness of the prairie is bridged by the telephone and color TV. But ranchers they are and, most of them say, they will always be.

By JAMES CARRIER

BELLE FOURCHE, S.D. (AP) — Kent Robinson is a real cowboy. He wears the boots and the hat. He rides a horse and calls the cattle on his 3,000-acre ranch "doggies."

He also manages his herd by computer, reads Newsweek through bifocals and spends hours in an office in a $55,000 all-electric home.

His three children are learning the ropes of handling cattle, but they like to get out of the barn by 4 p.m. to watch reruns of Dobie Gillis on television.

The Robinsons are a ranching family in what the rest of America calls "The West." The Marlboro man lives here. Cattle are still branded, time is measured by the season, and they and their neighbors are only a generation away from the characters who shot their way into legends in the nearby towns of Deadwood and Sundance.

Ranchers say there is nothing like riding across your own land on a still summer night. You're your own boss, they say, and not too many people are anymore. But in the same breath they say they are beholden to the banker and have lost control of the market. They often speak of the pressures, the push, the lack of time.

To the Robinsons and hundreds of families like them who raise cattle on vast tracts of land, ranching is no longer just a way of life. It is a business.

If Robinson rides off into the sunset, it's because he has put in a 12-hour day doctoring new calves in the winter pasture and he's late for supper. And he's more likely driving a pick-up truck, not riding a horse.

John Morris, who runs a 15,000-acre ranch seven miles from Cheyenne, Wyo., says he doesn't have time to spend on a horse. "It seems in the ranching business, bureaucracy and red tape keep someone on the telephone, going to the bank and managing — strictly business. So you find yourself more and more riding in a pickup, working behind a desk. There are just getting to be so many regulations, so many little reports ..."

But each spring, the hassle of little reports and regulations fades as the rancher gets down to the heart of his effort.

Robinson's basic herd of 150 head, bearing the diamond-barE brand, swells to 400 with the birth of calves. It's his toughest time. The calves, dropped into the March snow, can catch pneumonia unless they are bedded onto straw and encouraged to nurse.

He goes to bed at 10 p.m., rises at 1 a.m. and again at 4 to check on the new ones. Each calf might bring him $1,200 in 18 months, and as they grow, Robinson keeps careful records. The data, run through a Hereford association computer, tells him which calves perform below the herd norm. Those he culls.

Ranching, of necessity, is a big, remote business. The western ranges are good for little else but cattle or sheep grazing. In the arid northern Great Plains near Belle Fourche, soil experts recommend that each head of cattle be given 15 to 20 acres to graze. Any less would ruin the land.

With a basic purebred herd of 150 head, each requiring 20 acres, Robinson's 3,000 acres are barely enough. The U.S. Agriculture Department says the average Northern Plains cattle ranch is about 11,500 acres. In the Southwest, it's about 18,000 acres.

Traditionally, ranches are calving grounds for America's voracious beef appetite. But in 1975, USDA estimates showed that they produced less than 40 per cent of the 43.7 million calves. The rest came from farms where cattle are part of a crop-animal operation.

Weekly Wall Street

'Chill may be over for awhile'

By RHONDA SEEGAL
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With a sluggish shiver, the stock market "shook the snow from its shoes" and put the bad winter behind it this week.

"My impression is that we have seen the worst in the market for a while," observed Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co.

The widely recognized Dow Jones industrial index — an average of 30 Blue Chip stocks — turned in its best weekly gain of the year, up 20.03 points from the previous week's 6.81-point setback, and closed at 953.46.

"The market had to digest a lot of adverse economic statistics, most impacted by the weather, and it has absorbed the news well," Zinder said.

During the week, the government reported the index of leading economic indicators, designed to gauge future economic trends, was down 1.2 per cent during January, supposedly foreshadowing a bad month ahead.

And unemployment for February was 7.5 per cent, up from 7.3 per cent the previous month.

There also was a report that January factory orders slipped by 2.1 per cent and shipments declined 1.3 per cent.

Despite it all, stock prices bounced several times and wound up higher.

A rally got started late Monday, carried through Tuesday, fizzled somewhat Wednesday and then picked up again at the end of the week.

Mike Sill.
One of 65
in the nation who made it this year.

It is a small but growing group. An exclusive group. The Beech Million Dollar Club. In fiscal year 1976, Mike sold almost $1.2 million worth of new Beechcraft airplanes.

Congratulations, Mike! We thank you. And your Beechcraft customers will be thanking you for many years to come.

The businesses, governments and individuals around the world who buy Beechcrafts do so for some excellent reasons. Reasons that would make good sense to you.

See Mike soon at Beechcraft West, Ontario. He could turn out to be as valuable to you as he is to us.

WHERE YOU ARE TREATED AS ONE OF THE FAMILY

TOYOTA
GRAND TOURING. GREAT TOYOTAS.
That's the Celica GT and GT Liftback. Two great sporty machines, equipped with a standard 5-speed overdrive transmission. And, the GT Liftback offers the added convenience of a flip-up rear door and flip-down rear seat. The third Celica is the ST, the most inexpensive way to move into a Celica. All three Celicas combine Toyota toughness, Celica economy and driving fun. See me today for a grand tour through the Celica line. You asked for it. You got it. Toyota.
Standard Features: Welded unitized body construction, MacPherson strut front suspension, AM/FM radio, power front disc brakes, steel belted radial tires, styled steel wheels, tach and gauges and more.

Over $450 worth of Le Car options, free.

In Europe, where driving is a passion, where people demand economy, performance and a car that's fun to drive, over one million people have bought Le Car. Now, Le Car comes to America.

Le Car offers front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering and Michelin steel-belted radials standard for exceptional handling and traction.

Le Car performs well enough to have won first in its class in 12 out of 16 races during 1976.

And, unlike other little economy cars, Le Car rides so smoothly, even on rough roads, it'll amaze you.

Right now, we're offering tremendous savings on new 1976 Le Cars fully equipped as shown.

Offer expires April 30, 1977. So come in for a test drive today.

Join the Dr Pepper Rookie Soccer Club, and play soccer like the pros.

Here's what you get and how you join:

You get an official membership certificate in the Dr Pepper Rookie Soccer Club, a wallet-size card, and a pocket-size Pro Soccer Guide that explains all the rules of soccer, as well as the history.

You'll get a full-color, 20″ x 30″ poster that shows all the NASL team logos and a Dr Pepper Rookie Soccer Club Decal, which shows everyone that you're a member of this special club.

You'll also receive a free ticket to a professional soccer game (you must be accompanied by an adult).

You can get all this by just sending us 12 liners from inside the caps of any Regular or Sugar Free Dr Pepper bottles and only $1.00.

If you are between the ages of 6 and 15 years old, you can get your Dr Pepper NASL Rookie Soccer Club membership and official soccer ball now!

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When making lemonade, orange juice or anything from a frozen concentrate, first soak the can in warm water so it is liquid when poured out. It's easier to mix. — M.M.M.

DEAR POLLY — My small child dislikes milk and other liquids that she should drink, so I bought one of those silly straws that are bent into a pretzel shape and put one in her glass of milk. She was so delighted with watching milk blow through it that I have never again had to coax her to drink milk. — MRS. R.W.H.

Send your helpful hints to Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — When I want to thread a needle with a small eye, I put a tiny bit of clear nail polish on the end of the thread. The polish dries fast, the end of the thread is stiff and goes right through the eye. — B.T.

DEAR POLLY — A roll of bothroom tissue in a holder by the sink is very handy for many small jobs. — ANNA.

DEAR POLLY — When we run out of twist while wrapping things to freeze, we twist the bag twice and then put a plastic clothespin on it. This does the trick. — DIANE and RAYMOND.

DEAR POLLY — Here's how Pointers readers can make use of their favorite Pointers. I clip my favorites each Sunday and when I send anyone a "Get Well" card I glue some on the card. My friends enjoy them and can pass some time reading my favorites. — VERNA.

DEAR POLLY — Old plastic tablecloths cut to size make good book covers, and left-over pieces of carpet can be cut into squares to put on window sills where plants are kept. — MRS. L.M.

DEAR POLLY — When drying onions we often take an old nylon stocking, put one onion in it, tie a knot, put in another onion, tie a not and so on. — MICHELLE.

DEAR POLLY — When getting new roller-type window shades I always save the part next to the roller on the old ones, as that is like new., I use for lining drawers in the kitchen and bathroom. They are so easy to keep clean. — THELMA.

DEAR POLLY— We always set a pail out to catch rainwater to put on our plants, as it seems to make them grow better. — MICHELLE.

Thirteen seek office in Pomona

Candidates promise greater prosperity

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Politics in Pomona, like politics everywhere, necessarily includes candidates promising to encourage ever greater prosperity for the community and its citizens. It's an American tradition.

The Progress Bulletin, adhering to this time-honored tradition, asked each of the candidates for mayor and City Council in Pomona to briefly explain what actions they would take, if elected, to promote growth of Pomona's economy.

Because redevelopment, as a possible means of promoting growth, has become somewhat of a controversial issue in the community, the candidates were also asked how much money they would be willing to see the city invest in the pursuit of redevelopment projects.

Their responses to both questions have been edited, in some instances, for the sake of brevity.

For background on redevelopment, the city currently has three designated redevelopment areas and two others in the discussion stages.

The only area where redevelopment funds have been spent, in substantial amounts, is in Project Area 1 in the downtown area west of Garey Avenue.

Those expenditures, mostly in acquiring land or the demolition of old buildings, were funded primarily from the sale of $1.5 million in redevelopment bonds several years ago.

The anticipated budget for the city's redevelopment effort in the next fiscal year is expected to be $250,000, which the council has allocated from federal grant funds.

MAYORAL CANDIDATES

Charles Bader:

How would you promote economic growth in Pomona?

Additional jobs and employment opportunities are one of the primary needs of Pomona today. I feel the mayor and council should coordinate a vigorous job producing industrial development program.

The city government, the chamber of commerce, the schools, and other community groups should be brought together in an effort to stimulate that type of development.

How much money, if any, should the city invest in redevelopment?

Redevelopment, if administered wisely, is a useful tool to use in attracting this type of development. The council approved and I supported the allocation of $250,000 in revenue sharing funds for these purposes.

Richard Brownell:

What should be done to promote economic growth in Pomona?

It may be feasible to hire an aggressive public relations firm to attract industries to Pomona for the purpose of relocation in the city.

It is obvious that the mall in Pomona is not going to be a retail sales area or a place where retail sales will ever come back. I would propose that the mall be torn down and that private industries be called upon to come into Pomona and develop new and more prospectively economic institutions.

How much money, if any, should Pomona invest in redevelopment?

None. I feel the money for redevelopment should come from private enterprise.

Clay Bryant:

What steps would you propose to promote the city's economic growth?

Direct effort must be made by the City Council and especially the mayor, to attract new industry and

They all agree: Crime is a serious problem

Pomona candidates discuss possible curbs, controls

BENJAMIN OCHOA

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

All candidates for mayor and city council in Pomona agree on one thing: that crime is a serious problem in Pomona.

They also agree Pomona citizens want something done to deal with the problem

In an effort to inform voters about each candidate's position on this important matter, the Progress Bulletin asked each of the candidates to state his ideas concerning crime control, whether he felt more police officers are needed in Pomona, and how he would propose to pay for increased law enforcement services.

As background, Pomona Police Department during the last year has operated with approximately 130 sworn officers. The department's operating budget was $3.79 million, when combined with police personnel's share of insurance and retirement expenses accounts for roughly 25 per cent of all city revenues (discounting water service charges).

Last month the council voted to increase the size of the force with a 10-man task force. Based on city officials' estimate that it costs a total of $41.700 per year for the average sworn officer, the city will have to find approximately $417,000 in new revenues, or budget reductions in other areas, to fund that 10-man addition each fiscal year.

If that increase must ultimately be charged to the property taxpayer, it means the owner of a $35,000 home would see his city tax bill go from about $218 per year (out of a total $1,220), to about $238.

The candidates' responses are condensed in most cases.

MAYORAL CANDIDATES

The candidates for mayor of Pomona are Ray Lepire, incumbent, and, in alphabetical order, Charles Bader, Richard Brownell, Clay Bryant, Henry Cole, and William commerce to Pomona. New inducements, such as tax credits, are essential to overcome the high Pomona tax rate and to make a Pomona location profitable for a potential job provider and sales tax source.

How much money should the city invest in redevelopment?

Pomona must improve her image before redevelopment can become a paying proposition. There are sufficient locations presently available for client location.

I would not approve displacing people from their homes for the sake of redevelopment. I would not support investing public funds in redevelopment without proper collateral. Half a million dollars of public money has already been "loaned" to redevelopment without a nickel's worth of return.

Henry Cole:

What steps would you propose to promote economic growth in Pomona?

The mayor should actively seek out new business for the city and make himself available whenever possible. We have to sell ourselves and our city.

I would work for a year-round convention center to be built at the county fairgrounds. I would also go after light industry.

How much money, if any, should the city invest in redevelopment?

Redevelopment monies should be brought to the individual. Not only would cost be reduced but I believe more benefits would result. We could offer a 10 per cent rebate to the individual homeowner to paint his house, reroof it, etc.

William F. Kaminski:

How much money would you be willing to see the city invest in redevelopment to promote growth of the city's economic base?

The city should invest approximately $7 million the first year, and $3 million the second year, to buy up properties along the Pomona Mall for redevelopment, with the goal of having new buildings erected with new businesses, and the mall converted into a mini-zoo and park.

I am also interested in attracting light and heavy industry to the Pomona area and have been working in this regard. I will devote fulltime to this effort.

Ray Lepire:

What steps would you propose to promote economic growth in Pomona?

Incentives that would make it more practical to invest in Pomona should be encouraged by the City Council. A continuing attitude of positiveness is necessary as a stimulant for economic growth in Pomona.

There are more businesses in Pomona today than ever before, and the retail sales in Pomona for 1976 is approximately 18 per cent over 1975.

How much money should be invested in redevelopment?

Financial investments should be made by the city in redevelopment when it can be shown that the increased tax increment resulting from redevelopment will pay off the indebtedness within a reasonable time.

2nd DISTRICT CANDIDATES

Irving Clark:

What steps would you take to promote economic growth of the city?

Invite new business to Pomona with a regular policy of informing businesses throughout the country of what Pomona has to offer, being centrally located and the hub of the Pomona Valley, with airport and freeways, also people to employ.

How much money should the city invest in redevelopment?

$200 million so the citizens who would have to relocate will be able to get a place equal to or better than they had if old neighborhoods had to be redeveloped. Most of the money would go to redeveloping vacant land.

William Koch:

What are your proposals for expanding Pomona's economy?

Provide leadership at the council level. A massive advertising effort through the chamber of commerce. Encourage Heritage Villages, enclosed and individual. Replace empty and deteriorating buildings.

How much should the city invest financially in redevelopment?

Invest when tax increment will pay all indebtedness in a reasonable time at no cost to the taxpayer. We know new business will reduce homeowners' taxes.

Manuel R. Ramirez:

What steps should be taken to promote economic expansion in Pomona?

The first step is to change the negative attitude of the present City Council. This can be accomplished by electing new civic representatives who will admit the mistakes of the past, such as development of the infamous Pomona Mall and other downtown redevelopment projects.

With a new council we can immediately open all north-south streets crossing the mall. This will serve as notice to business entrepreneurs that the new Pomona City Council will not inhibit free enterprise as has been the case in the past 14 years.

How much money should the city invest in redevelopment?

None! Redevelopment in the city has been more than a failure. Pomona is still stuck with the bonded indebtedness of the Pomona Mall with 16 years yet to pay it off.

Adrian Wright:

What actions should be taken to promote economic growth in the city?

Every city is competing for industry. In such a field we must clear the land and have available raw land with utilities in, and ready for immediate development.

By 200,000 registered valley voters

Election issues, candidates decided Tuesday

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Tuesday will be election day for an estimated 200,000 registered voters in the valley.

In 10 separate communities, they will decide a municipal election, 10 school board elections, a school transfer proposal and one tax override and one school bond issue.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Ballots cast in City of Pomona, Pomona school district and the city portion of Mt. San Antonio College District will be counted by City of Pomona officials.

Ballots marked in San Bernardino County communities will be tabulated in San Bernardino. Those cast in Los Angeles County communities outside the Pomona area will be tabulated at the county computer center in Downey.

Voters in districts 10 and 12 in La Verne and San Dimas received incorrect polling information in their sample ballots. They will vote at a residence at 2145 Damien Ave., La Verne, not at the San Dimas library.

In the POMONA MUNICIPAL ELECTION, voters will be asked to select a mayor from among six candidates. They are incumbent Mayor Ray Lepire, Charles Bader, Richard Brownell, Clay Bryant, William Kaminski and Henry Cole.

Pomona voters will select councilmen in the 2nd and 3rd councilmanic districts. Candidates in the 2nd district are incumbent Adrian Wright, Irving Clark, William Koch, Manuel Ramirez and James R. Lattin. In the 3rd district, candidates are incumbent Benjamin Ochoa, Walter A. Clark and John W. Ridley Jr.

Bader is giving up his 4th district council seat to run for mayor. An election will be held April 19 to fill that seat. Candidates in that race are John Stanley, G. Stanton Selby and Gertha Speiginer.

If runoffs are required in the mayoral or councilmanic races, those, too, will be held on April 19. To win, a candidate must receive 50 per cent plus one of the votes cast.

The controverisal school transfer proposal in the POMONA AND WALNUT SCHOOL DISTRICTS will be decided by voters in those two districts. The proposal suggests that schools in North Diamond Bar be transferred from the Pomona to the Walnut school district. Only a simple majority of votes cast in both districts is required to determine the transfer issue.

Voters in the WALNUT SCHOOL DISTRICT also will be asked to decide a tax override. The district is proposing that the tax rate be increased 18 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, up to $5.17 from the current $4.99.

If the proposal is rejected, voters will receive a 65 cent reduction in the $4.99 rate when the present voter approved rate expires in June.

CHINO SCHOOL DISTRICT voters will decide district requests to sell $9,170,000 bonds and borrow $14.8 million from the state for the construction of new schools.

A two-thirds majority of the total votes cast is required for approval on both the bond sale and state loan proposals to be decided by Chino voters.

School board elections are not necessary in UPLAND and one area of the CITRUS COLLEGE DISTRICT where the number of candidates equal the number of seats open.

In Upland three candidates will take three seats. They are incumbent William Hutson and Robert Ellis and Dale Andersen.

Both ballot proposals require a two-thirds voter approval for passage.

In the Citrus College District, one candidate will take the one open seat. He is incumbent Edward C. Ortell, of Azusa, representing Area No. 1. In Area No. 3, two candidates are competing for one seat. They are Herman D. Lackie of Azusa and Robert Snyder of Azusa.

There are 87 candidates competing for 28 school board seats in 10 districts and the Citrus College Area No. 3 contest.

POMONA has eight candidates competing for three seats. Candidates are incumbent Don Donnelly, Dan Applequist, Don Barnes, Ila Goldstein, Fran Livingston, C. J. "Cande" Mendoza, Anne Meslovich and A. H. Murray.

BONITA has four candidates vying for two seats. They are Don Zugates, Robert Green, Clell Hoffman and Vera Mae Gephard, the incumbent.

WALNUT voters will be asked to select three school board members from among 10 candidates. They are incumbent T. James Hannon, John M. Abboud, Robert L. Caligiuri, Dominic L. Catalano, Ralph W. England, Jacqueline Haines, W. Ladd Hollist, Robert F. Kuhnert, George W. Riggs and Ann M. Stroh.

In CLAREMONT, voters will select three school board members from among five candidates. The candidates are incumbent Maralyn Tipping, and Alice Oglesby, Jim Merrill, Ray Ball and Lawrence Birch. Incumbents not seeking reelection are Art Steffen and Bob Stafford.

CHINO has eight candidates competing for two full term seats and two candidates running for the unexpired, two-year term of Roy Ward who resigned last year. Candidates for the fullterm seats are incumbent Augustine Tapia and Patrick Hooven, Gary Ingham, Wayne McIntosh, Earl P. Owens, Robert Pipersky, Daniel Santo and Glenn Schumacher.

Candidates for the two-year term are incumbents Al McCombs and Paul Peterson. Peterson was appointed to fill Ward's chair on the board until this election.

ONTARIO-MONTCLAIR district voters are to select three school board members from among nine candidates. The candidates are incumbents Rose Kelber, Cliff Donaldson, and Reta G. Spencer, and Mark R. Noel Jr., Dakota D. Baker, Kathleen Brugger, William E. "Bill" Hennie, Oswoldo "Ozzie" Marrujo and Pamela D. Gransbury.

ALTA LOMA voters are to elect three school board members from among eight candidates. They are incumbents Nancy Kettle and Robert Frost, and Dr. Wayne M. Brindley, Peter J. Guth, Lawrence X. Johnson, Robert Tangeman, Patricia J. Tyler and Donald R. Watters.

Duane Slocum's name will appear on the Alta Loma ballot, but he has withdrawn and thrown his support to Dr. Brindley and Mrs. Tyler.

Twelve candidates are running for the three seats open on the CHAFFEY JOINT UNION HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT board of trustees. The candidates are incumbents Martha T. Chapman and G. A. Chalfant and Ralph F. Langley, Frank Andrew Brown, Robert C. Beam, Maxine M. Curtis, Excell N. Hunter, Patrick A. McHugh, Paul J. Gomez, William C. Draper, Clifford L. Sumrall and Charles J. Uhalley. Incumbent John Schnepp is not running.

Voters in the MT. SAN ANTONIO COLLEGE DISTRICT have the task of selecting two school board members from a field of 10 candidates.

The candidates are incumbent Clifton C. Booth and Evelyn R. England, Michael Anthony Daniels, Bert C. Gray, Frances L. Maschio, Jean M. Barnes, Kenneth L. Hunt, Bernadine E. Miller, Marion Hayhurst and Alfred M. Dias.

Alfred Sanchez' name will appear on the ballot but he has withdrawn and thrown his support to Diaz.

Nine candidates are competing for two seats on the Chaffey College board of trustees. They are incumbents Merle K. Cox and Georgia W. Mellon, and Kenneth C. Ketner, John L. Botkin, Dale D. Borgen, William H. "Bill" Thompson, Charles E. Rector, William A. Russell Jr. and Sharon W. Jeffers.

School board members are elected for four-year terms.

They all agree crime is serious problems—

Ray Lepire, 52, 3609 Towne Park Circle, incumbent.

Q. — If re-elected mayor, what proposals would you make for fighting crime? And are more policemen needed?

If Pomona hired a policeman for every household, would this eliminate crime? I doubt it. A sensible way to fight crime, then, involves more than just how many officers are on the police force. Police alone cannot do the job.

I fully back a continuing public awareness program advising citizens of precautionary measures they can take to protect themselves and assist police.

The police chief is in a good position to know about manpower needs, and when he makes requests I will support him.

Q. — How would you propose to finance an expansion of police manpower if needed?

I believe federal assistance through grants hopefully will provide the answer. The city tax rate should not be increased.

Charles Bader, 36, 1683 N. Gibbs St., city councilman

Q. — As mayor, what proposals would you make to reduce crime in Pomona?

Crime is our number one problem. In order to increase the safety of Pomona citizens I supported the recent expansion of the police department. We need more police officers. The problem is finding sufficient funds to pay for them. If it is necessary I would support a raise in taxes.

More police won't solve the crime problem alone. We need more citizen participation in the form of neighborhood watch organizations. Parents must accept responsibility for their youngsters' actions.

I support having a professional evaluation of the police department to be sure our officers and funds are being employed in the most efficient manner possible.

I feel the mayor and city council should vigorously lobby the state for changes in the laws which allow criminals back on the streets without punishment.

Richard Brownell, 57, 1094 N. Park Ave., former mayor.

Q. — What would you do, if elected, about crime in Pomona?

Hire more police officers. There is no question that Pomona needs more policemen since it takes officers approximately 45 minutes to respond to a call at the present time.

Q. — How would you propose to pay for these increased police services?

I do not think additional funding is needed to accomplish these proposed ideas. I would not be willing to raise the property taxes in Pomona for any reason. To save money I would get some of the dead wood out of city hall. Our city administrator is entirely too highly paid.

Clay Bryant, 57, former city councilman.

Q. — What would you do to fight crime in Pomona? And would you favor hiring additional police officers?

Yes. The Pomona Police Department has been reduced by 14 officers in the last two years and as a result is about 20 officers under strength, causing unacceptable delays in police response to calls. I endorse full strength staffing.

In addition, Pomona citizens should be provided a trained police reserve, made up of Pomona citizens. It would provide a good influence upon our youth, dispel many neighborhood fears and deter crime. I suggested center is now in the process of being upgraded by the Clark Co., present managers of the mall at Indian Hill. They hope to do this with their own money and a minimum of help from the city.

Ideal way is to encourage free enterprise.

How much money are you willing to see the city invest in redevelopment?

Depends entirely on the project and the return it would give in terms of tax increments.

3rd DISTRICT CANDIDATES

Walter A. Clark:

What steps would you propose to promote growth of business in Pomona?

First and foremost step is crime control. The city could spend a fortune attempting to promote this area, but if the potential investor does not feel safe and secure from violent crime, does not feel that his family would be safe nor his property protected from vandalism and burglary, he will not invest in Pomona.

If he does, and his family or employes are threatened by criminals, he will leave Pomona as so many already have.

How much money should be invested in redevelopment?

At this time I would not want to see the city invest any more money in redevelopment. We now have office space going begging and have had since some of it was built, the Bank of California building for example.

Benjamin Ochoa:

What suggestions would you make for promoting expansion of the city's economy?

An inviting climate for new business and commerce will necessarily entail continued and expanded efforts in crime prevention, beautification, in developing a positive city image and other areas.

How much money should the city invest in redevelopment?

Before any city investment is committed, a specific redevelopment project has to be fully analyzed on its own merits to assess such factors as economic benefits, feasibility and the time frame required to retire any bonded indebtedness.

John Ridley:

What steps would you propose to encourage economic growth of the community?

The first thing that must be done to promote economic growth in Pomona is to elect a council that recognizes that we have a problem. California as a whole has major problems due to restrictive state laws and regulations. The City Council should take the lead in making the legislature and governor aware of these.

The local crime rate also discourages new businesses from locating in the city and existing businesses from staying here.

I feel the city should work closely with the chamber of commerce to actively seek new business and industry.

How much money should the city invest in redevelopment?

Whatever is necessary to stimulate local redevelopment programs that provide a return in tax dollars and provide longterm jobs to our residents.

Illegal aliens face 'problems' in Brazil

SANTOS, Brazil (AP) — They meet every night in the red light district of Santos to discuss the news, find out what ships have arrived in port, discuss plans to hoodwink immigration authorities or novel schemes to find a Brazilian woman who will help them survive in this foreign land.

They are Brazil's illegal aliens, a legion of men without a country who have slipped across a southern border or have been smuggled in aboard ships of a hundred nations.

They include Chileans, Argentines, Bolivians, Uruguaians, Chinese and Algerians, most of them now trying to get their Brazilian documents or to find work on a ship which will hire them without papers.

Santos, a city of about 350,000 persons, lies on the Atlantic coast in the southern Brazilian state of Sao Paulo. It is the major export point for Brazil's coffee crop and principal outlet for products of the city of Sao Paulo, Brazil's industrial heart.

Santos has a flourishing red light district, whose bars and clubs attest to the multinational character of the port.

A typical group of Brazil's illegal aliens can be found each night at 9 in front of the Love Story Bar, waiting to meet new girlfriends or waitresses with whom they've already struck up an acquaintance.

It's possible that some of these men may be political refugees, but politics is a forbidden subject among them.

Whatever brought these men to Santos, they share the same problem — conflict with the federal immigration law passed Oct. 13, 1969, which regulates residence in Brazil. To get permission to reside in Brazil on a permanent basis, these men must get documents, and a major complaint is that they must pay U.S. $500 or more to get their papers through despachantes.

Ten candidates vie for 3 spots in Walnut

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Facing a financial crunch that will lead to certain cutbacks in school programs as well as the possible overcrowding which could result from passage of the Diamond Bar transfer measure, the Walnut school district will elect three board members from a field of 10 candidates in Tuesday's election.

W. LADD HOLLIST

ROBERT KUHNERT

GEORGE RIGGS

The candidates are John M. Abboud, engineering supervisor; Robert L. Caligiuri, deputy labor commissioner; Dominic L. Catalano, Los Angeles school teacher and administrator; Ralph W. England, contractor and Los Angeles police officer; Jacqueline Haines, legal transcriber; T. James Hannan, incumbent, sales representative; W. Ladd Hollist, USC professor; Robert F. Kuhnert, Los Angeles deputy district attorney; George W. Riggs, advertising manager and Ann M. Stroh, housewife.

Abboud is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is employed by Southern Pacific Pipe Line in Los Angeles. A resident of Diamond Bar, this is his first try for public office.

Abboud has said he is opposed to the transfer of North Diamond Bar to the Walnut district for several reasons including the overcrowding which would result. He has also supported the tax increase election saying that the present board should have asked for even more money from voters.

Caligiuri, also a Diamond Bar resident, is a former member of the Los Angeles County Human Relations Advisory Committee and is involved in girls softball and youth soccer. He is a graduate of Cal State Los Angeles.

Caligiuri also supports the tax increase, opposes the transfer and believes "year-round school would result in increased costs completely out of proportion to proposed benefits."

Catalano, a Diamond Bar resident, is the athletic director at Wilson High School in Los Angeles and has served on the budget committee of the Los Angeles schools.

He is the only candidate opposed to the tax increase, claiming the district has other means at its disposal for funding school programs over the next two years. He also supports the transfer of North Diamond Bar and feels the district should investigate the need for serving hot lunches to economically deprived youngsters.

England moved to Walnut four years ago and owns and operates England Painting and Wallpapering. He is the father of three children in Walnut schools.

England also supports the tax increase and opposes the Diamond Bar transfer saying that economic strain on the district from the additional numbers would cause a loss of district programs.

Mrs. Haines has a long record of volunteer work in the district including work supporting bond elections and the last revenue limit increase. She is the 1976-77 chairman of the district coordinating council.

Mrs. Haines has said that, while she personally supports the Diamond Bar transfer, she would vote for it to be decided by the people as a board member. She supports the tax increase and has expressed concern over the growing amount of vandalism in Walnut schools which, she says, cost the district $10,000 so far this year.

Hannan, the only incumbent in the race, is a West Covina resident first appointed to the board in 1971 and who won re-election in 1973.

Hannan has said his experience on the board can be an asset in a district with an $11 million budget and a great deal of growth ahead of it. He supports the tax increase and opposes the Diamond Bar transfer.

Besides his professorship at USC, Hollist serves as a consultant to Lloyd's Bank on its loans to Latin American countries. A Walnut resident, he is also a daily early-morning Bible instructor to local high school students.

Hollist supports the Diamond Bar transfer on the grounds that both north and south Diamond Bar might break away to form their own elementary school district. He supports the tax increase and has said the district curriculum must be upgraded to put greater stress on the basics.

Kuhnert is a Diamond Bar resident with a bachelor's degree from San Diego State and a law degree from the University of San Diego. He has been active on the board of the Cal Poly Associates and the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA.

Kuhnert supports the Diamond Bar transfer saying the additional numbers of students will help the district gain its funding for a new high school before state monies are depleted. He supports the tax increase and has voiced his concern over a return to the basics for the district curriculum.

Riggs has resided in the district for 11 years and formerly taught school in Pennsylvania and California. He is presently enrolled in the Claremont Graduate School aiming toward an MA degree in management.

Riggs is opposed to the Diamond Bar transfer and supports the tax increase. He has expressed concern over vandalism in the district and has said that he could not support year-round school in the district at this time.

Mrs. Stroh has resided in Walnut for 14 years and has been active in scouting and the Future of Secondary Education (FUSE) committee in the district.

Mrs. Stroh supports the tax increase and has said, "Any problems which would arise (from the transfer) such as the overcrowding of Walnut High School, could be worked out."

ANN M. STROH

She said of year-round school, "I do not favor busing of students to schools outside their area to attend the type of program they desire. Both programs should be offered in each area."

The top three vote getters in the election on Tuesday will be named to the board of education.

this to the chief of police.

Q. — How should the city pay for these services?

I do not anticipate the need for additional funds. I would expect to realize substantial savings by proper stewardship and accounting of public funds. Efficient administration and budgeting with a conscience would redirect the present waste to useful service needs.

Henry Cole, 29, 987 S. Waters Ave., rental properties manager.

Q. — As mayor, what would you do to cut down on crime?

I believe street lighting should be increased and older dim lights replaced. To cut down on juvenile crime we should increase the recreation budget, getting the money into the program not the administration.

Q. — Would you hire more policemen?

Yes. Pomona needs more police officers. The new 10-man task force is merely a replacement of the old burglary task force. Let's get our officers trained so they can more effectively do their jobs using the latest techniques.

Q. — How would you finance an expansion of the police force?

Taxes do not have to be raised. The money we already have has to be more effectively spent.

William F. Kaminski, 54, 782 N. Washington Ave., retired welder.

Q. — Would you, if elected mayor, hire more policemen to control crime in Pomona?

Yes. I would increase the number of officers in each police car to two. I would also be in favor of having a force of motorcycle officers during the daytime, approximately six to start. I would also promote officers walking a beat in the business areas and traffic officers at strategic location where cars jump lights, such as Garey Avenue and Mission Boulevard.

Q. — How would you propose to pay for more policemen? By raising property taxes?

No, I would not increase any city taxes. I am in favor of a city lottery if agreeable to a majority of voters in Pomona. As an alternative, I would impose a special tax on all pinball machines and juke boxes.

COUNCIL CANDIDATES

Candidates for the City Council in the 2nd District are Adrian Wright, incumbent, Irving O. Clark, William H. Koch and Manuel R. Ramirez.

In the 3rd Councilmanic District, the candidates are Benjamin Ochoa, incumbent, Walter A. Clark and John W. Ridley.

Adrian Wright, 66, 1762 Wright St., incumbent.

Q. — What are your proposals for combating crime?

Increase the number of police officers. Increase communications. Reduce response time. Free officers from routine paper work. Organize a police reserve. Utilize already organized groups such as C-CAP. Get neighbors to work together. Increase lighting.

These are just my suggestions. The chief of police is the real authority. I don't feel I'm qualified to tell the chief how to run his department.

Q. — Are more policemen needed?

Pomona needs as many police officers as it takes to cope with the crime problem.

Q. — How would you propose paying for these expanded services?

Readjust the budget or use reserve funds. Or raise taxes. The majority of people would go for an increase in taxes if it is the only way to finance the fight against crime, and if they were assured it would give them more protection.

Clovis Irving O. Clark, 49, 1329 Court, high school proctor.

Q. — What suggestions would you make for dealing with crime in the city?

Citizen confidence in law enforcement can be enhanced through increased citizen participation, by informing citizens of police methods, assuring the police force reflects a cross section of the community, and establishing neighborhood forums to settle simple disputes.

Q. — Are more policemen needed?

Yes, because more professionally trained law enforcement officers in the streets will deter criminals.

Q. — How would you propose to pay for added officers?

I'm aware that the federal government provides funds through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for additional police officers. I will, with the help of other councilmen, work to insure Pomona of some type of aid in this matter.

William H. Koch, 57, 1270 W. Mission Blvd., owner of Koch's Aluminum Sales.

Q. — What measures would you undertake to deal with crime?

I would create a police commission to handle all complaints, take corrective measures, and work with the police — assisting and advising.

We should also mail out We T.I.P. (Turn In Pushers) brochures with the city water bills. We should also expand the police reserve.

Q. — Does Pomona need more police officers?

Candidate did not respond.

Q. — How would you pay for the added cost of such proposals?

Federal funding and CETA are available for some new hiring if it's required. If we can join hands with our employes, a maximum effort coupled with efficiency will eliminate the need for further employes.

Manuel R. Ramirez, 32, 711 W. Grand Ave., a health program administrator.

Q. — If elected, what would you do about crime?

Eliminate barriers to effective administration of law enforcement, such as prevention of local fiscal impotence, lack of coordination and communication, duplication and fractionalization within city operations.

Fighting crime is tied to the city budget. Pomona City Council should spend a greater percentage of the budget for law enforcement.

Q. — Would you vote to hire more policemen?

Yes. Pomona's ratio now is about 1.9 officers per 1,000 persons. The appropriate strength needs to

THE INCUMBENT
3RD DISTRICT COUNCILMAN SAYS:

"HE HAS ESTABLISHED A GOOD RECORD AS YOUR COUNCILMAN"

The Problems of Crime, Unemployment, Low City Employee Morale, Lack of Adequate Street Lighting, ARE NOT ONLY STILL WITH US-THEY ARE INCREASING DAILY.

JOHN RIDLEY HAS PROPOSED SPECIFIC PROGRAMS RATHER THAN RELY ON CAMPAIGN SLOGANS, RHETORIC, AND DOUBLE TALK.

PUBLIC SAFETY

It will be my goal, as a Pomona Councilman, to help make Pomona the safest city in the area. Every resident of our city deserves adequate police and fire protection. I will propose the creation of a PUBLIC SAFETY COMMISSION, composed of Police, Firemen, and Judges, which would hold public meetings and make professional recommendations directly to the City Council on methods of stopping the spiraling crime rate in Pomona.

UNEMPLOYMENT

It will be my goal, as a Pomona Councilman, to help bring business and jobs back to our city. The lack of leadership on our City Council has had tragic results for Pomona's residents, as evidenced by the deserted Pomona Mall, vacated shopping centers, abandoned homes, and stymied industrial growth. Pomona's City Council must work with labor, business, industrial, and financial leaders to seek out and discover viable solutions to the local unemployment problem. Pomona has the resources already, it needs only the necessary imagination.

CITY SERVICES

It will be my goal, as a Pomona Councilman, to help improve the efficiency of general city services. Our city currently is losing many topline employees in the prime of their productive years, resulting not only in a degenerating level of public services, but in an increased cost to the taxpayer. The Pomona City Council must establish firm, reasonable guidelines regarding the discretionary authorities given the City Administrator. Errors need to be corrected, not covered.

IF YOU WANT A COUNCILMAN WILLING TO LEVEL WITH THE PUBLIC, THEN

be upgraded and strengthened not only in numbers but in administration, organization and training.

Q. — How would you pay for these changes?

By re-organizing our priorities, budgets and philosophy. No new tax dollars are required.

Benjamin Ochoa, 50, 2056 Titus Ave., incumbent.

Q. — What actions would you propose to fight crime?

No city police department can effectively cope with the crime situation without community support and the involvement of the citizenry.

Therefore, I believe we should accelerate formation of additional neighborhood groups and similar volunteer efforts, including C-CAP; implement selective enforcement for redeployment of police officers to high crime areas; implement the cop on the beat concept; start a police reserve and augment the police cadet program.

Q. — Are more police officers needed?

Yes. That's why the City Council on Jan. 31 gave its approval for a 10-man task force to augment our police department.

Q. — How will the additional manpower be paid for?

The method of funding any new program must be studied to weigh the benefits derived against any added burden on the taxpayer. Certainly, raising the tax rate would be the simplest way for the council, but might not be fair to the taxpayer. Alternatives include service fees, surcharges and revenue sharing.

Walter A. Clark, 62, 1074 E. Kingsley St., owner of Clark's Appliance Service.

Q. — If elected to the City Council, what proposals would you make to deal with crime in Pomona?

The city must take leadership in showing citizens how to form block watches in the neighborhoods, how to install door and window locking devices in their homes, encouraging the use of watch dogs, being alert to strangers in their neighborhoods, recording license numbers of suspicious vehicles, and, last but not least, practicing safety in the use of firearms in the home to protect life and property in the event of a break-in.

Q. — Should the city hire more policemen?

The present city council has already answered that question by adding a 10-man task force. The council also found the funds to finance these additional personnel. I would not propose new taxes at this time.

John Ridley, 49, 2089 Pinafore Place, engineer.

Q. — What actions would you take to combat crime if elected?

There are four things: first and foremost the council must support and encourage our local police force, whose morale is at an all-time low under the current administration; encourage self-help programs in neighborhoods; support formation of street lighting districts; and recognize the relationship of unemployment and crime.

Q. — Are more policemen needed?

Pomona needs more police because crime has reach epidemic proportions. However, simply hiring more officers will not eliminate crime. The effectiveness of our police department must be increased by solving the morale problem.

Q. — How would you pay for your proposals?

Property tax rate in Pomona will have to be increased to implement the programs necessary to solve Pomona's problems.

Three seek Bader's seat

Special election draws hopefuls

In addition to the races for Pomona City Council seats in the 2nd and 3rd Districts, a special race is underway in the city's 4th Councilmanic District.

Three candidates are vying for that seat, with a special election scheduled for April 19. The winner of that election will fill the two years remaining in Councilman Charles Bader's term.

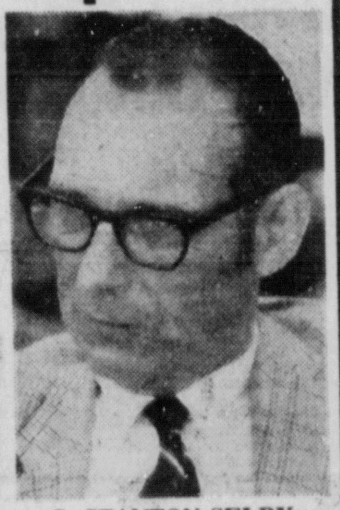

Bader resigned the seat, effective the day of the special election, when he announced he would run for mayor.

GERTHA SPEIGINER

JOHN STANLEY

G. STANTON SELBY

Seeking the post are G. Stanton Selby, 56, of 1195 Caswell Ave., Gertha Speiginer, 59, of 2243 Larchmont St., and John Stanley, 42, of 495 E. Jefferson Ave.

Selby, an instructor of music at Mt. San Antonio College, has been the director of the Pomona Concert Band since it was formed in 1947.

He has been active in such organizations as the Pomona Elks Lodge, Pomona Valley Musicians Club, Pomona Avenue of Flags, Pomona Bicentennial Committee, and is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Pomona. He has also served as vice-chairman of the Cultural Arts Commission.

Mrs. Speiginer is best known locally for her service as president of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). She is now in her fourth term as president of the local chapter of that organization.

She has participated on numerous ad hoc committees reviewing Pomona school district policies, including those dealing with emergency aid and affirmative action.

Mrs. Speiginer has also served on the Los Angeles County Community Health Planning Council.

John Stanley, pension and profit sharing manager for Aetna Life Insurance Co. in Los Angeles, is a newcomer to the local political scene although he has been active in the anti-abortion movement.

He is an Air Force veteran and a member of St. Madeleine's Catholic Church. A native of Ireland, Stanley became a citizen in 1961.

Polling place is changed

The county Registrar of Voters announced that some 267 La Verne residents who formerly voted at the Le Roy Boys' Home wedding chapel at 233 W. Base Line Road, La Verne, will not be voting there Tuesday.

Their polling place has been changed.

They will mark ballots at the residence of Lillian Carr, 6902 Canterwood Road, La Verne.

CITY COUNCIL CANDIDATE SPEAKS OUT ON THE ISSUES

The accountability of City government to the citizens insensitive City government is trampling over the rights of the average citizens. I believe that the cure for these ills is not the abandonment of the City's responsibility for addressing City problems, but the restoration of legitimate popular control over the organs and activities of City government. The fulfillment of four fundamental citizens' rights of governance. The right to competent City government. The right to responsive City government. The right to integrity in City Government. The right to fair dealing by City government. To assure that City government remains responsive to the people. I will begin to restore the shaken faith of the citizens that the government in Pomona is their government—responsive to their needs and desires. Decision-making must be opened up to citizen advocacy and participation. Decision-making behind closed doors is the natural enemy of the people. A citizen has the right to expect fair treatment from City government. To achieve a just and healthy society and enhance respect and trust in our City, we must insure that all citizens are treated equally before the law and given the opportunity to participate fully in the economics, social and political processes and to vindicate their legal and constitutional rights.

Housing and Community Development

I support direct Federal subsidies and low interest loans to encourage the construction of low and moderate income housing. I support the expansion of a successful program of direct Federal subsidies to provide housing for the elderly. I will take all necessary steps to prohibit the practice of red-lining in the City. I support greater flexibility in the use of Community Development Block Grants.

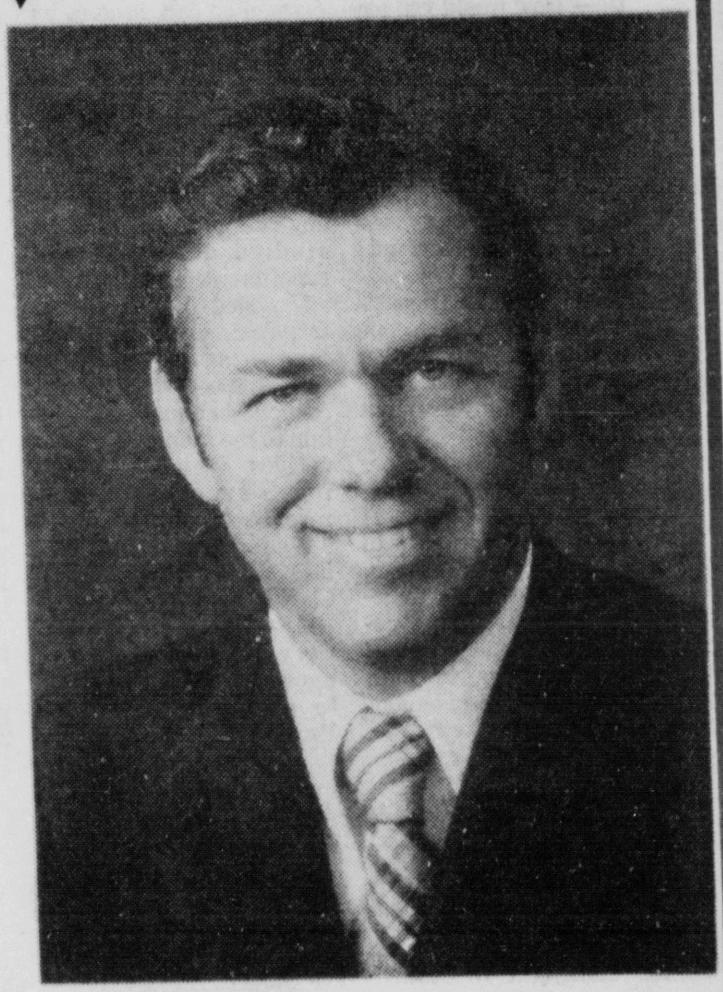

The revitalization of our City must proceed with an understanding that housing, jobs and related Community facilities all critical to a successful program.

The raging and unchecked growth of crime seriously impairs the confidence of many of our citizens in their ability to walk on safe streets, to live securely in peaceful and happy homes. Fear mounts along with the crime rate, people are afraid to go out at night. Juveniles commit almost half of the serious crimes and the City's programs have not met the crisis of Juvenile Delinquence. We must ensure that all young people are aware of the cost of all ills of drug dependency. I will as an elected official, seek ways to reform bail and pre-trial detention procedures and increasing the number of judges, prosecutors and public defenders. Law enforcement should emphasize the prosecution of crimes against person and property as a higher priority than victimless crimes. The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration has not done it's job adequately. Federal funding for crime fighting must be revamped to more efficiently assist local and state government in strengthening their law enforcement and criminal justice systems. Rather than spend money on the purchase of expensive equipment which much of it is useless.

SHOW TIME!

Diana Ross headlines her own 90-minute one-woman show, "An Evening With Diana Ross," on NBC's Big Event, Sunday from 9:30 to 11PM. The special traces the star's life and career through music, and highlights include the opening "Home" number leading to a Motown ballet; a comedy specialty number from "Chorus Line"; and a tribute to Ethel Waters, Bessie White and Josephine Baker, with Diana portraying each of them as they talk about life and their careers. Ms. Ross is joined in several production numbers by dancers, mimes and singers. The mimes are with the Richmond Shepard Mime Company; and the "Motown Ballet" features Ka-Ron Sowell Brown, Gary Chapman and Michael Peters.

Steve Lawrence & Eydie Gorme star in a tune-filled Special "From This Moment On...Cole Porter," on ABC, Thursday at 10PM. The musical hour explores the life and music of Cole Porter, and special guests include Bob Hope, Ethel Merman, ballerina Natalia Makarova and The Swingle Singers II. A highlight of the show is a duet between Ethel Merman and Bob Hope re-creating the one they did years ago in a Cole Porter musical, "Red, Hot & Blue," which produced the song "It's De Lovely."

Shirley MacLaine takes a musical look at the beginning of our nation's second hundred years using laser light, electronic sound, dance and comedy, in "The Shirley MacLaine Special: Where Do We Go From Here?," hour-long variety program airing on CBS, Saturday at 10PM. Joining Ms. MacLaine in the special hour, and adding their artistic answers to the title question, are Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo, a unique comedy dance group, and Don Ellis and his Electric Orchestra. Also featured are the laser light patterns of Laserium and special cartoons by Mexico's satirical cartoonist Sergio Aragones, plus far-reaching comments on things to come by a group of Ms. MacLaine's celebrated friends making cameo appearances.

COVER CLOSE-UP

Espionage Drama

Stephen Collins

Robert Ludlum's World War II espionage tale "The Rhinemann Exchange," set in Buenos Aires, is the fourth offering in The NBC Best Seller series of dramas in the 1976-77 season. The five-hour mini-series, broken into 2 two-hour colorcasts with a one-hour central colorcast, begins Thursday from 9 to 11PM, with an all-star cast, headed by Stephen Collins, Lauren Hutton, Jose Ferrer, Roddy McDowall, Larry Hagman, John Huston, and many other outstanding performers.

Actually, the story of "The Rhinemann Exchange" is the story of two groups of frightened men fighting for their lives. On one side is a group of Nazi officials who have been threatened with an unpleasant death if they fail to obtain the industrial diamonds needed to operate the rocket-launching sites at Peenemunde.

On the other side is a group of venal American aircraft manufacturers who have lied to the U.S. government about their knowledge of high altitude gyroscopes with which U.S. Army bombers supposedly have been equipped. Found out by U.S. Intelligence agent General Swanson, the aircraft leaders are threatened with charges of treason unless they devise a scheme to obtain the gyroscope plans. When Swanson learns what must be traded, he goes along with the plan in an effort to save the U.S Air Force from further deaths—refusing to face the consequences for all of England if the rocket launching sites become operative. Neither the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff nor the War Department is aware of the scheme. And, in the most crucial aspect of the secrecy, the U.S. Intelligence agent assigned to supervise the exchange is only told a portion of the plan. His ignorance of the full extent of the plot, places him on target for assassination by any number of special interest groups.

Lauren Hutton, probably the highest paid model in the United States, whose lovely face has graced many a Vogue cover, is seen in the role of widow Leslie Jenner Hawkewood. She renews an acquaintance with U.S. Intelligence agent David Spaulding which harks back to their teen years. That the beautiful Leslie is not all she seems to be on the surface is soon apparent to the trained espionage agent—played by Stephen Collins, but whether she is a Nazi spy or even who engages her loyalties is uncertain.

In the role of cryptographer Bobby Ballard, an employee of the U.S. Embassy in Buenos Aires, is veteran performer Roddy McDowall. John Huston plays the American Ambassador to Argentina and Jose Ferrer is seen as the treacherous German war profiteer Rhinemann.

Among the actors whose protrayal is far removed from that to which TV audiences are accustomed, is Werner Klemperer, whose Nazi in "The Rhinemann Exchange" is a vicious, steely-eyed monster, not at all in the genre of the pussycat Colonel Klink of Hogans Heroes. Another is Claude Akins, whose sunny-dispositioned "Sonny" in NBC's Movin' On is a far cry from the disreputable lawyer Kendall, the go-between for the venal aircraft manufacturers.

Bo Brundin, whose portrayal of a retired World War I Luftwaffe pilot in the film "The Great Waldo Pepper" was a sympathetic role, plays the menacing Herr Stoltz of the German Embassy in Argentina.

One of the most difficult roles in "The Rhinemann Exchange" is played by guest star Rene Auberjonois, who portrays the eccentric scientist, Dr. Lyons, supposedly a man who has burned away his vocal chords with wood alcohol. Unable to speak, except to whisper, Auberjonois must communicate all his emotions by facial expression until the time when danger forces him to whisper his wishes to Stephen Collins as the two of them join forces to outwit the Nazis.

Although "The Rhinemann Exchange" is a World War II drama, the South American setting gives it a distinctive look, as the machinations of war are carried out in a supposedly neutral country. In the first episode of the drama, several scenes are set in the Spanish Pyrenees where David Spaulding is supposed to be engaged in assisting downed airmen and refugee scientists in making their way to safety from other parts of Europe. However, the bulk of the action takes place either in New York or in Buenos Aires. No battlefields, few men in uniform, and the accent on a fast-moving espionage plot the outcome of which will affect the fate of nations, as well as individuals, is the thrust of "The Rhinemann Exchange."

Claude Akins and Bo Brundin

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

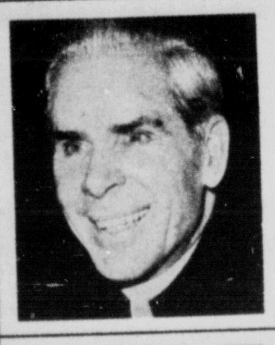

FOR LYNN REDGRAVE, actress

I know you've always had trouble with weight. How are you keeping it down?—D.P., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● I think I've tried every fad diet under the sun—and they worked. But the moment I went off of them, I gained it all back. (At my peak, I was 168 pounds.) A few years ago I devised my own personal diet, and this is how I stay around 137: I eat only one meal a day, at night—steak or lamb chops, spinach, fresh fruit. For breakfast I have a cup of black coffee. Another cup at lunch. If I get ravenous during the day, I'll sneak an apple.

FOR THE MOST REV. FULTON J. SHEEN

How would the discovery of life in outer space affect religion?—Greg Reitener, Combined Locks, Wis.

● Nonhuman life would not affect it in the least. Human life may stand in need of redemption. If humans were not sinful, they would not need redemption. "Those who are well need not a physician." If they were sinful, as we are, they would need the Passion of Christ. Has anyone who asks a question of this kind ever asked himself what, if Divine Life ever came to this planet, he would do about it?

FOR THOMAS E. MORGAN,
retired U.S. Representative

How do you justify the trips you took at Government expense?—Lois Dietz, Baxter Springs, Kan.

● My mission to the Far East in November dealt with matters of both current and future concern to the Congress. I had a State Department request to conduct a mission in that area, and I was carrying out several prior commitments. In addition, other members of the mission felt it was aided by my position and extensive experience as Chairman of the International Relations Committee.

FOR JESSICA LANGE, star of King Kong

How has your lifestyle changed since you went from an unknown to an overnight star?—J.T., Hollywood, Calif.

● I bought a house on a Wisconsin lake, where my retired parents live. Otherwise, I haven't gone on a spending spree—no clothes, diamonds, furs. Socially, things are the same, too. I avoid the party scene. In terms of film publicity, I do what is demanded of me by the film company. I prefer privacy. I went into movies because I wanted to act, not for all the ballyhoo.

FOR JESSAMYN WEST, author of The Woman Said Yes

Your book told of your sister's suicide after suffering from cancer. Were you concerned about legal action due to your help?—Carolyn Beers, West Lafayette, Ind.

● I was never concerned about legal action. I was willing to suffer anything to end my brave sister's suffering. She made the decision not to prolong a hopeless struggle. All she asked was, "Stand by me." Who could say no to that? My book brought me the most beautiful and the most denunciatory letters I have ever received.

FOR MICK JAGGER, rock singer

How do you feel about those reports of The Rolling Stones breaking up?—J.B., Royalton, Ill.

● I don't. That sort of thing has been said about every duo and group since Adam and Eve. When we decide to stop, we'll come right out and say so. When the Beatles broke up, they didn't exactly fade out of sight, but they disappointed lots of people. We're not yet ready to do that—either to others or to ourselves.

FOR EDWARD HERRMANN, star of March 13 ABC-telecast of Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years

I saw you in Eleanor and Franklin last year, and now you're playing FDR again next week. I'm wondering how you researched the part?—G.V., Rapid City, S.D.

● I spent several months in libraries and archives, reading books, old newspapers, poring over vintage photos. There were trips to Hyde Park; I wanted to try and capture FDR as a young man as well as President. I picked up his walk and posture by studying home movies of FDR.

FOR ROBYN SMITH, jockey

As a lover of horses, I'm wondering if cruelty to them exists on our tracks?—S.T., Troy, N.Y.

● I'm not aware of any mistreatment of horses on racetracks. In fact, some thoroughbreds get better care than some human beings! Race horses love to run, but in order for them to win they must have top care, and since owners and trainers love to win, their animals get the best care possible.

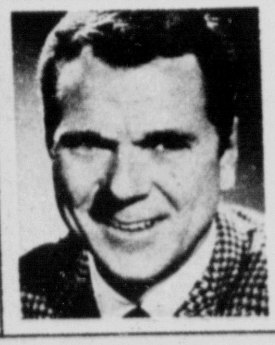

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Can you tell me something about the young pop group just named National Youth Ambassadors for the March of Dimes?—M.B., Miami Beach, Fla.

● They're The Sylvers (right), eight brothers and sisters from 14 to 25. Although they've been around since the early 60's, when the four oldest were on TV and toured as The Little Angels, it wasn't until Oct. 1975, when Capitol Records signed the family, that they began making a name for themselves. They've now got a bunch of awards, including "Cash Box" Best New Vocal Group of 1976.

FOR JACKIE COOPER, actor

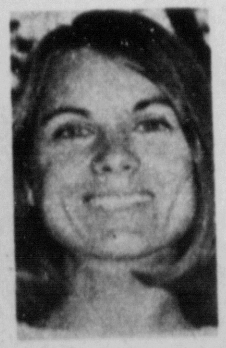

How did you get the scar on your right cheek?—Mrs. Antoinette Patrick, Richlands, Va.

● I got it in 1954. I was in a New York City department store and inadvertently went through a large window. A lot of people think I got it in a car-racing accident, since I was very active in sportscar racing from 1950 to 1955. Fortunately, I never had a racing accident.

PRO AND CON

Will The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) Actually Restrict Women's Rights?

PRO Andrea Fordham teams with her husband on writing projects. Their latest book is Assault on the Sexes (Arlington).

Yes. The problem with this apparently simple amendment is that it is so vague nobody can really predict the effects it will have on virtually thousands of laws bearing on marriage, family, property, employment and public accommodations. The amendment may well be used to advance the whole feminist program—abolishment of sex roles, devaluation of marriage and family, free universal day care, abortion on demand and teaching of feminist objectives and values in day-care centers and schools. I don't think people favor these things.

CON Gloria Schaffer, Connecticut Secretary of State

No! Passage of the ERA would not force every woman out of the house and into a "paying job." It will not destroy femininity! Nor will it threaten the choice of lifestyles of American women. If anything, passage of the ERA would re-emphasize the importance and value of childrearing and homemaking by making these roles matters of choice rather than inevitable lifestyles. The ERA recognizes that while women are undoubtedly different from men, that does not afford any rational basis for denying women equal protection.

Finally,
Vantage Longs.

The first long cigarette to bring good taste to low-tar smoking.

Like a lot of smokers you may like the idea of a longer cigarette. You may also want low tar.
But longer cigarettes usually have more tar.
Well, Vantage just wouldn't go along with that.
So we worked. Until we could perfect a longer cigarette with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar.
Not the lowest long cigarette you can find. But very possibly the lowest that you will enjoy.
New Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.
That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage Longs. Never before has there been a long cigarette quite like it.
Try a pack today and see if you go along with us.

CHRONIC PAIN: NOW DOCTORS ARE LEARNING TO DEAL WITH IT

For those who are plagued by constant pain there is good news — a number of new medical techniques that can help relieve (and sometimes even cure) their suffering.

Ed Roseberry

Several mechanical devices are used to treat pain. Above, Dr. Ann Groce of Duke University operates a transcutaneous stimulator, which produces a tingling sensation and helps to suppress pain. Nerve blocks, drugs, acupuncture and hypnosis are other methods that are utilized in chronic pain treatment. Alleviation of pain through radio waves was pioneered at The Pain Center in La Crosse, Wis.

By Cima Star

Steve Landen lies face down on the sofa in a comfortable office at a Midwestern pain clinic, one of a growing number of institutions devoted to the study and treatment of chronic pain. Four wires extend from points on his back to a mechanical box, which sends off beep-like tones from time to time. Landen closes his eyes, concentrating on increasing the beeps, not thinking about the agony that has plagued him for nearly 15 years since an accident in which his lower back was injured.

A new technique called biofeedback is helping Landen to train his mind to control his body. Biofeedback means the electronic amplification of biological signals, such as breathing, heart rate or muscle relaxation. Small metal electrodes, each about the size of a button, are "glued" to the skin and hooked up to a box. Relaxation in his back muscles is translated into the beep tones. The more relaxed and pain-free the muscles, the clearer and steadier the beeps.

"Neither the patient nor the medical profession really understands yet how this works," says Boston University professor Dr. David Mostofsky, a behavioral psychologist in attendance at Children's Hospital in Boston. "All we know is that once a person can see or hear the result of what is going on inside, physically, he can change it."

Pain has baffled traditional medicine since Hippocrates' time. Now, professionals at some 17 pain clinics nationwide, and at pain units in many hospitals, are delving into its mysteries.

One thing that needs to be made clear—don't confuse chronic pain with acute pain. Acute pain, such as that from a fractured bone or a knife wound, can be unbearably intense, but once its cause is treated, the pain goes away. Chronic pain is endless, seemingly untreatable, lingering long after its original cause has vanished. One example is the phenomenon of "phantom limb pain." The victim of an amputated arm who feels pain in fingertips that no longer exist is not, as one might think, imagining the pain. It is there. It is real, and it is physical. The reason is that certain nerves end at the fingertips. The thin nerve filaments wind their way through the body to the brain. Somewhere along the line the nerve has been damaged, and it hurts. The brain, however, can sense the pain only at the tip of the nerve, even when that tip no longer exists.

Chronic pain is a national health problem. It costs society an estimated $50 billion a year in medical expenses, lost wages and worker-compensation benefits, according to Dr. John J. Bonica, President of the newly founded International Association for the Study of Pain. Chronic back pain alone, the most common problem, disables seven million people annually and is responsible for nearly 19 million visits to doctors each year.

Most dolorologists (pain specialists) agree that, with rare exceptions, there is both an emotional and a physical component to pain. "Nearly everyone who comes to our clinic," says Dr. Steven F. Brena of the Emory Pain Control Center in Atlanta, "suffers pain that began with an organic condition. Many show some personality maladjustment. Those who have longstanding emotional problems learned in childhood to use pain as an escape route."

At Emory, the psychological factor is emphasized by its 70-percent success rate in treatment—except when money, in the form of workers' compensation enters the picture. Then, the success rate drops to 40 percent.

Another pain specialist, Massachusetts General Hospital neurologist Dr. Nathaniel R. Hollister, finds that "Pain is something more than a response by a person to injury to his body. Pain is actually a learned form of behavior."

Studies back up this theory. In Vietnam, when both soldiers and civilians were injured by shrapnel, soldiers were more likely to feel little pain because an injury was the ticket home. Civilians, who were not sent home due to injury, felt intense pain.

One group of pain clinics uses a multidisciplinary approach, utilizing specialists in different fields to treat different aspects of suffering simultaneously. These clinics often attempt to get at the underlying emotions of pain.

The other major group of clinics uses the holistic, or total, approach. Here, all of their professionals are dolorologists, specializing only in pain. They emphasize behavioral modification, believing that if you change a person's "pain behavior" to "well behavior," the pain itself will subside.

"Well behavior" means acting as though the pain were not there, which may at first seem difficult and terrifying. As long as the victim suffered, no one expected him to work, carry out the garbage or exert himself. He was "rewarded" with sympathy for being in pain. Now his family is taught to lavish affection on him when he acts well, but to ignore his suffering. One technique at some pain centers is to confine a patient who has an attack of pain to his room and to deny him all privileges.

Dr. Gerald M. Aronoff, director of the Pain Unit at Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital, uses the multidisciplinary approach with a health-care team comprising many specialists — from neurosurgeons to physical therapists to behavioral psychologists.

"We look at life stresses and try to understand why the patient has not gotten well," says Dr. Aronoff. He has found that pain stems from childhood problems that have caused emotional difficulties. Once the underlying emotional problems are cleared up, the clinic uses behavioral techniques to teach new "well behavior," or biofeedback and/or muscle relaxation to reduce the physical pain.

One common biofeedback technique is used for migraine headache sufferers. One woman at a headache clinic dramatically improved after training that consisted of having electrodes pasted to her hands while she watched a needle on a screen register the temperature of her skin. As with most migraine sufferers, her hands became cold with each headache. As she learned to raise her skin temperature, the pain vanished. Within six weeks she was able to raise her hand temperature without the biofeedback machinery, simply by concentrating on her hands and the sensation of warming them.

One therapist recalls a man who had suffered for years from chronic pain in his toes. In psychotherapy, he had revealed a longstanding fear of a bullying brother. Then, he was encouraged to kick at a pillow, screaming out his rage at the brother. "I want you out of my life," he shouted, as he bashed the pillow. The pain subsided.

Aronoff offers the same advice to his patients that he does to everyone of us who hurts from time to time: "You must spend half an hour a day on yourself. Spend it on relaxation and introspection. Relax those muscles. Get in tune with yourself. Try to understand better what is going on, emotionally, inside you. And keep trying."

MAJOR CENTERS FOR PAIN RESEARCH AND TREATMENT

Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center, San Francisco, Calif.; UCLA School of Medicine, Los Angeles, Calif.; National Medical Center, Duarte, Calif.; Scripps Clinic Hospital, La Jolla, Calif.; Mt. Sinai Medical Center, Miami Beach, Fla.; Emory Pain Control Center, Atlanta, Ga.; Rush Medical College, Chicago, Ill.; University of Illinois College of Medicine, Chicago, Ill.; Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.; Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital, Boston, Mass.; Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, Baltimore, Md.; University of Nebraska College of Medicine, Omaha, Neb.; Emanuel Hospital, Portland, Ore.; University of Virginia Medical Center, Charlottesville, Va.; The Pain and Health Rehabilitation Center, La Crosse, Wis.; University of Washington School of Medicine, Seattle, Wash.

Datsun introduces the family cars with a 240-Z engine.

Fuel injected response.
Finally, an economical family car that doesn't skimp on performance. Because the six-cylinder, overhead cam engine gives you all the get-up-and-go you've been missing. Plus the power you need to go up hills and get onto highways.

Suddenly, there's a family car that performs and handles like a 240-Z.

Sedan or station wagon.
Both give you the economy and durability you expect from a Datsun. The famous 240-Z engine has been proven time after time against the toughest competition. The all-steel unibody is welded for quiet strength. And the fully independent suspension in the sedan assures you extra smoothness and stability.

Suddenly, a new car with a built-in reputation for durability and long life.

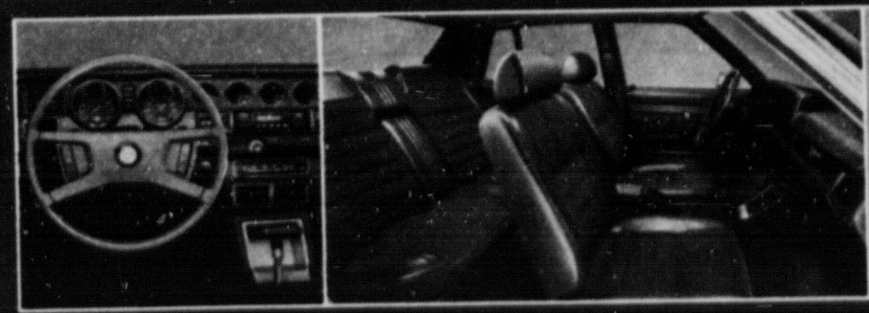

Comfort of a mid-size car.
Comfort you can feel: In the lush interior, tilt steering wheel, six-way adjustable driver's seat, plush cut-pile carpeting that goes all the way through the trunk. And the soothing sound of the AM/FM stereo radio.

Comfort for your peace of mind: Thanks to steel belted radials, fully appointed dash. And automatic maintenance warning system.

And comforts you can opt for: Like automatic transmission, power steering and air conditioning.

All at a comfortable price. Compared to the six-cylinder Volvo or BMW, for example, you could save at least $2,000.

The new Datsun 810. Suddenly comfort and performance come together in an economical family car.

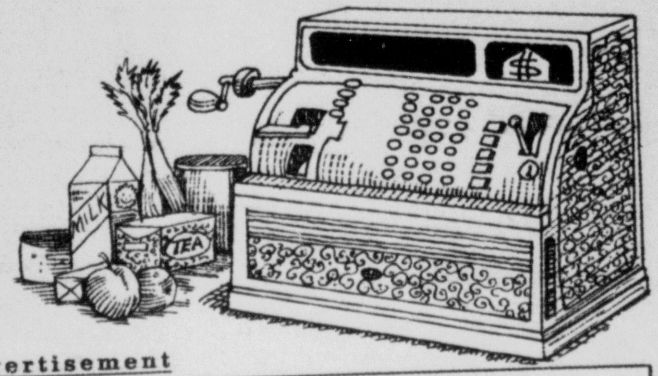

Suddenly it's going to dawn on you.

DATSUN SAVES

WISE BUYING By Marilyn Hansen

HOW TO SAVE MONEY WHEN BUYING FOOD

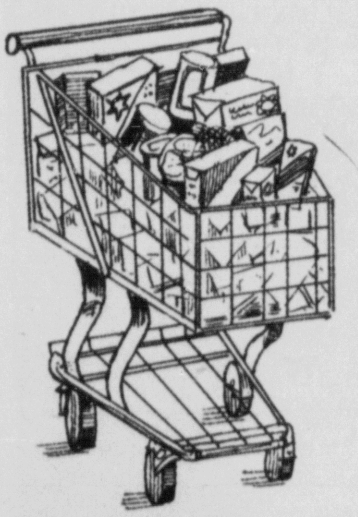

If you follow these tips before you buy food, you'll see real savings at the checkout counter.

If you want to cut down on food costs and time spent shopping—and who doesn't—it will require some retraining and rethinking on your part. Here's what to do.

First, analyze your food-spending habits. Write down all your food expenditures for one week. Note the name of the store, the day of the week you went shopping, the time you went in, the time you left, the total money spent. Also, record exactly what items were bought and at what price.

How much time did you spend? Are you spending extra time because you go marketing at the busiest hours? At most markets, busiest times are late afternoons on week days and all-day Saturday.

Did you have a shopping list? If you had one, did you stick to it? Did you know just what you wanted to buy before you went in the store, or did you decide there?

Spending Categories:

Milk

Did you buy the most economical size for your family?

You also should consider buying powdered skim milk, loose in the carton, and reconstituting it. It's cheaper and is excellent for many cooking purposes. To cut down on the cost of fluid milk for drinking, mix ½ reconstituted skim milk with ½ liquid whole milk. Serve ice cold. Reconstituted evaporated milk also can be economically used in cooking.

Dairy

Did you buy the most reasonable margarine? Best buy on yogurt is to buy it unflavored in 1-qt. containers and add your own honey, fruits and jams as desired.

Juice

Juices are an important part of the family budget, especially in a home with children. Buy full-strength juice, either frozen or canned, and add your own water at home. Juice drinks have water and sugar added already.

Oil, Cereals, Canned Foods

Buy the most economical sizes for your family needs. Note prices and compare products before you buy, and buy only six-month supplies to avoid possible spoilage.

Stock-Up Items

Soaps and detergents, along with foods, are frequently on sale. The old rule still applies: nothing is a bargain unless you can use it.

Toiletries

Shampoos, deodorants, toothpaste, creams and so on are in the supermarket as a convenience for the shopper. These personal items are generally cheaper in discount stores. You'll have to check.

Meat, Poultry

Do you buy specials or on impulse? Take the time to notice at your supermarket meat counter the range of prices of what is available.

Certainly veal cutlet from the leg, Italian-style at $2.89 per-lb., is in the high range, as are boneless club steaks from the beef rib at $2.29 per-lb. A $1.09 per-lb. price on chuck roast, bottom beef, semi-boneless is in the middle range. A price offering of $.49 per-lb. on fresh whole frying chickens is a really good buy.

If you are aware of prices and their fluctuations from week to week, you will recognize good buys.

Second, if you generally buy around the middle-price range or lower, you will know that you are saving money.

Also important to consider when buying meat is the serving per pound. Look carefully at meat before you buy. The amount of fat and bone present takes away from the edible portion.

Something you never thought about, perhaps, is the labor cost of meat-cutting. Each cut the butcher makes in a piece of meat takes time, and time is money.

So next time you want to make beef stew, don't automatically reach for the pack of stewing beef. Look first at the pot roasts; you may well find them lower in price than the cubed meat. If so, cut the meat at home yourself.

Other cuts lend themselves well to the cut-it yourself method. For example, buy a large roast of top sirloin or an eye round and cut off some slices and use as steaks. Buy a whole loin of pork on special, cut into one or two roasts and cut the remaining loin into chops.

Whole chickens always are sold cheaper than the cut-up kind. It would pay for you to learn how to cut them up yourself with a sharp knife, cleaver or poultry shears.

Of course, don't neglect the bony cuts altogether. Meat contains protein and bones contain calcium, which is needed for protein utilization in the body. Calcium is available in milk, cheese and other dairy products. However, the calcium available in bones is cheaper. Use bony cuts in soups, preferably combined with protein-rich legumes, and you will have an excellent food value.

IF YOU HAVE IRON POOR BLOOD ALL THE VITAMINS IN THE WORLD WON'T HELP

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. And taking vitamins can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

What you need is Geritol, every day. Geritol is so rich in iron, just one tablet contains more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins important to your health.

Geritol's iron can actually build your blood day by day. That's what makes it different from vitamin pills—and so important to you.

Observations™

Dollars and sense. Americans are increasing their oil consumption again, but the nation's oil fields are producing 1.3 million barrels a day less than they did four years ago. The result: a growing reliance on imports. In fact, the bill for foreign oil last year came to about $160 for every man, woman, and child in the U.S. What to do? America needs a national energy policy that will encourage offshore drilling for oil and gas, the use of coal, and, to the extent it's safe and environmentally sound, the development of new nuclear generating plants. Down the road are oil shale, solar energy, and synthetic fuels. But energy policy remains the first step.

Now the good news. Most Americans agree with the need for an energy policy. In a recent Roper Organization poll of more than 2,000 people, a federal energy policy was given high priority. About 90 percent of those interviewed said the U.S. needs a "plan to conserve present energy sources and develop new energy sources so we will not be dependent on foreign countries for energy." If the people recognize the nation's needs, maybe the government won't be too far behind.

"WE CAN COVER YOU AGAINST FIRE, FLOOD AND VANDALISM. BUT, NO, WE HAVEN'T ANY ENERGY POLICY IF YOUR FURNACE RUNS DRY."

If he's so wise, why didn't he stay home? We're talking about a burrowing owl who found himself on Long Island when his natural habitat, according to the experts, is southern Florida. A friendly and knowledgeable human put the wandering bird on a jet for home, but the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service bumped him from the plane. It seems the law protects him from being "kidnapped" wherever he is found, even if it's the wrong place, with the wrong climate. Happily, this time the red tape was quickly cut, the owl got his plane ride after all, and presumably lived happily ever after.

Race to the pole. When Roald Amundsen and his party left Oslo in 1910, the world thought he was bound for the Arctic. But Amundsen secretly planned a race in the other direction, to become the first person to set foot on the South Pole. His story, filmed in the snowy wasteland beyond the Arctic Circle in Norway, is the concluding episode of Ten Who Dared, the "Mobil Showcase" series on great explorers. Check your local TV listings next week for time and station. And, to keep the series fresh in mind, you'll want to own the beautiful 336-page book, Ten Who Dared, about these and other explorers. You can by sending a check or money order for $14.95, plus applicable state and local taxes, to: Ten Who Dared, P. O. Box 1934, Kansas City, Missouri 64140.

THE REIGNING QUEEN OF THE SOAP OPERAS

Mary Stuart has been on television longer than anyone else in the business—and she's only getting started.

Once she drove a pickup truck to auditions that flopped. But Mary Stuart's been riding high now for 25 years.

By Mary Long

At somewhere past 45 years of age, television actress Mary Stuart is entrenched in her 25th consecutive year on-the-air in Search for Tomorrow. And that, according to those who keep track of such things, is an honest-to-goodness TV record.

Every weekday she enters homes across America as Joanne Vincent, a perfect person in a house that never needs cleaning. It amazes many people that in so sophisticated and skeptical an age, a show like Search should continue to command the devotion of millions and millions of fans. It doesn't amaze Mary Stuart.

"The soap opera has come out of the closet," crows the pro. "It's a relief, I'll tell you. I knew people were watching all along, but it's nice they're finally admitting it. In our supercool age, with everybody scared silly to show his feelings, soap operas can't help but flourish. They're a public service. We show tears and screams and kisses. Marvelous and horrible scenes. We're all a little lonesome these days, and I think it helps to see all that wild emotion."

The twice-divorced lady with the beautiful round eyes and the throaty croak of a voice knows a lot about being lonesome. She grew up poor, without a mother, in Tulsa, Okla. One day, she read in a newspaper that people in New York were able to work just a few hours a week talking on radio shows and earn $500. Mary Stuart thought that would be a swell way to make a living and headed for the big city. She ended up a hungry, part-time hat-check girl. But within a year, movie producer Joe Pasternak checked his hat, and that, as they say, was that. He took a look at the blonde beauty, signed her to a movie contract, and Mary Stuart was off to Hollywood with a new title: "starlet."

"You know what a starlet is?" She laughs. "A starlet is one of those yellow sugar roses you pop around the edges of a cake. Just being a starlet is bad enough, but I was probably the worst starlet in history. They were constantly screen-testing me for sexy roles. I wasn't sexy. I had braces on my teeth, I drove a Ford pickup truck to the studio, and there always seemed to be a ton of dirt under my fingernails. I did two auditions—both flops. Once I was trying for the role of Jane in a Tarzan movie, and I had to keep reading 'uga uga uga' over and over again. I thought that was very amusing, and I couldn't stop laughing, so the producer threw me out."

In 1951 she was spotted by the producer of another show—the soon-to-be-televised Search for Tomorrow. When they offered the actress the leading role, she said yes, went on the air the next week and has been there ever since.

Mary Stuart says she likes Joanne Vincent. "She's a lovely lady. And her horizons have really broadened over the years. She started out as an innocent little girl, and she's grown into a woman. I hope she's interesting. In the beginning, she was never out of her apron and now, look," she says, indicating her tailored brown slacks and matching sweater. "This is what I wore on the show today."

She believes that her Joanne, tied to an apron or not, has had a pervasive influence on women. "I think the explosion into the women's movement over the last few years is due in part to the soap operas. Women have had a chance to fantasize along with the show—to think about what it would be like to be a woman doctor or lawyer or heiress or whatever. You've got to have that fantasy first, whether you ever make the move to independence or not. And, everyday, millions of women play these parts along with us. I've had lots of women from poor families tell me that they grew up watching the show and dreaming. 'You got me out of that house,' they'll say. But, of course, it wasn't me—it was that perfect lady I play."

How to Achieve Total Financial Freedom

"Millionaires Are Not 100 Times Smarter Than You, They Just Know The Wealth Formula"

Millionaires are not 100 or even 10 times smarter than you, but it is a fact that millionaires are making 10 to 50 and even 100 times more than you.

Are these wealthy people working that much harder than you? No way!

If you are working only 20 hours a week, it would be physically impossible. (There are only 168 hours in a week, no one gets more.)

These questions used to really stump me. That was six years ago.

My wife and I then lived in Denver, Colorado, at 2545 South High Street. We paid $135 a month rent for a cramped, tumbled down house. My wife was expecting our second child and we were flat broke. I felt desperate and forced into a corner. I had to borrow $150 from my father and another $150 from my father-in-law just to buy the groceries and pay the rent. If that wasn't enough, I was several thousand dollars in debt.

Things are much different now. Last year I could have retired and lived off the income of my one million dollars in real estate holdings. (Incidently, almost all of the income from the real estate is tax free).

Since I had worked 20 to 40 hours a week, I know that I didn't work even 10 times longer or harder than you. And with my C-average from Ames High School (located in Ames, Iowa). I'm quite certain that I'm not any smarter than you.

If hours, efforts, or brains are not what separates the rich from the average guy who is swamped with debts and very little income, then what is?

I learned the answer to that question from an old fellow in Denver. This fellow worked in a drug store stocking the shelves. Very few people knew that he had $200,000 in the bank, all of which he had earned starting from nothing.

Within a year after meeting him, I was told and shown the same thing by a young man who had recently earned over a million dollars. By this time, I began to realize that what I was being shown was truly a remarkable and workable way to grow rich.

I began to apply the principles and methods I had been shown. The results were amazing. I couldn't believe how easy it was, in fact it seemed too easy.

MARK O. HAROLDSEN
32 Year Old Millionaire

But then I met an elderly lady (83 years old) who, although not very smart, has made $117,000 using the same formula.

I then figured my beginning wasn't luck.

For three and one half years, I worked hard to refine and improve on the formula that I had been shown, so that it would be easy to get quicker results.

As I did this, my assets multiplied very rapidly (160% per year) to the point that I didn't have to work any longer.

I guess I am bragging now, but I did start spending alot of time in our back yard pool, traveling around the country, and doing a lot of loafing.

Then one day a friend asked me how he could do what I had done.

So I began to outline the formula that I had improved to show him really how simple it was, and how he could do the same thing.

By the next time he approached me, I had written almost a complete volume on the easy way for him to copy my results.

I wrote this in simple, straight forward language so anyone could understand it.

This time my friend's questions were very specific. (He had already begun buying properties with the formulas I had been giving him). Now he had a property he wanted to buy, but was out of cash. How could he buy it?

I not only showed him how to buy without cash, but by the time the deal was complete, he had $5,000 cash in his pocket to boot.

I also showed him how to buy a $26,000 property for $75 down.

You, or anyone, can do exactly what I did, or my close friends have done; in fact, you may well do it better. (I began doing this in my spare time only).

It doesn't matter where you live or the size of your town or city, my formula will show you exactly how to:

- Buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
- Begin without any cash.
- Put $10,000 cash in your pocket each time you buy (without selling property).
- Double your assets every year.
- Legally avoid paying federal or state income taxes.
- Buy bargains at 1/2 their market value.
- Allow you to travel one week out of every month.

When you send me a check or money order for $10, I will send you all my formulas and methods, and you are free to use them anywhere and as often as you would like.

Now if you were a personal friend of mine, I know you would believe me and not need any kind of guarantee, but since you don't know me personally, I will guarantee that you will be completely satisfied and that my formula will work for you if you apply it. I will back up that guarantee by not cashing your check for 30 days, and if you for any reason change your mind, let me know and I will send your uncashed check back.

You may well ask, why am I willing to share my formula for wealth? Well, because many of you will probably seek further consultation and direction from me as your wealth rapidly grows and my consultation fee of $75.00 an hour adds to my fortune.

But you shouldn't care if I profit as long as you profit. And I guarantee that you will.

By the way, if you feel a little uneasy about sending me a check or money order for $10.00, simply postdate it by 30 days which will completely eliminate your risk.

It's true! A beautiful Climbing Strawberry. A strawberry plant that produces delicious, honey-sweet red strawberries the entire way up! Read these facts and learn how you can grow these beautiful ornamental plants that produce berries you can pick from the vine.

Imagine the curiosity, the envy of your neighbors as they watch you grow strawberries on a pole, trellis, or fence. Imagine the interest and excitement as they watch this richly foliaged plant reaching vigorously upward. Imagine your own delight as you watch enticing bright red strawberries appear. Just picture yourself leisurely walking through your garden picking real red strawberries from your own exotic Climbing Strawberry plants . . . picking delightful tasting strawberries right off the vine — without having to wash off the dirt — and popping them into your mouth to enjoy their vine-fresh flavor!

CLIMBING STRAWBERRIES ARE PERENNIALS

Ever-Bearing — Produce All Summer Until Frost

You don't have to buy and plant these Climbing Strawberries every year! Because they are hardy perennials, they'll grow year-after-year. And each spring they'll produce even more lustily, increasing in length quickly and forming 5 to 6 rosettes at intervals. These rosettes produce clusters of flowers from which the berries fruit profusely this year. In turn, the rosettes produce more runners which bear more flowers and fruit. A prolific, splendid plant to enjoy for years and years. It is truly ever-bearing.

EASY TO GROW

These plants have proven their ability to thrive and produce and withstand severe winters. And you don't need a lot of space to grow them in . . . only a couple of square feet of ground per plant! Imagine a Climbing Strawberry plant from only 2 square feet of ground! Amazing, but true. Planting and care are simple, full directions come with your order.

Colonial charm warms us in a "more design than dollars" room setting. Kroehler's pub-style seating, upholstered in a sturdy plaid fabric, is graced by the maple butler's tray table. The Milliken rug is brilliantly printed via a computer-injection process. A do-it-yourself wainscoting kit, from Marlite, adds an architectural touch. Accessories: Cornwall.

Contemporary design transforms the standard room. Subtle color, soft lines and sophisticated lighting deliver the glamor. Selig's versatile sectional seating, in a stain-resistant geometric cotton print, blends with the luxurious parquet-effect Anso broadloom from Bigelow. The monochromatic scheme is accented by the gleam of steel, glass and mirror. The clock, with exposed mechanism, is by Howard Miller.

Country Casual, distinctly Southwestern, is achieved with Decorion's rich, ready-to-assemble furniture—upholstered in a glove vinyl, with natural rush inserts. The elegant Thayer Coggin console table is laminate-wrapped. The room's natural color scheme emphasizes Regal's smashing Indian-motif rug, made of dense, yarn-dyed Anso nylon. Random-width, aged-groove pine paneling, resembling old boards, completes the rustic setting. By Georgia-Pacific.

DECORATING WITH 3 BUDGETS

STYLES/SHOPPING

Home is our castle, or should be. But many of today's shrunken interiors, barren of architectural detail, could use some help. How do you surround yourself with comfort and beauty?

Rule one is that decorating a room should be an enjoyable experience. So relax. Sit down and think about what you would like your living room to look like. After all, it's the primary place in which you, your family and friends will be spending a lot of time. It also should be a room that comfortably reflects your own living habits.

Begin by focusing on the dollars you have to spend. Furniture probably will take up the largest chunk of your decorating pie. For example, on a $1,500 budget we spent close to $1,000 on furniture, $200 on a rug and the remainder on walls and accents. While in the rustic room, on a $2,300 budget, clever shopping unearthed a ready-to-assemble sofa and pair of lounge chairs for under $500.

Will you choose colonial, country casual or modern? We've elected to go colonial on a low budget, country casual on a moderate level and contemporary at the high end. Take your pick of ideas. Modern homes can accommodate colonial or traditional designs as gracefully as an Old World abode can house contemporary styling. But arrangement and the proportion of furniture are the keys to any successful room scheme.

Borrow a trick from professional decorators who plan furniture arrangements with little kits consisting of graph paper and cut-out patterns that represent tables, chairs, etc. (Kits are advertised in decorating publications.) Carefully measure your room and indicate exact positions and dimensions of door and wall breaks, such as windows, chimney or alcoves. Measure the width of windows and doors from the outer edge of the frame. Then draw your plan on graph paper with each square representing one foot. (Indicate details such as radiators, the swing of doors, electric outlets, etc.) Then cut out your furniture pieces and experiment with different arrangements. You also can achieve the same results by using doll furniture and graph paper purchased from a stationery store.

Speaking of decorators, many large department and furnishings stores offer the services of professional interior designers. While this service often is tied to purchases, many stores will offer some free initial advice as a measure of good will.

Once you've formulated a rough decorating plan, shop for the best prices and styles. Don't buy on impulse. Check furniture warehouses and clearance centers. You also might wait for semiannual furniture sales. But remember that quality still pays off in the long run. To check on good craftsmanship in wood furnishings, for example, see that drawers are hand-fitted and can be closed easily with a touch from either side. They also should feature sturdy glides and bottoms and be constructed with smoothly sanded interiors.

In both upholstered furniture and carpets, look for fiber guarantees and stain-repellent finishes, qualities that will insure what you purchase today will still look lovely a year from now.

When it comes to walls and floors, if you are the average home decorator on a budget, you may choose to spend time rather than money. (Even with money to spare, you may prefer to invest in upgraded quality while still doing it yourself.) Wood paneling, for instance, can range from wood-veneered thin plywood to solid oak or redwood. Plastic laminate paneling in simulated wood grain as well as solid colors and prints also are available for less-expensive wall treatments. If you haven't tried your hand at paneling before, remember that plywood and hardwood panels can be applied directly to plaster walls with a specially designed adhesive. The walls must be in good condition; if not, furring strips should be used to build a frame onto which the panels can be attached. Gluing panels is less time-consuming than the second method, which is to nail or to staple-gun each panel to studs or furred-out walls. (You ought to use a plumb line to insure that panels are correctly aligned.) Lumberyards and home-decorating centers have a good selection of paneling.

Stenciling kits have been around for years now, but they are still a fresh way to liven up plain walls with bright borders or all-over designs the way our colonial ancestors did. Wood moldings or wainscot kits can be purchased to create a chair rail around the room. Another idea that still provides a lot of

GROW ALL THE WAY WITH ORTHO.

A three-pronged program for better home grown vegetables.

1. A brand new, highly efficient weed killer. Comes in an easy-to-apply granular formulation for selective, pre-emergence weed control. Also great for use around shrubs, annuals, trees and on lawns.

2. A specially prepared plant food for vegetable gardens formulated fo high yields and top quality vegetables. Can be used on all the vegetables in the garden. Pelleted formulation, convenient, easy-to-use carton.

3. Can be used on food crops to within one day of harvest. It's especially effective for use on tomatoes, beans, cucumbers, peppers, potatoes, melons and other listed vegetables. Avoid accidents: For safety, read the entire label including cautions. Use all chemicals only as directed.

styling mileage is lightweight, plastic beams, simulating wood. Great for Country French or Tudor effects.

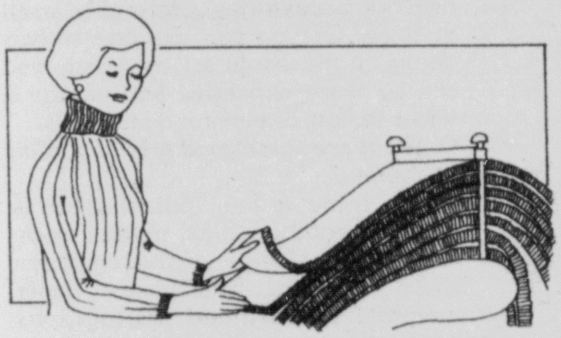

Hardwood paneling or mirrors also are dramatic when used above a fireplace. Mirroring a single wall can provide impact and serve to visually expand a small room or to brighten a dark one by reflecting light. And don't forget that paneling provides for good acoustics and heating insulation.

Flooring can lay the groundwork for a really smashing room. You can run the gamut from sisal mats to stained wood floors to area rugs to lush wall-to-wall broadloom.

To redo old wood floors, you can rent sanding equipment from a home-remodeling center, including vacuum attachments to suck up fine wood-dust residue.

Many people prefer the look of a fine area rug, either over wall-to-wall carpet or wood floors. While antique Orientals and expensive wovens may be limited to higher budgets, modern technology has provided us with precise reproductions of costly classic designs. Today rich colors and patterns are being applied to tufted carpet surfaces via ingenious new computer-injection systems to create beautiful designs with surprisingly low price tags.

Soft wall-to-wall broadloom is also useful to expand space and to create unity in a modest-sized living area. Today's third-generation synthetic carpets not only have greater durability and soil resistance but often boast permanent, built-in antistatic properties to eliminate shock. Many come with written wear guarantees.

For many of us, living rooms serve several functions—dining room, guest room, family room. One of the most effective ways to achieve the necessary flexibility is with dual-purpose furniture. In addition to the customary sofa-bed or a sideboard that extends to seat 12, consider the idea of keeping on hand a big round plywood top for entertaining and using it to enlarge the surface of a small dining table. A pretty tablecloth will conceal its humble lumberyard origins. Or you may prefer to add a wall unit with a fold-down top that doubles as a desk and auxiliary buffet table. Hutches and breakfronts often come in two parts and can be moved into different rooms when you feel like a change of scenery. The lower cabinet can line an entrance foyer, while the upper portion can perch atop a bedroom dresser. Versatile seating arrangements are possible via the new modular units, with ottomans, armless chairs and sofa sections that can be regrouped to suit.

No room is complete, however, without the most important element—proper lighting. Light highlights individual components in your room. Dark corners are made inviting with the addition of a table, chair and reading lamp. Soft muted lights are all that's needed if you only use your living room for occasional entertaining. But if the family is there at all hours, plan for diffused overhead illumination and concentrated lighting for areas where special activity takes place. A good decorative reading lamp to counter eyestrain is a must. Consider experimenting with track lighting, which provides great flexibility. The tracks are attached to runners on the ceiling and can be swiveled or turned to illuminate any area you wish. On a lower budget, overhead illumination can be achieved through do-it-yourself lighting kits with a fixture suspended low over end tables or hung from the traditional center living-room ceiling outlet.

How intact a decorating scheme remains depends on whether you fall into the "little is enough" or "there's never enough" category. If you are an incurable collector, you will continually add pictures, plants, bowls and baskets to your never-finished room. If you are a purist, one or two carefully selected pieces will suffice.

A fence can bring neighbors closer together.

Sometimes it's the small things that cause the biggest problems between neighbors.

In my case the bone of contention was the one Mrs. Parker found buried in her prize begonias. So I built this fence from plans I got at the Help Center. And you know something, good fences make good neighbors.

It works the other way 'round too. I got all the free help I needed from Jim Clark, my Georgia-Pacific Registered Dealer. His Help Center is loaded with remodeling ideas, building projects, and helpful hints for do-it-yourselfers.

Take the free Projects Booklet. It's got simple, step-by-step plans for 20 interesting and useful home projects. And all of them as easy to build as my fence. There's a whole section of the Help Center that's filled with exciting new ideas on remodeling with wall paneling. And another with helpful free booklets that show you how to choose and use building materials like a pro.

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money

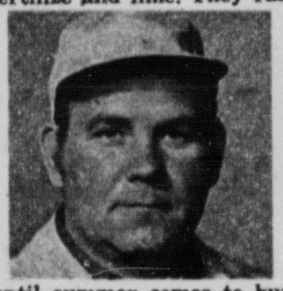

Amazoy is the T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

GRASS SEED WILL NEVER GROW A LAWN LIKE THIS! SAVE WITH OUR SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER UP TO 200 AMAZOY ZOYSIA GRASS PLUGS FREE!

By Mike Sandin
Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow . . . until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn ". . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn — nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement . . . ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick rich, luxurious Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It will NOT winter kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial!

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

End erosion of slopes with Amazoy. Perfect answer for hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas.

Your Own Supply of Plug Transplants

Established Amazoy gives you Zoysia plugs to plant in other areas as desired!

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed, like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills.

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass Was Perfected by U.S. Govt.; Released In Cooperation With U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day grass is taken from the soil, shipping charge collect via most economical means.

DROUGHT AND WEAR RESISTANT

Amazoy lawns take cookouts and parties — children playing on it won't hurt it, or themselves! Stays green right thru scorching heat and drought!

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style. Every plug 3 sq. inches.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS ..... FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area • In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT KILL—when other grasses burn out, Amazoy remains green and lovely!

Plug Amazoy into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil," clay or even salty, sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug to grow . . . from part shade to full sun! Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product.

If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

It's easy to see why those who don't grow Zoysia, would try to put it down. But Zoysia, a tough grass from Siberia, just won't be put down. That's why people are switching to it border to border, coast to coast.

FAMILY WEEKLY AT HOME DECORATING WITH 3 BUDGETS

ACCESSORIES

Accessories are the vital touch that pull a room together. Generally, certain objects "belong" with certain periods. Early American dictates the use of brass candlesticks, pewter plates or pie-shaped tables. Indian-motif baskets, rugs and pottery are of the casual Southwest idiom. Chrome, brass, glass and lucite are more at home in contemporary interiors.

The objects you surround yourself with are personal and may reflect your own tastes and interests more than anything else in a room. Essentially, they're the decorative objects you gather through the years spontaneously or collect with a careful plan in mind.

Since tastes, like furniture styles, change, so should the accessories you have around you. Keep this in mind: accessories are not just for the living room or dining room; the family room —even the kitchen and bathroom— need decorative objects to enhance their appearance.

Here are the most-asked questions and answers on this important decorating element:

Q. How much of a room's budget should be devoted to accessories?

A. Starting from scratch, you should figure about 20 percent. In other words, if you plan to spend $4,000 to decorate your living room, plan to spend $800 of that for accessories, including lamps, clocks, wall decor, tabletop items, occasional tables, throw pillows, area rugs and whatever else strikes your fancy. (As one decorator puts it, "If you spend only 10 percent, you get a 10-percent look!")

Q. Should accessories be scattered or displayed in groups?

A. Accessories grouped together make interesting and colorful statements. Separately, single items tend to get lost, except on shelves where they can be mingled with books.

Q. How do you decide just where to put things?

A. First, assemble all of your accessories on the floor or on a table. Group similar items: put all folk-art objects together, all of the silver or pewter, all the paintings or graphics or mirrors. Next, go through the house and decide where each group would look best. What you can't find space for, put away for six months. Then, you might regroup accessories for a fresh new look.

Q. Is it better to use a lot of accessories or to decorate with a select few?

A. That's a matter of taste. The tendency today is to fill up a room, but if you possess a few very fine objects— for example, a sculpture collection— you certainly don't want the budget-priced to compete with the rare. Also, there's the matter of a room's size; a small room obviously requires a minimum of accessories, preferably small in scale. Or you can use one or two dominant pieces. In a large room, you can be more expansive and include a wider variety of types and materials.

Q. What are some good tabletop items to display?

A. To name a few: porcelain birds, glass or wood obelisks, mineral rocks in their natural state, marble eggs, seashells or coral, snuffboxes, paperweights, well-framed photographs, candlesticks.

Q. Are wall groupings still popular?

A. Wall-hung objects will probably never go out of style—but there are new ideas in wall decor. For example: prints that come in abstract segments to be hung in changing arrangements, frameless sculptured mirrors (like stalactites) and mirrors that incorporate graphics.

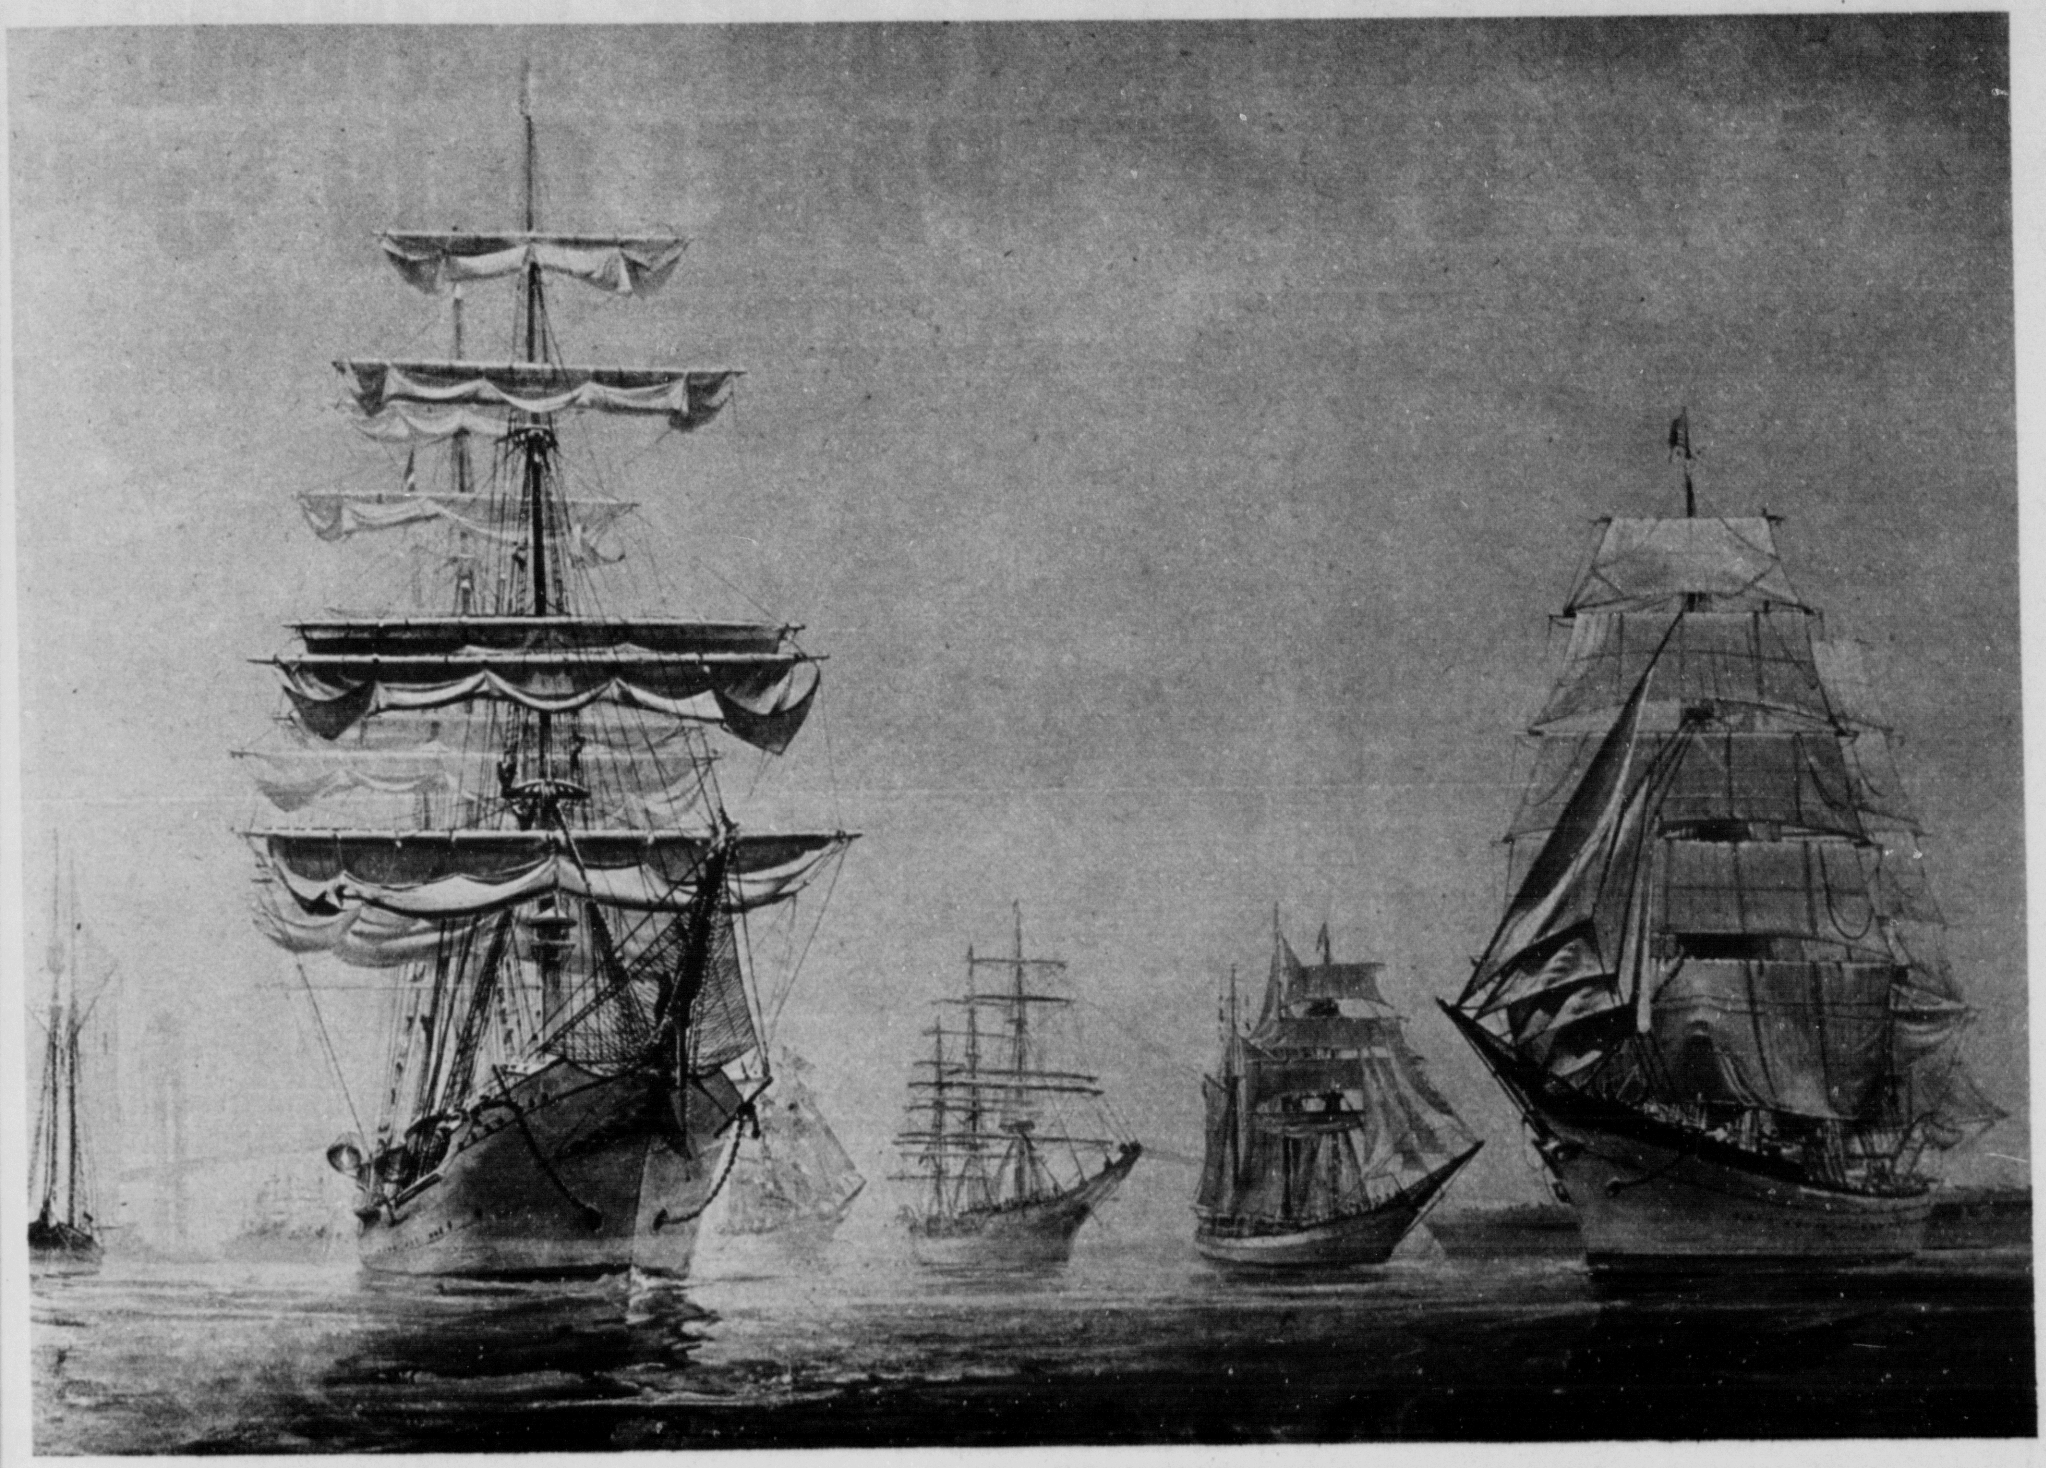

Q. What are the best buys in accessories?

A. Marjorie Laurich, a buyer who selects accessories for a number of the country's best stores, advises: "The good buys are those most readily available. In other words, what's 'in' is usually the best priced. Since it's pleasant to live with a certain amount of change, why not buy a sample of what appeals to you among the 'in' things?" Ms. Laurich cites baskets and macramé hangings as two of today's best buys "because everywhere you look you can find them."

Q. Where is the best place to purchase accessories?

A. If you're looking for the offbeat—a flashing sign or a free form in neon— go to a shop that specializes in the avant-garde. Otherwise, stick to the department store, where accessories relate to furniture and to home-furnishings trends and are not treated as individual "items."

THE TALL SHIPS®

The Official Commemorative Print of the Historic 1976 Gathering of Tall Ships

Two years in the painting and meticulously accurate in nautical detail, this high fidelity lithograph will delight all those who admire fine art. Painted by the renowned marine artist, Kipp Soldwedel (Tall Ships Artist of Record), this official commemorative print is reproduced in magnificent color, 21 x 28 inches.

Depicted here in misty nautical splendor are the Blue Nose (Canada), Danmark (Denmark), Segres (Portugal), Christian Radich (Norway) and the Gorch Foch II (Germany), winner of the International Trans Atlantic race.

Good art that is bound to accrue in value, handsome decoration for office or home, nostalgic memorabilia for sea lovers and sailors alike.

"Received your very lovely lithograph and it now has a place of predominance in my office. This is truly a magnificent work and is a conversation piece for all who come into my office."
Gerald E. Bauer, Dallas, Tx.

"I have just received a print of the "Tall Ships" by Kipp Soldwedel from my niece. It is truly a lovely work of art. It is in my foyer and has added much charm to that area. I am sure that other people will enjoy these beautiful ships in their homes."
Mrs. M. B. Flournoy, New York, N.Y.

"Those who thrilled at the sight of the soaring masts and graceful hulls in July will recapture that thrill when they see the clean lines of Kipp Soldwedel's paintings. His works... carry the fresh, salty tang of ocean air wherever they go."
Genesis Galleries Ltd., New York, N.Y.

JOBMANSHIP

Deciding About Co-Workers

Joe, Bill and Nancy are new co-workers. It doesn't take us long to size them up: Joe's not too bright, Nancy's stuck-up and Bill's a nice guy. Months later, something happens and we realize with a shock that our estimates of our new co-workers are completely wrong. How could we have been so mistaken?

Basically, say industrial psychologists, most of us fall into two traps when we meet someone new. We stereotype and we generalize. We start out with ideas of what kinds of personalities we can expect from a clerk, trucker, executive, union leader, businessperson, teacher. Then, when we meet someone with that job, we're apt to have a prepackaged reaction.

We also get ourselves into trouble by generalizing from surroundings. If we meet people first in a formal office setting, we may have one impression of their character. But if we're introduced over a relaxed lunch table, we might have a totally different permanent impression of them. This quickness to generalize goes further. Most people form lasting impressions of others from short, introductory conversations. We say something. The other person replies. The answers don't suit us perfectly. Based on that short exchange, we form a permanent negative opinion of that person. We may even make job trouble for ourselves by judging new co-workers by generalized facts that don't really apply. For instance, if workers need to be good-natured and accurate with figures to carry their share of the job, isn't it foolish for us to react coldly to them because of an irrelevant trait such as weight or their taste in clothes? —S. R. Redford

Sensible Record Keeping

When a businessman was asked recently what he thought would be a practical gift for a newlywed couple, he said promptly, "A filing cabinet!"

It may not be romantic or traditional, but a good record-keeping system is essential these days for every family. Here is a concise guide to safe and sensible record-keeping:

Personal and family documents. These include birth, death and marriage certificates, military service records, passports, diplomas, job references. Put them in a safe-deposit box. They can be costly, time-consuming and often difficult to replace or to duplicate.

Property records. These include everything pertaining to the purchase, lease or sale of a home: deed and title papers, mortgage-payment receipts, surveys, receipts for capital improvements, property tax records, title and homeowner insurance policies. They, too, should be in your safe-deposit box.

Automobile records. Title, insurance, auto-club membership, warranties and repair bills all can be kept in a home file for use in case of accident or theft.

Life and health insurance policies. The originals go in the safe-deposit box, but keep at home a list of all policies with their numbers, premium due dates and expiration dates, names and addresses of insurance companies and brokers.

Bank statements (including cancelled checks). These should be kept in a home file for at least three years. Have a list of all bank accounts, by name and number, in your safe-deposit box.

Wills. A copy at home for reference, but the original ought to be left with the attorney who drew it up.

Tax records. Can be kept at home, but do so for at least three years (and preferably six) from the date of payment.

Miscellaneous. It's a good idea to file all guarantees and warranties on major household purchases (like kitchen appliances) as well as a record of the date and cost of any repairs to them. Sales slips for other purchases over $100 should be kept for three years. A list of credit cards (by number and name) should be in a home file. A household inventory for insurance-claim purposes ought to be in your safe-deposit box. —Norman Lobsenz

PEOPLE QUIZ/ By John E. Gibson

What part of the day is the safest time to drive? Do bad drivers share certain personality characteristics?

TEST HOW PRONE YOU ARE TO CAR ACCIDENTS

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Your street-crossing behavior not only reveals your chances of becoming an accident statistic but tells a lot about your personality and attitude.

2. Driving a new car increases your chances of having an accident.

3. A quarrel or disagreement with someone can later be the reason behind a serious traffic accident.

4. The people who cause most auto accidents, ranging from fender-bending to fatal injuries, tend to have certain personality characteristics in common.

5. The safest time to drive is in the wee hours of morning when there are few cars.

ANSWERS

1. True. Investigators from the University of Massachusetts and Wayne State University conducted a fascinating study of street-crossing behavior at the corner of a major downtown traffic artery in a leading city. In the study, "observers classified the pedestrian's behavior as soon as the street-crossing was completed, and then approached the pedestrian for a brief on-the-spot interview." The 125 participants were classified as safe-crossers (who waited till the light changed in their favor; checked traffic in all directions before and during the crossing) and as unsafe-crossers (who stepped out from some location other than the corner; from between parked cars; with the traffic light against them or without looking in either direction). In the interviews, the unsafe-crossers revealed themselves as having markedly different personalities from the safe-crossers, being much more subject to feelings of frustration and periods of depression. Significantly, when asked, "To what age do you expect to live?" the safe pedestrians "expected to reach a more advanced age than the risky pedestrians — a 14-year difference between the extremes." A further finding: the safer pedestrians were "more married" and "less single" — the odds being about three to one that the careless street-crosser is single.

2. True. According to a study sponsored by the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, driving a car new to you — whether it be a used car or one just off the showroom floor — increases your chance of an accident. It's emphasized that driving any car you are not completely familiar with — which may handle somewhat differently, whose controls are in different places — has an immediate effect on how you will fare in any driving situation requiring split-second control of the vehicle. The pleasure of piloting a new automobile ranks high on the list of personal satisfactions, but it's recommended that whenever you purchase another car, you take time out on a driving course free from hazardous traffic to completely familiarize yourself with the way the car responds to the controls and the various ways in which it may differ from the car you're used to driving.

3. True. In a Highway Safety Research Institute survey, studies are cited showing stress — often resulting from quarrels or disagreements with another person — to be one of the chief villains in traffic accidents. It was found that "of a broad range of possible indicators, personal difficulties leading to stress best predicted who would have the most accidents." Other studies also have shown that drivers who cause serious accidents are likely to have experienced stress situations previously, and they tend to react with rash and impulsive behavior, exposing themselves to traffic situations beyond their control.

4. True. A study, at the Psychological Institute of Biel, Switzerland, of the personality profiles of traffic offenders whose driving resulted in frequent accidents, found that the majority of bad drivers demonstrated the following characteristics: 1) masochistic tendencies (deriving excitement and satisfaction from being subjected to pain), 2) social inadequacy, (uncomfortable in interpersonal relationships), 3) repressed aggression (hostility toward others, which is kept under restraint), 4) weak ego (lacking in self-confidence and self-esteem).

5. False. Fewer cars are on the road, but more of them are likely to be driven by drunk drivers. In a University of Michigan study of highway safety, "A high proportion of the early-morning drivers was found to have been drinking."

Directly from Mr. Chandra's mine in Jaipur. The most hauntingly beautiful jewelry you've ever owned. And at a price you could scarcely believe possible.

24 inch amethyst Necklace $19.95

From deep within the Darjeeling mountains, scores of miles from the nearest hamlet, the Chandra family has been mining their incomparable amethyst for generations. The beautiful jewels from this mine have always been regarded as the purest, most delicate of all amethyst produced in India. The women of the family hand-tumble these precious stones, polish them lovingly and string them alternately with tiny, precious gold-plated beads into gorgeous necklaces. We are proud to represent the Chandra family in the United States. Their breathtakingly beautiful strand of subtly violet baroque beads will become your most beloved, most treasured piece of jewelry. And Mr. Chandra asked us to give each of our customers a pair of amethyst earrings (regular $19.95 value!) just to say "shukrya" (which is "thank you" in Hindi) for your appreciation of his handicraft. Mr. Chandra's mine is quite small, so quantities are limited. To get this gorgeous piece of jewelry, and Mr. Chandra's gift, please order right away. You will be delighted!

THE RICE DIET

You can shed weight in just 72 hours on The Rice Diet or it costs you nothing. Prove it to yourself by ordering our new, comprehensive diet manual, The Rice Diet, now. It discloses the secret of how you can lose weight like people who report losses of up to 100 pounds and more in a brief time without hunger.

I'm Jan Schrader, and these are photos of me before I went on The Rice Diet. Read below about how I lost 102 pounds, and then get your copy of The Rice Diet by sending in the coupon.

I'm proud of my boyfriend! I wanted you to see him too. This was on our trip to Florida.

"YOU WON'T BELIEVE IT WHEN YOU LOSE WEIGHT LIKE I DID"

"I couldn't believe it when I lost 25 pounds the first month after I started on The Rice Diet. I wasn't hungry at all, and the weight just seemed to disappear. This is amazing when you realize that I have always been fat – even as a child. Our doctor put me on weight loss pills, but they didn't work. He said there was no hope for me.

"Now that I've gone from 227 pounds to a slim 125 pounds – my whole outlook on life has changed. Before, I was an extreme introvert, hiding from people, afraid of being seen and laughed at. When I had my picture taken, I would try to conceal my body by pulling my knees up in front of me. Clothes didn't fit right, and I never wore a bathing suit before. I had no energy, and it was an effort to do anything. Now, I'm on the go all the time; I've seen and done things I never dreamed of doing as a "fatty." I now consider myself a beautiful person inside and out."

IT'S A HEALING DIET AS WELL AS A REDUCING DIET

The famous Rice Diet wasn't even designed for taking off fat. It was created as a healing diet. And heal it does.

IT CONTAINS LITTLE CHOLESTEROL

Medical Research has acclaimed a low-fat diet as being of paramount aid in the treatment of certain heart and kidney conditions. Scientists also advocate this program as the basis of a general reducing diet.

The health value of this diet is founded upon the fact that it contains little cholesterol – which many doctors believe dangerous to the heart, kidneys, and blood circulation.

THE DIET REVERSES MUCH DAMAGE DONE BY HEART DISORDERS

Our medical establishment was extremely skeptical of the startling discovery that the Rice Diet reverses much of the damage done by blood vessel, eye, heart, and kidney disorders. Without any medication other than a prolonged diet largely composed of rice, some enlarged hearts grew smaller, blood pressures and blood sugar dropped.

CLAIMS FOR THE RICE DIET VERIFIED

Teams of doctors from leading institutions around the world investigated the diet. They thought that they would scoff at the claims, but they applauded instead. "The question now," concluded a report in one eminent medical journal, "is not 'Does the diet work?' The question is 'How does it work?'"

FAMOUS PEOPLE HAVE ENDORSED THE RESULTS OF RICE DIETING

"I truly would have died if I hadn't gone" on a program of rice dieting, says the wife of a former state governor. "I was seriously ill and weighed 230 pounds." She dropped 80 pounds in 19 weeks, and her blood sugar plummeted as well. (Since the diet is largely carbohydrate, this is one of the mysteries of it.)

A famous singer and movie actor, on the other hand, got hooked on the taste of the diet and lost 80 pounds, too. He still follows the diet every day. Before the Rice Diet, he had been on a high-protein diet for ten years or so: "I used to have to put down a pound of steak before recording," he says. "Now, I can eat a little rice and sing like a bird."

HERE'S WHAT THE RICE DIET DID FOR OTHERS.

"VERY TASTY DIET"

—Mrs. M.S., Lawrenceburg, Ind.

"May I say this is a very tasty diet. I liked all the menus except one."

"NOTHING WORKED UNTIL I TRIED RICE"

"I was a victim of multiple food allergies. I tried everything but nothing worked until I tried rice. It was the only thing I could tolerate.

"WEIGHT FELL OFF ME"

"Naturally, the weight FELL off me. Within 5 or 6 weeks, I had lost 35 pounds. I have held that weight pretty well. I am a believer in rice! Thank heaven for rice. Perhaps my experience will help others. I well imagine rice will play a great part in the remainder of my life."

—Mrs. Grace Quintal, Stockton, Cal.

"LOST 10 POUNDS IN 2 WEEKS"

"I used your diet and lost 10 pounds in two weeks. I want my daughter-in-law to have one."

—Mrs. S., St. Joseph, Mo.

"LOST 1/2 POUND A DAY"

"Thanks to your rice diet, my husband's weight is almost back to where it should be. He went on your diet in January and has averaged a loss of ½ pound a day."

—Mrs. F.W.W., Truckee, Cal.

PERMANENT WEIGHT-LOSS

Your body has an appetite control center or appestat. If you are fat, it's because your appestat is set too high from eating the wrong kind of food. When you change the kind of food you eat by going on The Rice Diet, your body's appestat should soon adjust to a lower setting that won't compel you to overeat. Then you will be able to reach and maintain a normal weight without much effort – It's that easy.

A famous medical research group says: "Weight loss can occur permanently only if the appestat is readjusted to a lower level."

EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO LOSE WEIGHT

1) A sure-fire way to adjust your diet to lose exactly as much weight as you want.
2) Dozens of delicious menus and recipes like: Chicken & Rice Casserole; Rice & Lamb Casserole; Veal Marengo; Broiled Pork Chops; Canteloupe; Cottage Cheese and Tomato Salad; Rice Pudding.
3) A section on rice and Chinese medicine.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

FRANKLY, I'M EMBARRASSED

My wife would like me to make some show
Of affection where others can see,
To hold her hand or to kiss her cheek
Or even to pat her knee.

It isn't enough that I show my love,
Or at least a little affection,
When we are at home and alone. Oh no,
She's eager for public inspection,

Some proof to her skeptical friends that I Am hers, all hers, and I try to comply.

—Richard Armour

A drunk was hunched over the bar, toothpick in hand, spearing futilely at the olive in his drink. A dozen times the olive eluded him. Finally, another patron who had been watching intently from the next stool became exasperated and grabbed the toothpick. "Here. This is how you do it," he said, as he easily skewered the olive. "Big deal," muttered the drunk. "I already had him so tired he couldn't get away."

—Dorothea Kent

I'm very ambidextrous,
Which means, you understand,
That I can take a job and louse
It up with either hand.

—F. O. Walsh

While psychiatry is increasingly popular for finding out what's wrong with you, there's still a lot to be said for marriage.

As my four-year-old niece climbed into the car to go shopping with her grandmother and me, she was told that she needed a sweater. After she said, "No, I don't," her grandmother replied, "I'll get it for you." As she opened the door and started into the house, my niece observed sadly, "Granny doesn't mind very well, does she?"

My Feet Were Killing Me...Until I Discovered the Miracle of Hamburg!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted—see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sightseeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Elysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting breakthrough for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Featherspring. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I learned that women also can wear them—even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Hamburg with my own countrymen.

Today thousands of Americans of all ages —many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

Here's why Featherspring work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom fitted and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whatever your problem—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet. Flexible Featherspring will bring you guaranteed relief with every step you take.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Hamburg can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Does Weather Affect Your Behavior?

A professor studying the effects of weather on human behavior says an approaching cold front makes people more likely to be involved in accidents. This conclusion is part of a study being conducted by Dr. Earl Sargent, a professor at the University of Tulsa. Some of his other findings:

- People are more likely to become ill just before a cold front moves through an area.
- Civil-service test scores are higher in the autumn and spring, lower in the summer months.
- There are more crimes against people in the late summer than at any other time of the year.

Sargent says there are three factors in the weather—the temperature, the humidity and the pressure. Experiments suggest the humidity and pressure are the two variables that affect human behavior.

First Woman Episcopal Priest

She calls herself "Jackie." She's a high-school dropout. She's married to an Indianapolis truck driver. And she was raised a Roman Catholic. She's the Rev. Mrs. Jacqueline Means, 40, the nation's first regularly ordained woman Episcopal priest. She didn't graduate from high school until 1968, but she became a licensed practical nurse, attended a comptometer school and Indiana University. She did so because injuries suffered by her husband convinced her she should be able to support herself: "I have a Roman Catholic background. I started saying about 12 years ago I wanted to become a priest. People said I was crazy." Now she feels her role is "kinda heavy. I don't have anybody to model after. The thought of women modeling themselves after me is pretty scary." Because she obviously can't be called "Father," she'll simply be known as Mrs. Means, the Rev. Mrs. Means or simply "Jackie." But just for fun, she sometimes sports a T-shirt inscribed "Mother Means."

Ladies Who Lift Weights Get Much Better Shapes

Women are discovering what men have known for years—weightlifting is great for conditioning and losing weight. Two years ago, there were only a few hundred women interested in the sport, but now there are about 10,000 in the U.S. According to Dale Adrian, diet and fitness instructor for the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA), women need not worry about losing their feminine curves because no matter how many weights they lift, they will never develop the dimensions of musclemen. "Women lack the male hormone, testosterone, which is responsible for those dimensions," Adrian says. "All weightlifting can do for women is contour their bodies—give them a firmer waist and bust and better muscle tone."

Soap Operas As Substitute Teachers

Every day, millions of South Americans whip out their handkerchiefs and get ready for a good cry — soap operas south of the border now rival soccer games for keeping audiences glued to TV sets. In Brazil, an estimated 40 million persons in a population of 110 million gather around their TV sets nightly at 8:00 to watch the new "soaps." Meanwhile, the Mexican Government is trying to capitalize on the popularity of the soap operas as vehicles to teach illiterate viewers the value of books and to give them some basic concepts of geography, history and mathematics.

Uncle Sam Sets His Pace

Gordon McNiven's heart belongs to Uncle Sam. And if the atomic energy that keeps it beating should no longer be needed, he must return it. McNiven, 27, was picked to try a new pacemaker with atomic power. Pacemakers with batteries have kept hearts beating for 15 years. McNiven's will run on a pellet of plutonium and could last for 25 years or more. The plutonium belongs to the Federal Government, however, and so it isn't his to keep. The Government is controlling development of nuclear pacemakers, and it allows manufacturers to release just a few each month.

Quick Takes

For those of us who feel there are not enough commercials on TV, the networks are considering adding another minute of commercials to each half-hour prime-time program. . . . College football and basketball players have poorer vision than any other group of young people, reports the American Optometric Association. . . . A former law-enforcement officer who began bulletproofing automobiles in San Antonio as a sideline says the demand is so great he is going to begin full-time production this month. . . . Children's allowances in the U.S. amount to a staggering $2.3 billion a year, reports Professor Bellur Venkatakrishna of Ball State University. The estimated average weekly allowance per child is $1.40, and the children's most frequently mentioned purchased item was gum. . . . A prisoner escaped from the city jail in Fort Worth, Texas, recently by picking up a broom and sweeping his way out of the building. Experts called it "a clean getaway." . . . The most popular paint color for the interior of homes is a sunny shade of yellow, and the number-one choice for the exterior color of American homes is dark brown, reports one company that made a study. . . . School students will not be given Saturdays off in France, the Education Ministry has announced. Education Minister René Haby said that a whole weekend off would be "hard" on the pupils. (French youngsters get Wednesday afternoons off and attend class Saturdays.) Haby said that scientific studies have shown that long weekends "often have a disastrous effect on schooling."

You don't have to be over 65 to collect from Social Security and Medicare

If you think that the Government's Social Security and Medicare programs are strictly for folks over 65, you couldn't be more mistaken! Thanks to changes in both programs, eligible men and women under 65 could not only collect under both Social Security and Medicare, but their benefits could add up to hundreds of thousands of dollars in some cases.

Because all these changes in Social Security and Medicare have been so rapid over the past few years, most folks haven't had a chance to grasp their full meaning. Yet a basic understanding of them can be all-important to your present and future security and happiness.

U.S. Dept. of H.E.W. figures show that, right now, nearly one person out of every seven in the United States—including 11,000,000 people under age 65—receives a Social Security check every month. And nearly 2,000,000 Americans under 65 have already received benefits under Medicare.

Despite the growing Government benefits people of all ages still need he financial loss from sickness and injury. For example, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports that people under Medicare now pay slightly more out of their pockets for medical expenses than they did back before Medicare started.

For men and women under 65, experts have developed protection to help provide the added security you need for today's high cost of getting sick or hurt. For example, without changing your present health insurance one bit, you can add supplemental insurance that can help solve the problem of skyrocketing medical costs because it provides full policy benefits regardless of benefits you receive from any other insurance, including group.

When covered sickness or injuries strike, you have valuable added protection just when you'll need it most. Pay hospital and doctor bills not covered by your other insurance. Use the benefits as you see fit to help make sure a sickness or

With today's record-high medical costs, most people need added protection to help prevent a financial crisis when a serious sickness or accident strikes. That's why protection that provides its full specified benefits regardless of your other insurance makes mighty good sense. This valuable "add-on" insurance protection is available from Certified Life Insurance Co. of California, whose policies under the famous White Cross Plan trademark now protect thousands of California families.

The story of "add-on" protection that provides its full policy benefits regardless of your other insurance, and supplemental insurance to help people over 65 avoid financial loss when they're sick or hurt, is told in the "Blue Book", an interesting and informative booklet which Certified will mail to you without obligation.
